"In the Heart of the Beautiful Cumberlands — Where Virginia Begins"

61 Years * No. 1 — One Section * Twenty-five Cents

Pennington Gap, Lee County, Virginia Wednesday, January 7, 1981

Can you identify this school building? This and numerous other such buildings, most of them now gone and perhaps forgotten, were victims of consolidation, a move that many Lee Countians strongly oppose.

HELP May Be Big Help For County

By George A. Lee

HELP, an organization for parents and other interested people, is an organization recently formed with the goal of improving the schools of Lee County. If it stays on its stated course it could be one of the best things to happen to the county.

The four letters, HELP, stands for Help Education Lee Priorities.

Some 30 persons met last Monday night at the Courthouse in Jonesville, for a general discussion of the organization's activities to-date and what members would like to see happen within the school system of Lee County.

The organization is made up primarily of people of the Jonesville area. At this meeting, residents of the Olinger community, interested in forming an organization of this type were in attendance.

The concern of this organization is directed at better and more modern facilities as well as improving the course of instruction within the county system.

One of the first activities of members of the group was a tour of the oldest building on the Jonesville Elementary campus. This building, constructed just after the turn of the century has been renovated and improved in a number of ways since that time. One of the parents indicated his surprise at the condition of the building. He had expected to find it much worse than it was.

The tour, reported on by "Doc" Parsons, a member of the Jonesville Fire Department, brought out a number of recommendations that he felt might possibly improve the safety factor in the event of a fire.

Principal J.C. Smith, present for the meeting explained that the school, like all Virginia schools, is inspected once each year by the State Fire Marshall, who approved the school for continued use.

Mr. Pat Fortner, who presided at the meeting stated that the organization is interested in helping with any problems in the county schools. Pennington and Jonesville Elementary Schools are the two most pressing problems, he opined.

Committees within the organization of HELP include the Priorities committee with Pat Fortner as chairman; Communications -Mrs. Pat Fortner, Finance -Les Bailey, Leaison-Janet Hays, Executive - Irene Hines.

A committee had previously met with superintendent McCoy, who, it was reported, was most cooperative and he expressed a real interest in the goals and objectives of the organization. He has indicated a real interest in working in any capacity to help further the goals of the organization, it was reported.

The ultimate goal of HELP is to get enough parents involved to be able to work with a unified voice in helping to set priorities toward a better educational system.

It is a stated purpose of the group to, "let the school board and board of supervisors know how we feel."

It is apparent that HELP is not a radical group but a group that is sincerely interested in working within the system to produce a better school system for the county.

The discussion, at one point, centered around the need for an improved course of study which would offer an enlarged curriculum.

One point that was made that might do much to allay the fears of those who so strongly oppose consolidation is the fact that in the not too distant past the county supported over 90 schools. Today, there are 14 schools within the county system.

The problem of doing enough within the educational system for the handicapped, the gifted and just the average student were indicated as problems in need of study by the organization.

The fact that our schools, in some instances, are able to be accredited "on paper" by making out reports for the state office that are not always exactly as accurate as one would desire.

From this single observation it seems that this is one of the few such organizations to take shape in Lee County that is nonpartisan, with objectives that will be approached in a constructive manner, hoping to be able to influence the thinking of the school board as well as the board of supervisors in a manner that will bring about an orderly improvement of school system in Lee County.

A Cake Of Soap, A Sock, A Mop Handle ---

Two Arrested In Attempt To Pass A Gun Into Lee County Jail

Deputy Marty Hensley, Sheriff Chadwell, center and Deputy Charles Elkins check out materials confiscated following a search of Arvil Lee Webb and a juvenile arrested near the Lee County Jail while they were attempting to pass a gun, ammunition and marijuana capsules to an inmate of the jail, last week. The gun, a mop handle, a cake of soap, a sock and a "rope" made of strips of a bed sheet are among the items taken from the two youths or found in a search of the jail.

What does it take to carry out a successful jail break?

A mop handle, a cake of soap, a sock, strips of sheet tied together, capsules of marijuana, a .22 caliber pistol and ammunition for the pistol, all items of some use on certain occasions, were to be used in setting up a jail break but with no success at the Lee County Jail last week.

Two persons have been arrested and, according to Lee County Sheriff Robert Chadwell, at least three more are likely candidates for arrest in connection with preparations for an attempted jail break which would, had it succeeded, possibly have brought about the escape of Bernard Chester Webb, 34, of St. Charles, who has been charged with murder for hire. Webb is scheduled to be tried in Lee County Circuit Court. It was also sermised that, had Webb been able to secure the gun and effect an escape other inmates would also have escaped.

Sheriff Chadwell said last Monday, that two young men, one a juvenile, were arrested and charged with attempting to pass a gun and drugs to an inmate in the Jail. Arvil Webb, 18 of St. Charles, and a 16 year old juvenile were arrested at 12:45 Friday morning as they approached the jail.

County Deputies involved in the Arrest were Charles Elkins and Marty Hensley. Sheriff Chadwell expressed his thanks and appreciation to Jonesville Town Policeman, Curtis Middleton for his assistance in bringing the incident to a satisfactory conclusion.

According to Chadwell, the plan called for the mop handle to be extended through the cell bars; across the corridor and out a small hole in the heavy window screen.

The strips of sheet, tied together and weighted with a cake of soap would then be lowered to the ground level, some 30 feet below. Here, the pistol, ammunition, and marijuana capsules all placed in sock, would be tied to the sheet strips and raised to the window and hopefully pulled into the cell. It was, in a sense, a kind of a fishing expedition with pole, line and the other necessary items. As it turned out, the law enforcement officers were the fishermen and the two young men were caught. They made no effort to resist or escape, the officers said.

Arvil Webb and the juvenile were jailed immediately and bond was set for Webb at $5,000 cash or $10,000 property. Webb was released to the custody of his mother.

According to the Sheriff, the plan for passing the items into Bernard Webb had been set forth in a letter from Webb to his 15-year-old girl friend.

This was allegedly the second attempt by Bernard Webb to secure materials which might be used in an escape attempt. Earlier materials had been confiscated from his cell which included a hacksaw blade and paint of a color similar to the color of the bar's enclosing Webb's cell.

Bernard Webb and R.L. Herring, 37, of Albany, Georgia were indicted by Lee County Grand Jury in the death of David M. Hill, 46, of Swainsboro, Ga. Hill's body, was found in December, 1977, by hunters in an isolated, wooded area near Keokee.

An intensive investigation finally resulted in the identification of Hill's body.

It has been charged that Herring hired Webb to murder Hill. He allegedly paid Webb $15,000 to $25,000 in the alleged murder for hire job.

Webb's trial is set for February 9, in Lee County Circuit Court.

Hill's trial is tentatively set for March 23.

In connection with the attempt to smuggle the gun and other items into the jail, Sheriff Chadwell and deputies searched Webb's cell block later that morning, finding a mop handle, a notched bar of soap and strips of sheet tied into a length totaling some 20 feet.

Arvil Webb told police he received a letter from Webb (Webb had indicated that he cannot write) instructing him to bring the gun and other items to the jail at 1:00 a.m. Friday. The letter also included a rough diagram of the exterior of the jail. The instructions also indicated that a string or rope would be lowered from the upper story of the jail. According to the report, the letter was allegedly given to Webb's girlfriend while she was visiting him in the Lee County Jail.

The letter is thought to have been written by another prisoner in the jail.

The two young men, Webb and the Juvenile, had arrived in Jonesville early Thursday, spending some time with friends early in the evening and then walking to the vicinity of the Jail there they were awaited by the officers. There was no attempt to resist or escape by Webb and his friend, officers said. Actually, the officers indicated, they were two very frightened young men.

Authorities have said that they believe Hill was killed because of his involvement in alleged interstate thefts of heavy equipment used in mining.

Hill is suspected of having links to an interstate of having links to an interstate crime syndicated in the south.

In connection with the trial, a federal witness protection program, in which a key witness has been protected, has been used in this case. This is a program of cooperation between state and federal authorities.

Fuel Scarce, Promises, Excuses Plentiful

As of yesterday, Tuesday, no more than excuses, promises and put-offs were forthcoming from the Richmond office of the State Department of Social Services, the agency assigned the mission of processing applications for fuel for the needy.

Excuses such as the huge number of "providers," to be processed and a total and complete breakdown of the computer being used to process the red tape involved in the eventual processing of applications which would lead to payment to the "providers," those who deliver fuel to the needy have been readily available but that is about all.

Processing applications for fuel for the needy has been a most frustrating experience for the personnel of the Lee County Department of Social Services, according to Lucy McNiel who heads the local agency.

She points with amazement to the fact that those who have been approved for fuel, some 948 to-date, have been most patient and understanding. She had, she said, anticipated considerable protest because of the inability of the people in Richmond, to get the program moving before the cold weather arrived. Now, that it is here, she pointed out, some of the more isolated homes are most difficult to reach, even if the fuel could be delivered by the providers.

Just after Christmas, a spokesman for the Richmond office promised that, "checks would be mailed soon, and dated December 24." So far those checks have not arrived in Lee or the surrounding counties.

The "providers", Mrs. McNiel has pointed out, have used up their reserve of operating capital delivering fuel for which they have not been paid. This is especially true, she said, of the smaller ones who deliver coal and wood. Borrowing money with which to operate has become prohibitive because of the current high rate of interest.

With the new year beginning and well into January, the fuel program will have done little to serve its intended purpose unless the now stuck wheels of the bureaucracy can somehow be put into motion before the week is out. Meanwhile, the needy who have qualified for the fuel are patiently waiting.

Students Renovate Berea Building

With inflation expected to continue upward in 1981, colleges and universities across the nation might take a lesson from Kentucky's Berea College.

The private, liberal arts college, known nationally for its student labor program, has a tradition of giving students responsible jobs to accomplish, and involving students in major building renovation projects also is saving money.

Diane Settle, administrative assistant for Berea's Physical Plant operation, reports that last year's student renovation of the 55-year-old Rogers Dormitory produced such good results that the college decided to put students in charge of upgrading Kentucky Hall, which was built in 1917.

"With a renovation project probably taking place each year for the next several years, student labor seems to be the most efficient tool for cutting expenses," she says.

This past September, the 13-member Kentucky Dorm student crew began plastering, painting, laying carpet, insulating steam pipes, installing light fixtures and doing other repair work to the three-story, brick structure located near the edge of Berea's campus.

The renovation team includes three student supervisors who prepare work schedules, order supplies and oversee the other student workers. When the students are unsure about a particular task, Ms. Settle, who is monitoring the project, arranges for a demonstration by a professional craftsman.

When improvements to Kentucky Hall are completed next spring, Berea College will have saved approximately $30,000, the same amount saved by involving students on the Rogers Dormitory renovation in 1979.

But quality is not being sacrificed for economy. Since most of the students working on the project have had experience in construction work, Ms. Settle believes the finished project "will be as good as if done by a professional." The student work is being checked closely by employees of the college's Physical Plant.

The two dormitory projects are not the only major undertakings in which Berea students have been involved. Ms. Settle, a 1975 graduate of the college, was one of several students who renovated the campus snack bar in the summer of 1971. Phelps Stokes Chapel, which houses classrooms and a 1,500-seat auditorium, was built entirely by students in 1905.

Students also helped in the construction of the Edwards and Trades buildings in the early 1900's and dug the foundation for the addition to the Frost Building in 1937.

Instead of paying tuition, all Berea students work 10 to 15 hours a week in the on-campus labor program. The college admits only students who have limited financial resources but are willing to work for a college education. Eighty per cent of the 1500 students enrolled at Berea are from the Appalachian region.

1981 Farm Exports Could Reach $48.5 Billion

The U.S. department of Agriculture expects farm exports to jump from last year's $40.5 billion to a record-high $48.5 billion in fiscal year 1981, resulting in the 12th consecutive year of record export values.

The volume of farm exports is also climbing and forecast at a record 170 million tons, up from 164 million tons last year.

Agriculture officials say export value and volume this year will be shaped primarily by the drought-reduced feed grain, oilseed and cotton harvest, the reduced wheat production and export prospects in Australia and Argentina, and a second consecutive year of poor grain crops in the Soviet Union.

According to the report, feed grain shipments could increase about 3 million tons to 74 million. Small gains are forecast for rice exports. However, export volume may decline for soybeans, cotton, tobacco and vegetable oils.

"Higher prices will likely account for four-fifths of the increase in farm export value this year, with volume increasing about 4 percent," the USDA outlook for exports report stated. Although foreign grain production is up somewhat this year, the 12-percent drop in the U.S. grain harvest--in the face of record export demand--has driven up export grain prices. Wheat prices are expected to be 5 to 10 percent higher than in fiscal year 1980, while corn, sorghum, and soybean prices are projected up about a third.

Agricultural imports are expected to increase by over $1 billion to $18.5 billion in fiscal 1981, leaving the agricultural trade surplus at $30 billion--$7 billion larger than in fiscal 1980.

USDA officials say the increased export activity will be good for the economy and for farm income.

Farmers Know The Problem

Farmers know better than most people how important it is to save energy these days.

They know it takes huge amounts of power to raise the food the expanding world needs...power for machines...power for fertilizers...power for water...power for controlling the environment of animals inside buildings and hundreds of other jobs.

Yet, the word "scarcity" comes up a lot when people talk about supplies of energy to do all this work. This means available energy must be burned more wisely than before.

Success, say scientists, will require precision in the use of energy that has barely been dreamed of in the past.

Raising hogs poses a rough example of the problems farmers face in growing food.

Charles M. Stanislaw, swine specialist, and L. Bynum Driggers, biological engineer, both of North Carolina State University, tell how to solve some energy problems hog farmers face in a chapter of the 1980 Yearbook of Agriculture, "Cutting Energy Costs," published today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

To some, conserving energy on the farm may seem easy.

Simply lower the heat in the pig nursery. Surely that would save energy.

Be careful, caution Stanislaw and Driggers. Drop the temperature too much and the pigs skimp on changing the feed they eat to pork chops and bacon. The animals become chilled and develop diarrhea. They grow less meat. In the end, there's a net loss of energy.

Stanislaw and Driggers show how farmers can save energy by scientifically insulating the walls, ceilings and roofs of hog buildings. Also, they advise, be sure to make the necessary adjustments to allow for the healthy ventilation of gas created by pig wastes.

They say the wide variety of pork-growing equipment requires less energy when correctly used and maintained. Air filters in hot air heating systems should be kept clean and checked daily. This is especially important in the winter, a time when hog buildings tend to be dusty.

Efficient farmers are picky about animal housing for sound reasons.they've learned that a comfortable hog yields more meat than a hog that doesn't feel well. Hence, prudent use of energy resources and other precise management practices translate into higher profits and ore pork per unit of energy burned--a good deal for farmers and consumers alike.

When pigs are uncomfortable, they let you know it.

Let their housing get too cool and they'll pile up against each other or bunch up at the heat source to keep warm. They also may stay along the wall of a pen to avoid cold drafts. Comfortable pigs spread out uniformly.

To get a copy of the 1980 Yearbook, send a check or money order for $9.50 to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, or at a U.S. Government book store in some cities. Members of Congress have limited allotments of copies for free distribution to constituents. USDA has no copies for distribution to the public.

Leisure Should Complement Work

Time is given equally to everyone. Today's individuals have about 22 more years of time than their grandparents to use as an opportunity for leisure.

"Most of us spend most of our time at work--both in the home and outside the home," said Ann M. Lastovica, Virginia State Extension specialist, speaking at a meeting of Virginia Extension Homemakers at Virginia Tech.

"Sometimes our society has left us with the feeling that having leisure time is a problem. We hear the adages 'idle hands are the devil's workshop;' 'work is divine;' 'the essence of man is work.'

The problem we have with leisure time use is in making wise choices for utilizing it. Although great amounts of money are spent on recreation, people still don't have leisure time," she said.

It is a concern as to whether people are participating in recreational activities because they think society expects it of them or whether it is a costly search for happiness.

Leisure time is looked at as left-over time. It is the time after work and after personal maintenance such as sleeping. Because it is viewed that way, it is more often than not lost. If it is not planned into a person's life, it usually is lost between all the other things people do in today's fast-paced society.

Leisure time should be a complement to work time, she said. Humans need a time to be idle. They need some slack time to be used for widening, unfocusing, letting their minds wander. Work keeps individuals narrowly focusing their attention. Leisure time is needed to keep everything in perspective.

She defined leisure as the wholesome use of discretionary time to enhance the quality of life, recommending that people develope a sense of leisure values.

The opportunities for leisure are numerous. Since what is one person's leisure is another's work -- it has to be tailored to the individual, said Ms. Lastovica. All individuals need to develop their values of leisure time based on what they like to do and why that activity would be leisure for them.

What makes one activity a leisure activity for an individual are: it relaxes them; it helps put problems in background; it gives a sense of accomplishment; and a sense of achievement without lessening the value of work, the specialist said.

Individuals need a diversity of leisure interests, too. They need some that are social and some alone, some that are physically strenuous and some that are quiet and restful.

And they really have to enjoy it, said Ms. Lastovica. It is good when it is the kind of activity that people can participate in at all ages so that they can enjoy doing it all their life.

Agriculture And The Reagan Administration

What's ahead for agriculture under the Reagan administration and the first Republican controlled Senate since 1953 will take center stage at the Virginia Agribusiness Council's tenth annual membership meeting January 13-14 at the Hyatt House in Richmond.

Rep. William C. Wampler (R-Va.), ranking GOP member of the House Agriculture Committee, and Dr. Don Paarlberg (sic), who handled important agricultural assignments for Presidents Eisenhower, Nixon and Ford, will forecast the direction in which the legislative and executive branches of government will move on agricultural issues in the 97th Congress beginning in January.

Dr. Paarlberg, nationally acclaimed agricultural economist and professor emeritus from Purdue University, will give the keynote address Jan. 14 on the meeting theme, "The 80s: Feast or Famine?" Governmental assignments have included assistant to the president, coordinator of the Food-for Peace Program, assistant secretary of agriculture, and idrector of agricultural economics for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Congressman Wampler will speak at the awards luncheon January 14 on "Farm Legislation in the 97th Congress." The considerable influence he has wielded on national farm policy in recent years should be greater with a Republican in the White House, said Agribusiness Council executive director Paul Williams.

Thirty-one state policy resolutions and 36 national resolutions proposed by the Council's state affairs and national affairs committees are on the agenda for consideration by the membership. Those adopted will represent the composite views of 40 agricultural producer and business associations affiliated with the Council whose aggregate membership exceeds 80,000 farmers and agribusiness men and women.

Several awards will be presented for outstanding service to Virginia's agricultural community including one each for exceptional reporting of agricultural news in the print and electronics media.

The Council also will elect new officers and directors to manage its affairs during 1981.

By Betty Jean Moore

—Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Before you push those shrunken jeans to the back of the closet; before you call another mechanic to fix the problem the first auto shop left untouched; before you toss out the new toaster that chars your breakfast bread; ask yourself this question: Can I really afford to chalk up another loss to "experience"? Don't write it off – write a letter.

The complaint letter is a means of expressing a consumer problem which is infrequently used – a 1977 survey showed that while two of three consumers had detected product defects within a year of purchase, only three out of 100 actually wrote to the manufacturer.

Consumer specialists, however, recommend that a dissatisfied buyer with a problem write to the manufacturer, dealer, or trade association about the problem. A letter is an effective way of registering a complaint and getting satisfaction.

If you have a complaint, first make sure it is valid; many problems result from improper care or use of the product by the buyer. But if you followed the care instruction for those "preshrunk" jeans that came out of the dryer a size too small, and the salesperson thinks you've just gained some weight, a letter is in order.

Finding out where to write can be the most difficult part of the problem if the address cannot be located somewhere on the product or sales receipt. A reference librarian should be able to help you find the manufacturer's address and the name of its president or consumer service representative. If you are unsure of the product's maker, check with a local Better Business Bureau or consumer protection agency.

Your letter should be brief and informative; try to get all the facts on one page. In the first paragraph, record your name and address; the name of the product; any serial, model, or identification numbers; when and where you bought it; its price; and your method of payment. Then describe the problem in detail but without sarcasm or outrage; venting your anger is not likely to help.

Just as important as the description of the problem is a statement of your objective in writing the letter. Tell the manufacturer exactually what you want done about your problem – that you want the item repaired or replaced, or that you expect a refund.

Finally, explain what you will do if you don't get an appropriate response to your complaint – write to the Attorney General's office, contact the appropriate licensing agency, or call the consumer protection agency. And if you don't get a reply in a month, follow through on your promise.

Never send an actual warranty or sales receipt with a complaint letter; it could be lost. It is a good idea, however, to attach copies of pertinent papers to your complaint.

Not every complaint brings the desired result, but a well-written letter often resolves the problem. So the next time a product fails to live up to its promise, don't write it off. Write a letter.

WHO WAS THAT LADY?

This woman, who lived between 1810 and 1850, traveled in the most prestigious intellectual circles of her time and wrote the highly acclaimed book, "Woman in the Nineteenth Century." She was closely associated with the Boston Transcendentalists and was a friend of Emerson and Hawthorne. Later, as a journalist for the Tribune, she worked for Horace Greeley. She spent her later life living and writing in Italy, married to an Italian aristocrat. Who was that lady?

Jonesville Senior Citizens

—The Jonesville senior citizens would like to wish everyone a happy, healthy and peaceful New Year. We hope this will be a much better year than the one that has ended. We will try to help make it so. 1981 came in a little gloomy with a sprinkling of snowflakes but, the second day of the year found the sun shining brightly, with blue sky, and a few puffy clouds. The temperature is in the 30's. A good beginning for a good year.

—New Year's Day was a good day to stay in and watch the Rose Parade in Pasedena, Calif., via television. This is what I did.

—Rev. C. C. Mize was the guest minister at the Senior Center in Jonesville, December 22. We always enjoy his visit to the Center. He joined in the fellowship of the covered dish luncheon. He was happy to have his daughter and grandson, Mrs. Hiawathia Malgard and Elias, safe at his home from their home in Iran. We are happy for them.

—Grace Davis was in charge of the devotional hour at the Senior Center, December 29. I missed this one but heard that everyone enjoyed the devotions, luncheon, fellowship, and quilting.

—I was away for a week during the Christmas holiday, I drove to Fairview Park, Cleveland, Ohio and spent the week with my daughter, Nadine Baumgardner. We awoke the next morning to a blizzard, typical Cleveland weather. Needless to say, I spent that day in the house. The snow stopped and most roads were cleared.

—Nadine and I spent Christmas day at the home of Greta and Bill McKinney, Lisa and Christopher, in Parma. We were joined by twenty-five or more relatives. I don't know how they did it but Greta and Bill kept everything flowing smoothly throughout the day and evening. Everyone had a wonderful time.

—Christmas night, Nadine and I drove to the Cleveland Hopkins Airport to meet her son and my grandson, Richard Govitz, who flew up from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., to spend a few days. He was ready to go back to the 80 degree weather he left only two and a half hours earlier. This didn't stop our visiting with relatives and friends.

—We visited with Richard's dad and stepmother, Edwin and Jenny Govitz, who live in Wickliffe, with his grandmother Elsie Govitz in Euclid, and his aunt and uncle, Elaine and Joe Sarach in Mayfield Heights. We visited the Norris Scott family in Fairview Park, and a few others in and around Cleveland.

—Then it was back to Florida for Richard and back to Jonesville for me. I came back just ahead of the snow, arriving home New Year's Eve. I drove through snow from Akron to Cincinnati which wasn't too much fun but, the roads were dry the rest of the way home. In calling Nadine, after I arrived, I learned they had two more inches of snow in Cleveland and still snowing. She can live there, think I'll stay in Jonesville. Home sure did look good.

—We extend sympathy to the family of Allie Norie Edens. She was a cousin of Mrs. Pearl Wade and Alfred D. Edens of Jonesville.

—Spending a three-day Christmas holiday with Mrs. Lillie Carroll were her son, Jim and Charleen Carroll of Johnson City, Tn. Her daughter Lorene Terry, Jonesville, and her grandson, Alex Smith, Lexington, Ky.

—Alex Smith, Lexington, spent three days with his grandmother, Mrs. Lillie Carroll, during New Year's. Gaynelle Baumgardner joined them for New Year's dinner. Alex left Friday to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Allie Smith, Maryville, Tn., and his aunt and uncle, Bernice and Credis Key, also of Maryville.

—Mrs. Jerushia Burchett and son Levi (Buddy) Burchett motored to Corbin, Ky. Sunday to visit Buddy's children, Larry, Garry, and Linda Gail Burchett. They took Christmas gifts to the children, one of which was a bicycle.

—Mrs. Jerushia Barchett and daughter, Linda Fee, made a business trip to Middlesboro, Ky. Wednesday. Linda had New Year's dinner with her mother and brother Thursday and visited in Dyden.

—Mrs. Burchett received a call from another daughter, Mrs. Bennie Russell, Augusta, Ga. who was unable to spend the holidays with her.

—Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Willie B. Kelly of Pennington.

—The Jonesville First Baptist Church Choir presented the cantata, "King of Kings" Sunday night, December 21, to a packed house. Mrs. Carlotta Bush was the director and Mrs. Reba Graham was the accompanist. Everyone seemed to enjoy this outstanding cantata.

—Mrs. Ella Mae Marlowe, Mrs. Beatrice Roop., and Mr. Curtis V. Bledsoe remain patients in Lee County Community Hospital.

—Patients admitted to Lee County Community Hospital last week were Mrs. Edna Williams, Mrs. Gerogia Orr, Mr. Joe Bartley, Mr. Andrew Reynolds, Mr. Cornis Woliver, and Mr. Marion Baumgardner.

Exercise extreme care when opening vertical silos, said Glen H. Hetzel, Extension safety specialist at Virginia Tech. The top layer of moldy silage is usually removed by hand and discarded.

If mold spores are inhaled, respiratory problems may result. Headaches, chest pains, breathing difficulties, dizziness and a high temperature are symptoms. Hetzel advised using suitable respirators.

Rye Cove Wins Over Keokee

Jimmy Dishner's Eagles from Rye Cove are getting it together at last. After bowing to Coeburn in a close game, last Tuesday, they came back to maul Keokee this past Friday night. The score was 67-51.

This game was played at Keokee and both teams will meet again on February 3rd in the Eagles den. Roger Morris' crew will most likely be out for revenge since this is their worst beating to date.

Randy Spears, a 6'3" junior scored 20 points to lead the winners, while Randy Hunter and Roy Lane combined for 30 points, 17 and 13 respectively. Spears also was high man defensively pulling down 13 rebounds. Rye Cove now stands 4 and 5 on the year and will host the Thomas Walker Pioneers this Friday night.

The Crusaders who built a 15 point cushion at the end of three quarters had to hang on tough for the win as the Bobcats were running and gunning in the fourth quarter and outscored Dryden 29-18 to make the final score close.

The Crusaders record is now 3 and 5 overall, and 2 and 1 in the district. They will host the Jonesville Bulldogs this Friday night.

Pennington was led by Bobby Ledbetter who poured in 29, followed by Gary Pendergraft who tossed in 18. With the loss, the Bobcats record falls to a 2 and 2 mark overall, and 2 and 1 in the district. Kevin Short was once again the leading scorer for Twin Springs scoring 22 points, while Teammate Tony Rudder canned 12 tallies. The winners shot 60% from the free throw circle, making 14 of 23.

Darrell Vanhuss was the only player to break the double digit bearer by scoring 11 points. The Eagles were only 3 of 11 at the charity stripe for 27.3%. The free throw line is what beat the Eagles as they just couldn't make the charity tosses.

The Twin Springs Titans also won the junior varsity contest by the score of 38-31.

Does interest on checking mean kissing your old account goodbye?

Not by a long shot.

If you've already got your checking account with us, just dial our number and say, "Hello, I'm so-and-so and I want interest." Then put your feet up and relax.

We take it from there. Presto change-o, you've got interest. Without changing your checks. Without changing your account number.

Without even enduring any paperwork, outside of signing the card we send you.

It's devilishly attractive. But before you succumb, be aware of a few tiny conditions. Like having to maintain a minimum balance. Or limiting the number of checks you write.

It doesn't take a financial genius to keep it all straight, but it does take someone with a lot of financial savvy. A Full Service Bank.® We understand modern checking. You can't beat our professional judgment when it comes to matching your individual needs with the kind of account that's absolutely right for you.

Forget the kisses. We'll settle for a hug.

IT WAS GOOD TO SEE YOU AND YOUR MOM RUNNING IN THE RELAY RACE.
MOM ALWAYS SAYS "TO FEEL YOUNG, ASSOCIATE WITH YOUNG PEOPLE!" BUT TOMORROW SHE'LL BE SAYING "TO FEEL OLD, TRY KEEPING UP WITH THEM."
I'VE ALSO HEARD THE SAYING "THE BEST USE OF LIFE IS TO SPEND IT FOR SOMETHING THAT OUTLASTS LIFE, LIKE YOUTH!"

Parents help 4-H members learn needed skills, knowledge and attitudes to develop as responsible adults. Parents are so important that a special Parent's 4-H Pledge has been written.

I pledge my HEAD to give my child the information I can, to help him see things clearly and to make wise decisions.
I pledge my HEART to encourage and support my child no matter whether he has successes or disappointments.
I pledge my HANDS to help my child's club; if I cannot be a leader, I can help in many equally important ways.
I pledge my HEALTH to keep my child strong and well for a better world through 4-H, for my child's club, our community, our country, and our world.

Letter:

Dear Sir:

The recent deaths of John Lennon, Dr. Halberstram and others at the hands of criminal assassins have unleashed a new barrage of anti-gun propaganda. The fuzzy minded liberals and their more clear thinking radical friends of the left are dusting off and employing the same old time-worn cliches and emotional appeals which have been used over and over in the past so often that they really don't deserve serious consideration.

As is patently clear, disarming the citizens of this country will certainly not reduce the indicents of crime but on the contrary will encourage the criminal by rendering his victim defenseless. One doesn't have to be a Harvard graduate to understand this so what is it that motivates the gun control crowd?

Perhaps the answer can be found in the word "control". Historically it has been demonstrated that to impose dictatorship on a populace there are several factors which must be controlled, which include the police force, the citizen's arms and his mobility. Of these gun control is the most important as illustrated by the fact that one of Hitler's first acts in solidifying his control over the German people was to confiscate their arms.

The founding fathers clearly foresaw this danger when they added the Second Amendment to the Constitution which states in no uncertain terms that "the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed". The intent and meaning of this statement is clear regardless of any interpretations made by leftists, lawyers and Supreme Court judges.

We, the citizens, will maintain our Second Amendment rights at all costs and we expect our elected representatives to live up to their oath of office and protect that Constitutional right.

Sincerely,
James B. Hutt, Jr., M.D.

1981 Feed Grain And Wheat Programs

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee county ASC Committee, recently commented on the provisions of the 1981 ASCS Feed Grain and Wheat Programs. According to Myers, Compliance with the Normal Crop Acreage (NCA) allotment, Cross Compliance and offsetting compliance will not be requirements of the 1981 programs.

"Farmers will not be required to restrict their acreages of grain crops in order to receive full program benefits," he added.

By timely filing a report of his planted acreage, the producer will be provided target price protection, disaster and prevented planting protection, and commodity loans.

However, NCA crop acreage planted for 1981 in excess of the 1981 NCA or the 1980 farm planted acreage will not be used in determining a farm's NCA in future years.

It is felt that no restrictions are necessary on 1981 planted acreages due to export demands and the short 1980 carryover supply of feed grain crops which were very adversely affected by drought damage.

Hunters, Hounds Bag Deer Limit

A group of Lee County hunters, using hounds, bagged their limit of deer in the Blue Ridge Mountains, last week, with little difficulty

Before their return, they had formed an organization to be known as "The Great White Hunters Hunting Club."

Those involved in the hunt were Michael Woliver, Scott Woliver, Ray Bruner, Dana Woliver, Ross Bruner, Ray Woliver, Lowell Swanson, William Carter and Maynard Thompson.

Several of the hunters had gone into the Blue Ridge Mountains earlier to set up camp and locate hunting areas east of the Blue Ridge

Swanson was able to bag his deer without the help of the hounds He and Carter then returned to Lee County prior to the time the deer hounds were brought in

When the pack of deer hounds, consisting of four Walkers and one Beagle arrived, the hunters reported that deer began to appear whene none had been seen before Dana Wolver handled the hounds and drove the deer for the hunters. Many deer out of shooting range were seen and a number raised by the dogs were killed by other hunters

Some of the deer were reportedly trailed for several hours before being brought down.

Trophy winner for the hunt was Michael Wolver, with a huge six point buck

The success of this two day hunt, Thursday and Friday, January 1 and 2, the hunters said, was accredited to the excellent pack of deer hounds as well as the determined hunters, who all returned home with plenty of venison

Sunday School Lesson

PROCLAIM THE KINGDOM

Every true Christian is an ambassador for Christ, and it is his duty to proclaim Christ, the living Word, and the written Word, the Bible, to all whom they can reach.

Matthew 9: 35-38

On a tour of Galilee, Christ sought to minister to the bodies, minds and souls through teaching in the synagogues, preaching the gospel of the kingdom, healing all kinds of diseases, comforting the sorrowing, and raising the dead. Observing the condition of the masses, Christ's heart was moved with compassion because of their dire needs. This going out of the inmost soul in tender love and earnest longing is one of the great needs of present-day Christians, with reference to the Christless multitudes around them. While the harvest is ripe at home and abroad, there are not enough laborers in the vineyard of the Lord.

Christ gave a very definite command as to how to obtain more laborers. He said "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest." If you are going to pray earnestly and fervently for him to send forth laborers, you must be willing to be among those whom the Lord may send.

Matthew 10: 1, 5-15

The twelve disciples whom Christ called and commissioned to work for Him, He empowered to heal all the maladies that afflicted the human body, even reaching to the control and expulsion of demons.

In His charge to those whom Christ called and commissioned, our Lord told them both where not to go and where to go. He forbade them to go to the Gentiles, and then commanded them to go "to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." The message which He charged them to proclaim as they went was that "The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

In addition to proclaiming the message that their Lord gave to them to deliver to those in need of it, Christ instructed the disciples to minister to the physical, mental and spiritual needs of those whom they contacted. Inasmuch as the Lord Jesus was sending them forth to put into practice what He had taught them by precept and example. He encouraged them greatly with the assurance that He would provide for them sufficient power to perform the task to which He was assigning them. Christ never sends forth into the world on their own any whom He calls into His service. He always provides adequate strength for those whom He calls and commissions for service to His name. The disciples were sustained in the knowledge that the love, wisdom, and power of God would be available to them in the pathway of duty when the need arose.

Those Christians today whom Christ has chosen, called and commissioned to carry the gospel to those who have never heard it are certainly comforted and challenged by the scriptural assurance that they will be the recipients of the presence, protection, power, and provision of their wonderful Lord and strive to obey Him to the very best of their ability as He opens new doors of service to them.

Sawmill Fire Damage Estimated At $100,000

Things were humming Monday morning at Ab Roberts' Sawmill, located west of Jonesville, on Old U.S. 58.

Lumber and logs were being loaded on trucks and there was plenty of other work going on.

You would never know that the operation had been paralyzed by a fire unless you happened to look up the hill to where a pile of twisted metal and timbers that was once the main mill, could be seen.

Wednesday morning at approximately three a.m., County Deputies Danny Hensley and Donnie Combs had discovered the fire in passing along the highway and alerted the Jonesville Fire Department as well as Ab Roberts, owner and operator of the mill. Roberts is one of the two largest such operations in the county.

Despite the effort made by the Jonesville Volunteer Fire Department, the fire had gained too much headway to be brought under control.

The main mill, a Frick Timber Tiger, and a 1979 Chevrolet truck were both lost in the fire. The truck was insured. The mill was not.

Monday morning, after having time to review the entire situation, Ab Roberts, surrounded by family, friends and fellow members of the logging business, was found sitting quietly in his office, making plans to be "partially back in operation by March 1, if the weather permits." He had located a mill, used for a time, that will, when completely overhauled and set up will give him a more modern operation than the one lost to fire.

He made it clear Monday, that he would keep his employees, some 20 of them busy every working day during the time the milling operation is idle, if they want to work.

He has also made arrangements to meet his obligations to his customers. Four smaller mills scattered over the county will mill his logs and the finished product will be moved on to the customer.

There are also contracts with loggers, working in the woods, providing logs for the sawmill. Yes, they too, will continue to work and send the logs to the other mills until the Ab Roberts operation is again in full operation.

Known as a man who meets his obligations, Ab Roberts made arrangements to meet those obligations before he started his search for machinery and equipment with which to rebuild his milling operation.

The loss, he estimates, will amount to approximately $100,000. This is machinery and equipment. It does not include the cost of keeping employees, suppliers and customers going in the same manner as if the mill were in full operation.

Insurance? The '79 Chevrolet truck was insured. The mill was not.

With a shrug and a smile, Roberts pointed out that insurance on a saw mill, located in a rural area is almost prohibitive. He had thought about insurance when he installed his new mill some years ago. He had consulted with an insurance agent on the spot. The decision was not final he just never did fully decide to insure the mill.

His lack of a decision on the insurance was perhaps, based to some extent on his experience and that of his father, Fred Roberts; his grandfather Dave Roberts and his great grandfather Don Roberts, all sawmillers. In fact his great grandfather, Don Roberts had operated a mill in the Blackwater area in the early days. This particular mill was powered with a water wheel. The saw used with this water powered mill was known as a sash saw. The metal blade was stretched in a frame. The teeth of such a blade were shaped similar to the hacksaw of today. It cut only in one direction.

Back to the insurance Ab Roberts is known to some as a kind of philosopher. He opined that if the mill had been fully insured, some folks would have thought and perhaps said, the fire was deliberately set. Now, that the mill had burned, he is sure that the question "Why didn't he have insurance," will be raised many times.

Well, his great grandfather, grandfather, and father never suffered loss from a sawmill fire and Ab Roberts had never had such a fire until this one. He figures that over the years he may still be ahead of the game so far as insurance is concerned.

Albert Roberts, now just passing the age of 50, has been in the sawmill business since he can remember. Starting with no money but with a good reputation, he started out with a $600 outfit purchased with money he borrowed. By 1959 he was doing very well and, moving with the times, he set up his sawmill and had the logs brought to him. As the years passed, he kept abreast of the times with methods and machinery. The Frick Timber Tiger was of the most modern design when it was bought. This mill, so far as the sawing operation was concerned, could be operated by one man. Roberts could sit before the control panel of the mill and by pushing buttons and moving levers he could move the logs onto the track, turn them to any position and saw them into lumber of any dimension he desired.

The mill Roberts had in mind installing will be even more modern in design and it will do more things better than the mill lost in the fire.

Even with a better set up, he cannot see the fire as a "blessing in disguise." The added expense brought about by the loss of time and the loss of production from his own mill will most certainly not be a profitable time for him.

Albert Roberts is a man who places a high value on friends and friendship. This incident, he pointed out, gave him a good indication as to the number who do consider him to be a friend. Since the night of the fire there has been a constant flow of friends to see him. They have offered any and all types of assistance. An almost continuous ringing of the phone brings more messages of offers of assistance and concern.

Meanwhile, outside the office, in the log yard, the machines are humming. Lumber is being loaded, headed for the customer. Logs are being loaded. They are being hauled to the smaller mills who will process the timber for Roberts' Sawmill customers. The logs will continue to move from the woods to these other mills. The work will go on.

Sitting by the phone, with a view out the window so that he can watch the entire operation and keep it moving smoothly, Ab Roberts is calmly going about the business of answering questions, directing the entire operation and making plans for the future.

Taking time out to talk about his recent loss, he also has the time to look at the big picture. "We have had a big loss," he said, but we are still lucky. Just think of the many people that have lost everything by fire!"

Albert Roberts sawmill, located west of Jonesville, on Old U.S. 58, was destroyed by flames early last Wednesday morning. The cause of the fire was not known. Sheriff's deputies, following their investigation ruled out any possibility of arson. The loss, estimated at $100,000 would, Roberts said, have been considerably more had not the Jonesville Volunteer Fire Department rushed to the scene. The department fought the blaze in freezing weather for approximately three hours, Roberts said.

16-Year-Old Girl Implicated In Attempt To Get Gun To Jail Inmate

A spokesman for the Lee County Sheriff's Department has indicated that a warrant would be served on a 16 year old girl, charging her with attempting to help Bernard Webb escape from the Lee County Jail. The attempt was made earlier this month.

Arvil Webb, 18, and a nephew of Bernard Webb, who is in jail, have already been charged. He was released to the custody of his mother after bond was posted. Arvil Webb and a juvenile were apprehended near the jail as they allegedly attempted to get a gun, ammunition and drugs into the jail.

Bernard Webb was indicted by a Lee County Grand Jury in September of last year. He was arrested the same day. He has been charged with the alleged contract for hire killing of a Georgia business man. Webb and Robert L. Herring were indicted by the Grand Jury for the murder of Swainsboro, Georgia business man David M. Hill. Herring is now in prison in Tennessee, on another conviction.

Webb is scheduled to go on trial in Lee County Circuit Court February 9.

No Cooperation, No Case In Shooting, Janeway Says

There is a good possibility that no charges will be filed in connection with the shooting of a Keokee man last week. Charlie Janeway, Lee County Sheriff's Department investigator, said Monday, that, so far, he had been unable to get the shooting victim or those present when the shooting occured to give information.

Robert Pennington, 44, is listed in satisfactory condition in Lee County Community Hospital. He suffered two wounds, one in each shoulder, from a 22 caliber pistol.

The "family fuss," as Janeway termed it, took place at the home of Orrie Pennington, in the Reeds Creek community, where the others involved were apparently visiting, Janeway said.

Curtis Rivers, 70, the father in law of Pennington, was also hospitalized for treatment of a head wound sustained when he was struck by a heavy ash tray, Janeway said.

Also at the scene in addition to Ora Pennington was Pennington's wife, Verla Pennington.

Pennington left the scene after the shooting, Janeway said, to get help at a neighbors house at approximately seven p.m.

Sheriff's deputies Chuck Hall and Bobby Parsons answered the call.

Janeway said that unless one or more of those present decided to cooperate, it would be useless to attempt to prosecute. He indicated that he was hopeful that some one would eventually decide to cooperate and bring the investigation to a satisfactory conclusion.

Fuel Program Beginning To Move

Funds for fuel for the needy should arrive in the County today, according to Mrs. Lucy McNiel who heads the Lee County Department of Social Services.

She said that the State Department had informed her that checks to these "providers" should be in the mail today.

Well over 1100 such applications have been processed for the needy of Lee County. Since mid December, the program has been stalled in the state office in Richmond.

The computerized system, it has been reported was causing difficulties. Getting a satisfactory response from the state has been difficult despite the fact that the local county offices have done an excellent job of processing the applications and forwarding them on to Richmond.

Fuel dealers, at the beginning of the program delivered fuel in emergency situations with the expectation that payment would be forthcoming. The delay, on the part of the state office, has caused a cash flow problem for these small, local fuel dealers and many have been unable to continue this practice of extending credit for deliveries.

It has been especially difficult for the small coal and wood dealers of this area who have a limited amount of operating capital.

Local welfare departments were instructed by the state department to begin taking applications December 1. As the program progressed, it became apparent that the state department was becoming delinquent in processing the work and getting the checks out to the

Parson Jones

One of the things that used to bother me as a kid was how a black cow eats green grass and then gives white milk and yellow butter. For years I looked for the answer. Then I became a preacher and people continued to stick me with tough questions: "Who made God?" "If God is so loving, then why is the world in such rotten shape?" "How come little babies die?" "How do we really know the Bible is true?" And so on and on the questions go and where they stop only God knows

Would you believe that for years I actually tried to answer these questions. Take the question. "Why do little babies die?" I would answer, "The ultimate goal of life is Heaven anyway, and babies just get to take a shortcut." Sometimes I would say, "We may not understand it, but God is working out His plan." It never occurred to me at the time to be perfectly honest and say, "I really don t know!

Now that I'm older, I feel absolutely no compulsion to protect God! He is old enough, strong enough and smart enough to protect Himself. Nobody is going to knock Him down, or cause Him to resign, so why should I worry? Now when people ask, "Why do babies die?" I say, "I don't know" When they ask, Who made God?" I reply, "I'm in sales, not management

It s a wonderful feeling to just let God be God, and me be me I was never called by God to prove anything, but to preach and demonstrate His loving presence Obviously the rest is up to Him

CARD OF THANKS

In loving memory of Bessie Kinser. We wish to express our sincere thanks to each one who donated to the church in Mrs. Kinser's name.

She is at rest from her labor and her works does follow on after. Even in death her thoughts were of the church. Not only in the monetary gifts that was given, but in the many lives she touched. We have lost a true and good friend. She will be greatly missed by the church and every one who knew her. One who loved God and his cause in deed and truth, not just in thought and word. I pray that we might all leave as good a testimohy behind. That we might lift the cross of Christ up to a lost and dying world, and endure as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

Thanks again for your gifts to the Darby Baptist Church.

Headstart Council Meets At Clinic

The Headstart Policy Council meeting was held at Western Lee County Health Clinic on Tuesday, January 6th, with Miss Betty Jean Moore, County Extension Agent, as guest speaker.

Miss Moore, using slides for illustrations, brought to the attention of the group the many ways that advertising affects a person as consumer, and suggested many helpful ways that a family can save economically by being aware of ways to save, to recycle, and to know how to buy needed commodities.

She gave several down to earth household hints on ways to save and preserve food and energy.

Miss Moore suggested important questions to consider before making purchases, such as, Does it meet my family's needs? Do I need more information about these products, and should I check before purchasing them?

The Council was appreciative of Miss Moore's sharing her expertise with the group. In addition to Mr. Sam Cecil and Mrs. Mary Rasnic, parent Coordinator, Virginia Sias, Sec., Beulah Johnson and Viola Emmett, representatives to the Council, Jeanie Cole and others representing the Head Start Parent Units were present.

Mrs. John Seale Hosts UMW

The United Methodist Women of Morgan Memorial Church met on Thursday evening January 8th in the home of Mrs. John Seale, with Mrs. John Hounshell, president, in charge of the program, entitled "Rejoice!"

After prayer by Mrs. Nancy Gibson, Mrs. Billie Lou Smith read Romans 12:1 15 from both the King James version and the New English translation. Mrs Hounshell then led a discussion with those present sharing in a brief study of the Purposes of the organization of UMW

Thoughts were expressed of the ways we, as one Body in Christ, have different gifts to share, and as we seek to know God, and our lives are transformed thereby, we make a difference by creating a climate of love, support and concern, joyfully giving of ourselves in our homes, our community, our nation, and our world as children of God, and sisters and brothers in Christ.

Each one present encouraged the other by sharing various things for which she had cause to rejoice in 1980!

As each enjoyed refreshments prepared by the hostess, Mrs. Seale, expressions of happiness and joy continued for the many ways that God had blessed the Morgan Memorial Church this year, a part of Christ's entire Church throughout the world, for which praise and rejoicing are due to God the Creator and Sustainer of His Children.

New Travel Magazine Offers Virginia Facts

A new edition of "Virginia Scenic Historyland," a travel guide to Virginia and its attractions, is now being distributed throughout the state and into areas of the eastern United States that are Virginia's most productive tourist areas

A project of the Virginia Travel Council, the new magazine features a full color photograph of the State Capitol on the front cover and 57 pages follow with the kind of information about the state that the traveler needs. It also is proving popular with Virginia residents.

Practically every Virginia community is mentioned, along with the historical and recreational attractions in the vicinity and lesser known points of interest. Those interested in golf, fishing, skiing, hiking, camping and other outdoor activities will find valuable information in "Virginia Scenic History land." Important annual events are listed, toll information is provided and it includes what to expect in the way of weather.

Distribution will be through travel offices east of the Mississippi River and along the Eastern Seaboard, through the offices and information stations of the Virginia State Travel Service and will be featured at all out of state shows and promotions of the Virginia Travel Council. Single copies will be mailed to individuals who send 50 cents for postage and handling to the Virginia Travel Council, Post Office Box 15067, Richmond 23227. They join an elite group of students selected from more than 700 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Insurance Rates Vary— Shop For Them

In a time of inflation, everybody's insurance coverage should be checked to see if it is adequate. If individuals decide to purchase more insurance, they should shop among the many insurance firms and compare rates for the same coverage, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist Glen H. Mitchell.

"Typical automobile insurance for a man 45 years old may vary from $235 to $785 annually, more than a 200 percent difference," said Mitchell who is a consumer education specialist.

Insurance rates vary considerably because the Commonwealth of Virginia has an open competition insurance rating law.

To help insurance buyers, the Bureau of Insurance of the Commonwealth of Virginia has prepared a "1980 Virginia Auto Insurance Consumer's Guide."

Individual copies can be obtained by calling the toll free Bureau of Insurance number, 1 800 552 7945, or by contacting the local Virginia Cooperative Extension agent or the local Division of Motor Vehicles office.

The Consumer's Guide wisely leads the consumer through the mysteries of why buy auto insurance; what types of auto insurance are required; what types of insurance are available; and how much insurance is needed.

Readers are cautioned that price is not the only factor in choosing an insurance carrier.

"Even the person who has been purchasing insurance for a lifetime will find the information gainful. It certainly brings up some points to be discussed with prospective insurance sellers," said Mitchell who is a member of the faculty of Virginia Tech's College of Home Economics. It also tells how to shop for auto insurance.

The Bureau of Insurance provides free professional information and complaint services which are available to all residents of the Commonwealth. Richmond area residents should telephone 786-5815, and other residents call 1-800-552 7945.

Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

I cannot talk to my parents about this, so I am writing you. Last night my brother came into my room and asked to borrow $40. I told him I did not have it, as I had spent all my savings for Christmas. He got very angry and took my new portable radio. My parents were not home. A couple of hours later he came back without the radio, but he seemed much more relaxed He told me not to tell my parents he took it or he would beat me up. If I tell my parents that I lost the radio they'll beat me up. Wht scares me is I think my brother needed the money because he's on drugs. If I tell my parents, they'll call the police or send my brother away. He is 17 and I really love him. What should I do?

BIB

DEAR SIS:

If you don't tell your parents, you'll be carrying far too heavy a burden on your young shoulders. It's safe to assume they love your brother as much as you do. Their first thought will be to help him, not hurt him, so speak up.

DEAR DEBBIE:

Can you think of any reason a wife would give her husband a sex manual for Christmas? I treated it as a gag but I was very hurt. I always thought our sex life was perfect.

SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED:

Think again.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I really like this boy of 15. He came over my house Christmas. I gave him a present but he didn't give me anything. He is in my class at school and he lives on my block. He is also friends with my brother. He really came to see my brother at Christmas but I gave him the present anyway. It was a book Don't you think he should have given me something, too? If he didn't have anything for me when he came over he could have gone out and bought something and given it to me the next day. Also, how can I find out if he likes me? Most of the time he pretends not to notice me.

LOVESTRUCK

DEAR LOVESTRUCK:

Maybe he's not pretending. At your age attachments can be very one-sided. As for the gift, you should not have given it with the expectation of getting one in return. Next time, let the giving be its own reward.

DEAR DEBBIE:

My daughter is 13. She bought me a very beautiful designer scarf for Christmas. We don't have much money, as I am divorced and get very little child support (when I get it, that is). Her allowance is small. When I chided her about buying me something so expensive, she confessed that she had 'shoplifted it. I have not been able to sleep since. I will not rest until I can repay the store, but I can't very well walk in there and tell them my daughter is a thief. I thought of returning the scarf anonymously through the mail but this is a small town and I'm afraid they may somehow trace it back to me. How can I handle this?

ANXIETY-RIDDEN

DEAR RIDDEN:

You're missing the forest for the trees. The problem is not how to return the scarf but how to get to the root of your daughter's problem. You're obviously ill-equipped to deal with this. I therefore suggest you contact your state mental health organization and ask them how you can arrange affordable therapy for your daughter AND yourself.

Federal Influence Accompanies Federal Funds

The General Assembly's oversight of federal funds has increased substantially since the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission (JLARC) began a comprehensive study of federal aid to Virginia, according to Delegate Richard M. Bagley (D-Hampton), JLARC chairman. Bagley made the statement in releasing a JLARC report on federal funds in Virginia. The study, which included an interim report issued in January 1980, was mandated by House Joint Resolution 237 introduced by Delegate Gerald L. Baliles (D-Richmond) at the 1979 Session.

"Both the legislative and executive branches are paying more attention to the impact and influence of federal funds than in the past," said Bagley. He noted that the legislature has insisted on more accurate estimates of federal funds by agencies, and that Secretary of Administration and Finance Charles B. Walker has issued new policies that should result in improvements in budgeting federal funds. The JLARC interim study had reported that the State's federal fund expenditures exceeded those appropriated in the 1978-80 budget by more than one-half billion dollars.

While the State has benefited from almost $2.4 billion in federal revenue during the past biennium, Bagley noted that federal influence accompanies the funds and there are problems associated with receiving federal dollars. One concern is the fact that the State spends 30 cents to match each federal aid dollar. Paramount among the concerns, however, are the numerous requirements that accompany federal funds.

In addition to specific program requirements that are frequently enacted with a new aid program, 59 "cross-cutting" requirements apply to almost every federal program. These requirements sometimes carry a high cost, according to Bagley. He recalled that during the 1980 Session it was necessary for the legislature to enact an expensive auto emission inspection program to comply with a cross-cutting clean air requirement. Had the inspection program not been adopted, he said, sanctions costing the State hundreds of millions of dollars could have resulted.

The Joint Legislature Audit and Review Commission was created in 1974 and consists of members of the House of Delegates and the Senate. Its primary mission is to assist in improving the effectiveness, efficiency, and accountability of State programs through legislative oversight. For further information, contact Ray D. Pethtel at (804) 786-1258.

Heart Attacks -- Medicine For Layman

What you know about heart attacks could save a life. While there are many different symptoms of a heart attack, knowing what to watch out for could signal you to get medical help immediately - sometimes a quick call can mean the difference between life and death.

Symptoms of heart attacks can vary To help you know what to watch for, the National Institutes of Health has a new, illustrated booklet that tells how the heart works, what to do in case of a heart attack, and ways to decrease your chances of an attack. For your free copy of Heart Attacks, write to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 586J, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Chest pain is the most common symptom of heart attack. Some describe the pain as vicelike, or constricting, as if a rope were being pulled tightly around the chest. Others describe the feeling as a heavy weight pressing or crushing down on the chest. Most often the pain is in the mid chest, but sometimes it radiates to the neck or left shoulder or goes down the left arm.

Heart attack patients often experience weakness and shortness of breath. A patient with a heart attack can appear pale and cold, but may be sweating profusely. So, if you or someone with your experiences any sign of a heart attack, call for help or get to a hospital for medical attention as quickly as possible.

But, what if someone suddenly collapses? A life saving technique called cardiopulmonary resuscitation, or CPR, can help save the person's life. CPR is a combination of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and closed chest heart massage to maintain the patients' breathing and circulation.

If you are interested in learning CPR, call your local chapter of the American Heart Association or the American Red Cross.

How can you decrease your chances of heart attack? The three major factors associated with heart attacks are high blood cholesterol, cigarette smoking and high blood pressure. Experts advise smokers to quit -- your risk of heart disease will drop to nearly normal in just a year. If your blood pressure is high, take your prescribed medicine, decrease the salt in your diet, and lose weight, if necessary. If your cholesterol is high, try eating lean meat, poultry, fish, vegetable oils, and cottage cheese. Avoid foods high in cholesterol and saturated fats such as whole milk, butter, cream, eggs and fatty meats. And, after you check with your doctor, exercise daily.

When you order a copy of Heart Attacks (free), you'll also receive the free Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the Catalog lists over 200 selected Federal consumer publications.

Question My mother, a widow in her sixties, recently spent a whole day with a beauty consultant having herself "made over." I think she's too old for this. Should I be concerned?

Answer There is no age limit to feeling good about one's appearance. Cosmetics are beneficial to people throughout their lives. According to an independent study conducted by research psychologists the use of cosmetics helps people retain a lively appearance, to communicate vigor and competence, and to grow older gracefully with a sense of dignity and pride.

Particularly in making the transition to senior citizen status, it is critical to feel self-confident and attractive. Your mother is asserting her vitality and her commitment to life. So applaud her, and plan to do the same when you're her age.

Sunday School Lesson

LEARN FROM THE LORD

Fearless John the Baptist condemned the sin of Herod Antipas, the king, for living in open adultery with Herodias, whom he had taken from her husband, Philip. The wicked king had John the Baptist incacerated in the fortress of Macherus near the Dead Sea.

Matthew 11:2-6

After some months elapsed, John the Baptist's confinement relaxed sufficiently for his friends to be permitted to communicate with him. When his friends visited him, they discovered that his long imprisonment had sapped his courage and he was depressed. To encourage him, they told him about the wonderful works of Christ, but their report caused him to wonder.

John the Baptist sent two of his followers to the Saviour to inquire if He were really the Messiah for Whom he had been looking. Christ told the messengers to inform John the Baptist that His works were sufficient proof of His messiahship. Christ told them to inform him that the deeds which He performed – giving sight to the blind, enabling the lame to walk, cleansing the lepers, enable the deaf to hear, the dead being restored to life, and the poor receiving the gospel – could not have been done by anybody except the Messiah.

Matthew 11:25-30

In a prayer of thanksgiving and praise to the Father, Christ thanked Him for the revelation of spiritual truths to the humble, but which was hidden from those who were wise in their own conceits and too proud to come to Him in penitence and faith. One can never reach the acme of spiritual growth until he recognizes the truth which Christ taught in verse 27, namely, that one can never know the Father except through the mediatorship of His Son.

Christ wanted all who were laboring to keep the law of Moses, but were unable to do so, to cast off the yoke of the law, receive Him as their personal Saviour, experience forgiveness of sin and deliverance from the fear of judgment, become His disciples, learn from Him, and work with Him. Learning from Christ involves more than just following His example. There must be a real submission to His will, instruction and guidance.

Christ promised that His yoke would be easy and His burden would be light. A yoke is made for two, and, as this expression is used in this passage, it is eloquent with the fellowship of the believer with his Lord. It is not always easy for the Christian to serve Christ, but, being yoked with Him, the Lord Jesus makes the burden light, as His yoke is always padded with divine love. those who are yoked with Christ move easily, for His will is right and best, and He carries the heavy end of the burden. In keeping step with the Lord and working with Him, we find rest in service.

It is truly wonderful that our great and gracious Saviour and Lord offers the rest of pardon, of peace, of protection, of power, and of provision to all who will receive Him.

SSI Eligibility Re-Examined

People receiving supplemental security income (SSI) payments because they are 65 or older or blind or disabled have their eligibility re examined each year

SSI is a Federal program, administered by social security, that provides a basic cash income to people 65 or older or blind or disabled who have little income and little in the way of resources or assets.

The purpose of the re examination is to insure that people getting these payments continue to be eligible and are receiving the correct payment amount.

The amount of the SSI payment depends on the person's other income and his or her living arrangements People getting these payments are required to promptly report any change in their circumstances that can affect their payment rate or their eligibility.

The annual re examinations are part of the continuing process designed to ensure that SSI payments go only to those people who are eligible. Payments are stopped if a person does not cooperate with social security.

SSI payments are made from general funds of the U.S. Treasury. They are not made from social security taxes.

Warner Re-Submits Legislation For New G.I. Bill, Hopes Early Action

Virginia Sen. John W. Warner today re-introduced legislation to establish a new and highly flexible "GI Bill" of educational benefits for men and women who serve in the armed forces.

Warner, in Senate floor remarks on the first day of the 97th Congress, said his measure was intended to improve the quality of career service men and women, to give them incentive to remain in the military, and to increase general education levels.

"No single factor could do more to induce substantial numbers of high quality personnel to join the military than a new GI Bill," Warner said. "It would also help to retain qualified individuals in our military services.

"I believe it was a serious mistake for the Congress to terminate the GI Bill in 1976. We are paying a heavy price in the declining quality and overall aptitude of our military personnel and in the increased costs due to higher attrition of personnel who are from lower mental categories.

"Congress should quickly reinstate a GI Bill."

Warner said his bill would provide four basic options of educational assistance for men and women who enter the service after next September 30.

They are.

1. Up to 18 months of education in a college, junior college or trade school for a person who enlists for three years of active duty and commits to three more years in the active reserves.

2. Up to 36 months of college education for one who enlists for four years and commits to four more years in the active reserves.

3. Up to 36 months of college education for persons who remain on active duty for six years, with a waiver on the active reserve commitment.

4. Up to 36 months of college education for a spouse or child of a person who has served 16 years of active military duty.

The maximum benefit under the Warner bill would provide payments covering tuition and fees plus $300 a month for living expenses, which Warner said would cost about $1 billion a year, "a fraction of the amount of taxpayers' funds being spent by the Education Department in loan and grant programs for higher education."

Warner said much of the cost of his GI Bill "would be offset by lower recruiting and training costs, as well as savings accruing from lower attrition rates resulting from higher proportions of recruits who are high school graduates or are from higher mental categories."

"Also, in a very real sense, a GI Bill would pay for itself over the long term because of increased tax revenues resulting from improved earning potential of those who gain a higher education as a result of it," Warner said. "This was clearly the case with the GI Bills after World War II, the Korean conflict and the Vietnam War."

Citrus, Apples, Pears And Canned Cling Peaches Plentiful For January

Citrus fruits, fresh apples, winter pears, canned cling peaches, pork, broiler fryers, milk and dairy products will all be in plentiful supply during January, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture marketing specialists.

This year's production of oranges hit a new record an expected 276 million boxes, which is 31 percent more than the 1978 79 crop and 9 percent more than last year's record crop.

Although January pork production rates will average 7 to 9 percent below the record high rates of last year, the marketing specialists said, pork supplies will continue plentiful. Broiler fryers will also be plentiful during January, with production 3 to 5 percent above last year.

Beef and turkey supplies will be adequate during January. Milk and dairy products will be plentiful, milk output will be record-high for the month. Most of the increased milk output will flow into butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk production.

Because of the record orange crop, there will be heavy supplies of frozen concentrate, chilled and canned orange juice. There will also be adequate supplies of frozen, chilled and canned grapefruit juice.

Along with the record orange crop, there will be plentiful supplies of grapefruit, tangerines and tangelos.

There will be plentiful supplies of fresh apples and winter pears in January -- both crops are setting records. The greatest increases in winter pear output are in Anjou and Bosc varieties, as new orchards start to bear.

The 1980 production of California cling peaches was the largest since 1977. The supply, including heavy carryover stocks from the 1979 crop, are 8 percent above last season's supply.

During January there will be plentiful supplies of raisins, dried prunes, almonds, filberts, walnuts, rice and dry beans and peas. There will be adequate supplies of: major canned non citrus fruits, potatoes, sweetpotatoes, onions, processed vegetables and pecans.

Canned spinach and green peas are the only major items that will be plentiful. Despite the fact that processors carried over heavy supplies of processed vegetables into the 1980 81 season, sharply reduced packs have produced smaller supplies of such major canned vegetables as snap beans, sweet corn, cucumber pickles and tomatoes. Inventories of frozen lima beans, carrots, cauliflower, corn-on-the cob, cut corn, green beans and spinach are sharply below last year. But, frozen snap beans and broccoli supplies are above year-earlier and average levels.

There will be light supplies of peanuts. The 1980 crop, drastically reduced by heat and dry weather, is the smallest crop since 1964.

Plentiful is more than enough for requirements; adequate is enough to meet normal needs; and light is less than adequate, not enough for normal needs.

WIC Program Said Worthwhile

The Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC Program) is proving that preventive health care is more cost beneficial than cure.

A Harvard University study found that for every dollar spent on a WIC participant, three dollars are saved that would be spent toward hospitalizing a low birthweight newborn and its mother.

The study also showed that pregnant women receiving WIC foods had fewer low birth weight babies than a similar group of eligible mothers not enrolled in the Program.

Low birth weight results in a longer hospital stay for the mother and baby, and often results in disabilities requiring long range treatment. It is an established causative factor in cerebral palsy, and has been suspected in epilepsy and various forms of mental retardation. Death of low birth weight infants during the first 28 days of life are 30 times more frequent than deaths of newborns of normal weight.

Created to meet the needs of this high risk population, the WIC Program is available in each of Virginia's local health departments. WIC provides supplemental foods to pregnant, postpartum and breastfeeding women, infants and children up to age five, who have a nutritional need and are income eligible. Its goal is to serve as an adjunct to good health care during these critical period of growth and development to help prevent health problems and improve the health status of these persons.

Pregnant, postpartum and breastfeeding women and children under age five receive food packages, which include milk, cheese, eggs, vitamin C-rich fruit juice, and, iron fortified cereal. For infants, WIC provides iron fortified infant formula, iron fortified baby cereal and fruit juice. In addition to foods, WIC also provides nutrition education to teach participants how to plan, prepare and maintain a well balanced diet.

In late November, Congress approved legislation to extend the WIC Program through September 1984, but current funding limitations have restricted Program expansion. As a result, maximum caseload levels have been assigned to all of the State's health districts, and will be in effect until the Fall of 1981. Eligible persons with the greatest need will be served to the extent possible with available funds, particularly pregnant and breastfeeding women and infants.

WIC Program food cannot be counted as income when applying for other kinds of Federal assistance and will not affect a family's qualifications for food stamps, school food programs or public assistance. The Program is available to eligible persons regardless of race, color, religion or national origin.

For more information contact your local health department or the Virginia State Health Department, WIC Program, 823 East Main Street, Richmond, Virginia 23219, or phone (804) 786 3420.

18th Annual Summer Conservation Employment Program Announced

High School students who will graduate during the spring of 1981 are eligible to compete for the coveted and limited number of positions which will become available in the annual Summer Conservation Employment Program, according to Francis N. Satterlee, Chairman of the Selection Committee in the Commonwealth. The Virginia Committee is responsible for determining which students from the Old Dominion will participate in the program during the national phase of the competition.

The program is participated in annually by the United States Forest Service, agencies under the United States Department of the Interior (including the U.S. Park Service, Fish and Wildlife Service and the Bureau of Land Management) and the Izaak Walton League of America (IWLA). The IWLA is the agency which coordinated the program on a national basis for the participating organizations.

Virginia high school seniors who plan to pursue studies in such areas as forestry, soil conservation, fish and wildlife, outdoor recreation, geology and related fields are eligible to apply for the limited number of positons which will become available. Each student making application should state specifically their career goals and fields of interest. The other requirements include the following: applicants must be 18 years of age by June 15, 1981 and must be willing to accept assignment ANYWHERE in the United States. Additionally the applicant must be willing and able to provide their OWN transportation to the job site and be responsible for their own board and room. Candidates must be in good health as positions are performed under field conditions and require physical stamina for outdoor labor in some intances. A solid academic record is required. College students are not eligible for the program.

Positions which will be filled in National Forests, National Parks, a wildlife refuge or in a research laboratory include such jobs as lab assistants, forestry aides, fire guards, brush crews, survey teams and laborers. Attempts will be made to coordinate the position assignments with the specific career goal of successful applicants.

Persons chosen to participate in the program will be Civil Service employees with the corresponding benefits. Salaries paid generally are in the GS2 range of the government pay scale. However, it is generally considered that it is the practical experienced gained by the participant rather than the pay that is really the long range benefit of the program.

TO APPLY. Candidates should provide the following the chairman of the Summer Employment Selection Committee in their state at the address below:

1. A completed U.S. Government Form 171 is available at Federal agencies or Federal Job Information Centers of the Office of Personnel Management listed in the white pages of local telephone directories under U. S. Government. In Virginia, contact can be made in: NORFOLK, Federal Building, Room 220, 200 Granby Mall, 23510 or by phone at 804/441 3355. In the D.C. METRO AREA: 1900 E. Street, N.W., 20415 and 202/737 9616.

2. A transcript of his or her high school record.

3. A written recommendation from an adult, other than family, who knows the candidate and his or her qualifications for the program.

4. A letter from the candidate indicating the following: specific college or career plans, extracurricular activities in high school as indications of leadership and initiative; any conservation oriented work performed, both paid and volunteer; reasons for seeking employment through the program; and instances of members of the immediate family employed by one of the participating agencies (relationship and name of agency should be clearly stated).

High school seniors interested in the program should submit their applications and the supporting documents to IWLA Summer Employment Program, P.O. Box 11104, Richmond, Va. 23230. Deadline for RECEIPT (time material must arrive by) of the applications is not later than 5 p.m. on Friday, February 20, 1981. For information pertaining to the program, contact Mr. Satterlee at the above address or by calling 804/257-1000.

Results of the competition will be released from Washington, D.C. early in the spring of 1981.

Virginia Farm Bureau Concludes Convention

The Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, the state's largest farm organization with almost 70,000 member families, concluded its state convention at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond with policy discussions and elections of its top officers for 1981.

Re elected by acclamation was President S.T. Moore, Jr., of South Hill. Moore assumed the office in January when Robert B. Delano resigned to accept the presidency of the American Farm Bureau headquartered in Park Ridge, Illinois.

Also reelected by acclamation were the organization's other two top officials: Vice President Clarence L. Tardy of Lexington and Women's Chairman Betty Latane Walters of Richmond.

In addition, two members of the board of directors were reelected: J.B. "Buster" Hill of King William and John M. Richman of Woodstock.

Newly elected to the board of directors were R. Samuel Coleman of Prince Edward and M.E. "Bob" Roberts of Floyd.

The convention which met December 7 9 began with discussions of environmental and natural resources as they affect agriculture. A panel consisting of representatives from both the private and public sectors warned that farmers must organize to meet the growing threats from environmentalist movements. It was summed up by private consultant Rosser Payne who said "farmers must become land use planning experts" to meet the growing threat of those who want to tell farmers how to use their lands and waters.

Addressing the convention, President S.T. Moore, Jr. took up the environmental theme and warned that agriculture must be on guard against the regulators. "Farmers must have the right to control their own lands and waters," he said.

Moore also warned that, despite the election of a presumably more sympathetic administration in Washington, farmers would have to work hard to hold onto their gains. "The other side hasn't given up and quit," he said.

Much the same message was brought on the closing day from Vernie Glasson, the American Farm Bureau's National Affairs Director. He said the AFB's successful legislative record could be improved under the new Congress only if farmers continue to "remind our legislators we're watching them."

The convention ended Tuesday evening the 9th at a banquet featuring former Olympic gold medalist Bob Richards who decried the current tendency toward gloom. Using examples from the athletic world, Richards emphasized that "champions are the ones who don't give up." He told the gathering of delegates and invited dignitaries that the next 200 years of American history would see "unbelievable opportunities for achievement of goals and happiness. After all, this is the one country in the world everyone else wants to come to. Yet, with all this opportunity, we still see those who go through our schools and think their main accomplishment is that they never cracked a book."

In awards ceremonies early in the convention, Miss Sharon Janelle Thacker of Isle of Wight County was crowned the 1981 Miss Virginia Farm Bureau. Other award winners were Michael Beahm of Botetourt as Discussion Meet winner. Joey and Theresa Doyle of Emporia were named Outstanding Young Farmers, and Michelle Corridon of Rockingham won the Essay Contest and a $100 savings bond.

Voting delegates to the convention are chosen by county farm bureaus. The 1981 convention will be held in Norfolk.

The basketball season is a most interesting one from the standpoint of competition. The entire situation is still wide open and there are several good games on tap every Tuesday and Friday night for weeks to come. The fans will make a big difference in any game. Timely Amusements Mirrored 16th-Century View Of The Universe

By Madeleine Jacobs, Smithsonian News Service

Twenty-three hundred years ago, guests invited to the homes of Egyptian royalty might have whiled away the evening quaffing wine served from a golden goblet by an ingenious mechanical figure of Bacchus. Today's well-heeled counterparts might entertain their guests with elaborate electronic games and gadgetry, not to mention home video centers.

From the affluent ancients to the present-day prosperous, the wealthy classes throughout history have shared the pursuit of pleasure. In their quest, they have generously applied time, talent and technology to create devices to amuse and amaze.

But neither the ancients nor the modern-day rich could begin to compete with the 16th-century European princes and potentates who spared no expense to hire the best scientific minds and craftsmen to invent and build objects of wonder, pomp and play.

Especially popular in the courts of German Renaissance nobility were exquisitely crafted automata - self-moving and self-propelled human figures, animals and vehicles. These distant ancestors of today's robots greeted visiting dignitaries at state receptions, played a role in drinking games at boisterous revelries and diverted guests at ceremonies and festivities.

Picture the wedding celebration of one nobleman, Johann Wilhelm of Julich, whose marriage was recorded for posterity by an artist of the time. A 1587 woodcut depicts a sumptuous banquet table on which mechanical horses, elephants, birds, camels, lions, bears, unicorns and a whole menagerie of real and mythical creatures strut, sway, parade and prance among platters laden with food. In fact, the table is so cluttered with the fantastic devices that guests at Wilhelm's nuptial feast must have had great difficulty finding anything to eat.

These devices, like others created during the era, not only moved; some played music or re-created animal noises. And because their motions were programmed by clockworks hidden in their innards, many automata could even tell guests when it was time to go home. Indeed, automata and clocks were integrated from the earliest times.

Craftsmen and clockmakers constructed hundreds of automata for the ruling classes during this period. Because they were made of sturdy materials -- silver, bronze, copper, iron, brass and even gold -- many of the devices have survived in private collections and museums throughout the world.

More than 40 of these works built between 1550 and 1650 are now on display, along with 80 other German Renaissance master clockworks and timepieces, at the Smithsonian's Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. The exhibit, "The Clockwork Universe," sponsored in collaboration with the Bayerisches National museum in Munich, gives a rare glimpse of a century when the modern world was born.

"We look at these objects today as trivial playthings," Dr. Otto Mayr, curator of mechanisms at the Museum and co-organizer of the exhibit, says. "But we tend to forget that they were based on a great technological achievement -- the development of the mechanical clock.

"Moreover, the automata and clockworks are reflections of the thoughts, feelings and hopes of the thinkers, the nobility and the ordinary people of the period. Rarely in history has a machine so directly expressed and, in turn, affected the intellectual climate of its time."

In Mayr's view, clockworks represented "the sharpest conceivable contrast to the prevailing reality of the times, which were marked by the collapsing political and social order of the Middle Ages, by wars of religion arising out of the Reformation and by the multitude of revolutionary, scientific new ideas and the social unrest which they unleashed."

The mechanical clock was invented a little before 1300 in Western Europe. By whom and precisely where are unknown. Prior to its invention, people had relied on the sun and its movements to tell time, but within a century of its creation, nearly every town of consequence boasted a mechanical clock in its town hall or church tower.

At the heart of the clock were a series of mechanisms which, when driven by a falling weight produced a steady rotary motion that was employed for time measurement. An additional device announced the hours by a pre-programmed number of strikes on a bell. During the next 200 years, other refinements such as the coiled spring were added to clockworks to improve their accuracy and portability.

"The design elements solved complex problems with a mechanical sophistication that has yet to be adequately appreciated," Mayr says of the mechanical clock. "Its parts had an order, a rationality and a predictability lacking in the real world. The clockworks and automata had their own unchanging plan of action, a concept of order that the people admired during this uncertain era.

At first, automata took the form of simple 'jacks' - hammers in human shape that struck bells to tell time. Later, as the nobility hired clockmakers and scientists in their courts, automata became complex simulations of animals and humans.

Above all, automata were for the amusement of the wealthy. Th ridiculous, Mayr says, though they all shared the age-old ambition of creating lifelike animation. Examples of both extremes are displayed in the exhibit.

At one end are timepieces and automata which must have served to heighten religious feeling: madonnas, crucifixion and flagellation scenes. Most automata did not aspire to such lofty heights, however.

For sheer frivolity, automata were devised as drinking vessels and games. In one jewel-encrusted gold masterpiece combining elements of both, the goddess Diana is seated on a stag, whose head lifts off to reveal a drinking vessel. Mayr surmises that the entire assembly, propelled by a hidden clockwork in the base, rolled across a banquet table, coming to rest in front of a lucky nobleman, who by custom had to drain the vessel. After several hours of such activity, a stately dinner was no doubt transformed into a raucous revelry.

While many of these automata seem amusing to us today," Mayr says, 'the people of the time took them all very seriously. Automata and clockworks were attempts to think mechanistically, and eventually automata were used as a means to explain life mechanically.

"Thinkers of the period, notably Re'ne' Descartes, began to view living things as clockworks and to account for the body functions in mechanistic terms. In the world picture created by these pioneers of modern science, living creatures were automata and the universe was a clockwork."

Eventually, clockwork driven automata became increasingly elaborate. In the 18th and 19th centuries, they took the form of intricate mechanical theaters and figures, but with the advent of the Industrial Revolution, machines began to lose their mystery and magic. Indeed, the utilitarian technological achievements of the 19th century often seemed more fantastic than the most lifelike mechanical manikins. By that time, the devices were no longer restricted to the province of the wealthy; they had found other ways to pass the time.

VA Pensioners, Does Your Income Meet Agency Requirements?

The Veterans Administration has issued its annual reminder that it's time for VA pensioners to recompute their income for the year to determine whether it meets agency requirements.

The reminders were in the form of notices sent with November pension checks, according to VA regional director W.H. Highfill, Jr.

Nationwide, about 620,000 veterans age 72 and older who receive VA pensions under laws that were in effect prior to December 31, 1978, got the notices.

Highfill said this group of veterans did not elect to transfer to the new "improved" pension plan that went into operation two years ago. This plan provides higher rates of benefits but also counts certain income in computing pension eligibility that isn't considered under the "old" pension plan.

The fact that they did not convert their pensions to the "improved" plan does not exempt them from the basic income limits of the law, Highfill said.

They must still report any changes in the number of status of their dependents and any income increase which brings them over the limits.

They do not, however, have to report general rate increases in social security benefits because VA automatically records them.

Pensions are paid to wartime veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities who meet income limitations, and to their eligible widows and children.

World Agricultural Production Unchanged In 1980; Per Capita Output Down

World agricultural production in 1980 (excluding the People's Rupublic of China) equaled the production of 1979, when output dropped for the first time in 7 years. The 3-percent decline in 1980 production in the developed countries was offset by a substantial increase in the developing countries and a slight gain in the centrally planned countries. This year's static total production translates into a 2-percent decline in per capita output, to the lowest level since 1972.

However, agricultural output in the developing countries increaased 4 percent to a new record, with south and Central America, South Asia, and Africa accounting for the increase. the 7-percent increase in production in South and Central America was about double the 20 year trend increase there. Agricultural production in North Africa was generally strong, and some African export crops showed output increases. However, food production in much of Sub-Saharan Africa was weak, especially in East Africa and the Sahel, and food aid requirements there are estimated to have increases to 2 million metric tons.

Output in the USSR and Eastern Europe increased slightly but remained 4 percent below 1978. Soviet crops were hurt by poor spring and summer weather, and livestock was limited by reduced forage and feed supplies.

Agricultural output in developed countries fell 3 percent, the first time in 6 years wihtout an increase. Most of the drop resulted from a 6-percent decline in the United States, because of drought in the Corn Belt, the Atlantic Coastal Plain, and the Southwest. Production was off sharply in Australia, where drought reduced the grain crop by 28 percent.

Global food production increased about 1 percent in 1980. The output of developing countries rose approximately 5 percent, while that of developed countries fell 2 percent. World per capita food production decreased 2 per cent overall, declining 3 percent in developed countries and 1 percent in the USSR and Eastern Europe, while increasing 1 percent in developing countries.

While the economic recession in the developed countries as a group probably ended by the last quarter of 1980, the world economic outlook for 1981 is unfavorable. Little or no growth took place in the developed countries in 1980, and only marginal improvement is expected in 1981. Unemployment is expected to climb during 1981, but inflation may abate somewhat with restrictive monetary and fiscal policies. With the hostilities between Iraq and Iran shrinking petroleum reserves, the petroleum outlook is for a near balance of supply and demand, with the possibility of some further price increases.

World output of cereals-wheat, coarse grains, and milled rice-- is estimated to total 1,400 million metric tons, slightly above the reduced level of 1979/80 but 3 percent below the record crop of 1978/79. The decline can be attributed largely to the reduced U.S. corn crop and to smaller wheat harvests in Australia, China, and India. Outside the United States and the Soviet Union, cereal production is up about 4 percent. World cereal use is expected to increase nearly 1 percent and exceed production by about 40 million metric tons, causing a stock drawdown for the second year. World cereal carryover in 1980/81 may reach a low of 10.6 percent of consumption, compared wiht 13.4 percent last year. World grain trade, excluding trade within the European Community, is expected to increase about 5 percent to 209 million tons in 1980/81, to support continued higher consumption.

Global production of protein meals, fats, and oils is expected to decline in 1980/81. World meal production in forecast to decline 10 percent, while output of fats and oils is likely to be down 3 percent. Large world stocks will partly offset reduced output; total protein meal supplies will drop less than 3 percent, and total fats and oils supplies may be up marginally.

Meat production in the major producing regions increased in 1980 and is expected to increase again in 1981. Larger poultry output and possibly larger beef and veal production are likely to more than offset the decline in pork. The 1 percent increase in world milk production in 1980 will probably be repeated.

World sugar production in 1980-81 is likely to increase modestly. Production in Brazil is expected to expand to over 8 million metric tons, mainly because of larger area. With global sugar consumption near last year's 90 million tons, world stocks may be drawn down about 3 million to 23.24 percent of consumption.

World cotton production will be down about 2.5 percent to 64.0 million bales. The 25-percent decline in U.S. output, resulting from summer drought which cut yields sharply, will more than offset the anticipated 4 percent gain in foreign production.

Fiscal 1981 will be another good year for U.S. agricultural exports. A 20 percent increase from last year's $40.5 billion is expected, resulting in the 12th consecutive year of record exports. Higher prices will likely account for four-fifths of the value increase. Export volume may total 170 million metric tons, compared with last year's 164 million. Reasons for the increase in value of agricultural exports include higher prices due to reduced U.S. production of grain, oilseeds, and cotton; reduced wheat production in Australia and Argentina, wheat export competitors of the United States; an unprecendented Chinese entry into world grain markets; and continuing production shortfalls in the Soviet Union.

Copies of the World Agricultural Situation (WAS-24) will be available in a week to 10 days. For further information, contact Dewain Rahe.

Army Announces Special Loan Forgiveness Program For Students

Today's United States Army has some good news for anyone who qualifies for and has a government funded education loan under part B or part E of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Under the United States Army's special loan forgiveness program, the Army will pay off designated portions of student loans made after October 1, 1975 for individuals who qualify.

For enlisting in the Regular Army, the government will pay one third of the loan or $1,500, whichever is greater, for each year of military service in the Army.

For enlisting in the Army Reserve, the schedule of loan repayment is 15 per cent or $500, whichever is greater, for each year of service.

The Army's loan forgiveness program is an addition to other Army enlistment incentives, not a replacement. Individuals who qualify will still be eligible for other options like enlistment bonus, station of choice option, participation in the Veteran's Educational Assistance Program (VEAP) and more.

The loan forgiveness program is over and above all pay and other benefits of Army service. And by enlisting in the Army, an individual can accumulate up to $14,100 in education benefits to use after serving.

For more details about the Army's special loan forgiveness program or about any other United States Army program, contact an Army recruiter. He's listed in the Yellow Pages of the Telephone Book under "Recruiting."

Yellow Ribbons Everywhere

Pennington Elementary School students' reaction to the freeing of the Hostages was, perhaps, typical of most of the people of the United States of America, yesterday.

Yellow Ribbons were displayed everywhere.

With the hostages winging their way toward freedom, a happy, holiday mood was reflected on the faces of most people.

The hostages, 50 men and two women, had been held captive in Iran since November 4, 1979. During this time the United States had made a constant effort to secure their release but to no avail.

The timing and actual release of the hostages was typical of the manner in which the Iranians had conducted themselves throughout the entire time that they had held these people captive. It was apparent from the start that they, the Iranians, would be most difficult to deal with.

Taking advantage of the situation in every possible manner they made every effort, and they succeeded, in prolonging the agony. Finally, to hold the world's attention to the very last minute, the release was made when outgoing President Carter could not travel to Germany to greet the hostages as the President of the United States because of the inauguration of President Ronald Reagan. At the same time, it was apparent that they hoped to direct attention to the hostages and away from the inauguration ceremony.

Regardless of the action of the "Barbarians," as Reagan had termed them, Tuesday, January 20, was a great day for the people of the United States of America.

It Pays To Keep Trying —

"The squeaking wheel gets greased." This familiar saying may have been what the folks who live on State Road No 641, east of Jonesville, had in mind when they decided that they had waited long enough for a suitable road.

For years and years they had struggled through mud in the winter time and dust in the summer time to get back and forth over rutted, rough 641. Sometimes the going was impossible.

Finally, with Roy Garrett as their spokesman, they took their case to the board of supervisors; to the highway department and finally to their representatives in Richmond. It was a long drawn-out process but they finally got results

Last summer, three quarters of a mile of blacktop road was completed on 641. For this they were most grateful and they showed their appreciation by turning out to express their thanks to Senator Buchanan and Delegates Cantrell and Quillen during their recent visit to Lee County. It should be noted that we don't always take the time and make the effort to show our appreciation. The folks on 641 did!

Not only did they say, "Thank you," to their representatives, but they proceeded to point out that it would take just over another one half mile to complete the job

According to Garrett, the representatives pleged to see that an effort would be made in this session of the General Assembly to get the necessary funds for completing the project included in the upcoming budget.

There is no doubt that the folks who live on State Road 641 will continue their efforts until the project is completed.

Jump Starts Dangerous

Jump-starting a dead car battery can be dangerous, said Glen H. Hetzel, Extension specialist in safety at Virginia Tech.

"Thousands of battery explosions happen every year," said Hetzel, "and almost two-thirds of the accidents result in eye injuries."

To prevent such potentially blinding explosions, the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty member recommended following these safety tips from the National Society to Prevent Blindness:

--Before attaching the cables, put out cigarettes, matches and lighters. A spark can ignite hydrogen gas from the battery fluid.

--Don't let the cars touch each other. Put on the parking brakes. Set automatic shifts to park and leave manual transmissions in neutral. Turn off the ignition.

--If fluid in the dead battery is low, add water. Check for ice in the fluid; never try to jump-start a frozen battery.

- Jump-start only if both batteries are of the same voltage. American cars have either 12 or 6 volt batteries. Owners of foreign cars should check their operating manuals for emergency starting directions.

--To attach the cables, connect one jumper cable clamp to the positive pole of the dead battery and the other end of the same cable to the positive pole of the booster battery.

- Connect the second cable to the negative pole of the booster battery. Then clamp the other end of that cable to the engine block of the car with the dead battery -- as far away from the battery as possible. Don't let the clamps touch; they can create a spark.

First start the car with the good battery, and then the disabled car.

- Remove the cable attached to the entire block and the booster car's negative terminal. Finally disconnect the positive cable from both batteries.

Protective goggles will keep battery fragments and acid out of the eyes should the battery explode. If battery acid does get into the eyes, immediately flush them with water for 15 minutes, making sure the eyelids are held open.

nance concerning the penalty on delinquent taxes. It had been understood that the intent of the most recent tax ordinance imposed a $10 penalty on each parcel of land, which, treasurer Luke Jones told the board, imposed an undue hardship on certain individuals who happen to be delinquent in paying taxes on several parcels of land. Now, the penalty is set at $10 for a land owner, regardless of how many parcels of land he owns.

-The county voted to pay, as it did last year, obligations incurred in connection with the fuel program, with the understanding that the county would be reimbursed when the funds are made available from the state office.

-Following a presentation by building inspector Robert Moore which included a letter from the attorney general as well as quotations from the Code of Virginia, the board voted to support Moore in his effort to require the Powell Valley Electric Cooperative, when providing electric service to a mobile home, to provide additional service equipment adjacent to the home.

Moore said that the Powell Valley Electric Cooperative had chosen not to comply with this regulation.

He said that a mobile home should not be serviced with power until a permit is granted following inspection by the building inspector.

Supervisor D.J. Barker said, "He (Moore) is qualified, we hired him and we should back him." The board passed the resolution as requested and instructed that a copy of the resolution be sent to the Cooperative.

Yesterday, Powell Valley Electric Cooperative manager Ralph Miner was contacted concerning this matter. He commented that his organization was working within the regulations of the National Code. "We are attempting to provide safe electrical service as economically as possible," he said.

Commenting on Moore's interpretation of the code, Minor said, "He's wrong -- he's reading the Code the way he wants to -- like some people read the bible."

Miner said that the Cooperative served five counties, most of which are in Tennessee. "They have an excellent inspection system in those counties and they do not require that such regulations be imposed," he said.

He did add that the County Board of Supervisors has a perfect right to pass such a regulation. He did point out that it will add from $75 to $100 to the cost of installing electric power for a mobile home.

-A federal program which would provide training for delinquent juveniles, potential drop-outs, at the Lee County Vocational School has allocated $30,000 for Lee County. The board voted that the school board have the authority to administer this program as well as the federal funds.

A request from Charles Tabor was denied that the board pay legal fees incurred by him during recent litigation in which he was acquitted. Tabor was a county deputy at the time the incident ocurred, thus his request for financial aid from the supervisors.

Three members were appointed to serve on the program for the handicapped Dink Chappell, Richard Hays and Charles Bledsoe, with county administrator O'dell Wilson serving as coordinator.

-It was pointed out by commissioner of the revenue Silas Glass that 16,000 parcels of land must be transferred to reassessment cards by March 31.

Brenda Beard was appointed Delinquent Tax Collector for a two months period.

Supervisor Freeman requested that the Keokee Fire Department be granted $5,000 at this time. Pointing out that a previous resolution had allocated $25,000 for each volunteer Fire Department in the county. So far, he said, Keokee had not asked for or received any county funds.

The Board approved the grant.

-Ronnie Montgomery requested that the board place on the agenda for the next meeting the consideration of a section of the Code of Virginia which provides for adding $1.00 to all civil law suits filed with the court. This, one dollar, he said, would help was the best prepared in recent years. He cited extensive research conducted by the International staff during recent months, and the amount of input from the rank and file, District and Local Union levels.

"In these negotiations, we must carry a policy to the bargaining table to ensure that the rank and file coal miner can afford to support a family, to ensure that he or she has adequate insurance coverage, and to ensure that he or she shares in the profit from their labors," Church said.

to bear the expenses of the law library in the courthouse. This, he said, would make it a public library, available to all. The question will be considered at the next meeting.

-A motion that the vice-chairman be authorized to sign checks and bills in the absence of the chairman was passed.

-Representatives of the Good Neighbor Ambulance Service, established after the county had turned this service over to a private concern which has since failed, has been serving the county. A request was made that the board grant this non-profit organization $7,000. This amount, it was explained, would tide the organization over until it could be approved for Medicaid funds for services provided. The request was denied on the basis that this was a special meeting, and that all of the supervisors were not present and under the circumstances it could not be done.

The Good Neighbor Ambulance Service is the only ambulance service available to the people of Lee County at this time.

The meeting was then adjourned. The next regular meeting will be held the first Thursday of February.

New Incentives Available For Investing In Trees

The private, non-industrial landowner investing in trees as a crop will get his investment money back much sooner if he takes advantage of a new forestry incentives law, according to Southern Forest Institute. Landowners can now recover all planting costs within seven years of planting, as opposed to waiting until the harvest -- sometimes 30 or more years later, according to the Southern Forest Institute.

Southern Forest Institute's director of forest resources, Don Smith, says, "These new incentives could make a difference in the nation's long-range timber supply if enough landowners take advantage of them. It's something that was badly needed if we're going to meet the future demand."

The U.S. Forest Service has estimated the country's demand for wood and wood products will double by the year 2030. Studies published recently by the Forest Service, the Forest Industries Council and the National Forest Products Association all point to the private, non-industrial landowner as vital to the answer of our future demand. He owns 58% of the forests nationally and 73% of the South's forests. It is estimated that he replants only one acre out of nine following a timber harvest.

The new law has two major provisions. The first is an investment tax credit. The taxpayer may subtract 10 percent of his planting capital expenditure, up to a limit of $10,000, from taxes owed. In addition, the law has an amortization provision whereby he may amortize planting costs by making deductions over a seven year period from his gross income. Again, the total limit is $10,000.

Direct costs of seeding, planting or replanting trees qualify, including costs for site preparation, seeds and seedlings, labor and tools.

For additional information, landowners should contact their state or extension forester.

Southern Forest Institute is a division of American Forest Institute.

As fuel for diesel engines, soybean and sunflower seed oil compare satisfactorily with diesel fuels from the standpoint of maximum power and specific fuel consumption. However, some problems have been noted, said Easley S. Smith, Extension farm machinery specialist at Virginia Tech.

Clogging of fuel filters, choking of injector nozzles, and sticking piston rings have been seen in a number of tests.

TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY
PUBLIC NOTICE

TO ALL CONCERNED Notice is hereby given that the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) has received a request from the Commonwealth of Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation for approval, under Section 26a of the Tennessee Valley Authority Act of 1933 as amended (16 U.S.C. § 831y-1), of plans to construct a 48 foot box culvert having three 10 by 6 foot barrels to replace the existing State Route 623 crossing of Jones Creek If the request is granted, the facility would be located within the 100-year floodplain of Jones Creek TVA has determined that there is no practicable alternative to the proposal that would avoid siting in the floodplain and because of minimal impacts on the floodplain, the no-action alternative has been rejected

Preliminary notice of this proposal was published November 19, 1980 in this newspaper and resulted in no public comment TVA has reviewed the proposal and has found that it is compatible with the character of the area No significant environmental impacts related to the construction and maintenance of this facility were identified Construction and maintenance would be conducted in such a way that no significant adverse impacts on natural and beneficial floodplain values are expected The floodplain would not be irreparably damaged by construction activities, altered significantly in volume and rate of flow or significantly reduced in flood storage capacity

TVA will defer issuing an approval of plans for the box culvert until February 9 1981 Prior to that date, interested members of the public may submit for consideration further written comment on the box culvert to:

Cancer Crusade Plans Made

Plans were begun Thursday, January 15 for the 1981 Lee County Cancer Crusade Mr and Mrs. Joe Lyle, co-chairmen for the Crusade met with a group of area Crusade captains at the American Legion Hall in Jonesville The purpose for this meeting was to inform these volunteers of their duties in the residential crusade which will take place in April Mr Rich Moran, area representative for the American Cancer Society, attended the meeting and spoke to the group about residential crusades. A very informative film was shown to aid Mr Moran in his presentation

Mr Lyle conducted a question and answer session which brought out many important aspects of the cancer crusade After the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Lyle Everyone was very appreciative of Mr and Mrs Wildel Canter for preparing the American Legion Hall for the meeting

This was a very productive meeting and everyone seemed to think that the '81 Crusade is getting off to a good start

Thought For The Day

The resurrection of Christ gives us hope not only for this life but for the life to come

Appliance locations can play an important role in energy efficiency, said Jerome R. Smith, agricultural engineer at Virginia Tech. Locate freezers in unheated spaces and water heaters in heated areas.

The proper inflation of tractor tires is important. Easley s. Smith, Extension agricultural engineer at Virginia Tech. noted that lower tire pressures [12 psi] give better traction with less slip, but higher pressures are needed for heavier loads, such as when handling large round bales of hay

By George . . . .

The number of post offices in Lee County has declined as have schools and churches.

A recent review of information concerning Lee County, published in the 1884-85 edition of CHATIAGNE'S GAZETTEER of Richmond list the post offices and most of the postmasters. A total of 30 post offices are listed. Is there any one in Lee County who might be able to list them without going to reference material. For example, there is Zion's Mills, Hau, Fritts, Brick Store and many, many more.

In 1880, the population was listed as 14,192 white; Indians 2; colored 922, for a total of 15,116. Jonesville, even then the county seat had a population of 277.

The vote of the county November 6, 1883, was 1,273 Democrats and 1,292 Coalitionists.

Value of real estate in 1883 was set at $1,005,727.50. The value of personal property was $629,712.50. State tax on real estate was $4,022.91. State tax on personal property was $2,518.

The county tax levy was 20¢ per $100 and the same for the school tax.

In that day and time the county was well blessed with newspapers. There was the Lee County Sentinel, J.M. Morgan, editor. It was located in Jonesville. Progressive Age - J.B. Adams, Slemp. Western Advocate, R.J. Christian, editor, Slemp.

It is interesting to note the number of physicans located in the county in that day and time. Take a guess and let us know what you think!

Letter To Editor

Editor of the Powell Valley News:

First, I want to express my gratitude to you for your willingness to publish the views of your readers:

Time has a way of revealing whose ideas were right and whose were wrong, with this in mind I wish to submit this little thing I wrote a few years ago, and to ask if the Roman Holiday for us is over, I am sure it would be hard for anyone to deny that we were having one. I would like for you to publish it for my friends to reflect on. What think ye?

Very Truly Yours,

The State Of The Nation

By E. T. Rains

Ed. Note: Mr. Rains, a former resident of St. Charles, now resides in Kingsport.

If I were a writer or a poet, and God would give me the lines,
I would set it all down, so others would know it is the sign of the times.
When men become heady high minded, traitors, spiteful, boastful, and proud,
And go hog wild and lose their reason, becoming belligerent and loud.
The teachers have taught atheist theory, we Christians know is absurd.
And hot beds of hersy have poisoned men's mind, making them doubt God's word.
I fear it's too late to correct the mistakes men in high places have made.
The termites of hell have eaten away the foundation the patriots have laid.
Perhaps dirty hands have handled our flag, causing destruction and war.
And many poor boys have died far from home; they never did know what for.
These times were foretold by Daniel of old, by Jesus, Peter, and Paul.
The lives of poor men have been traded for lust; I fear we are in for a fall.
Every man neighs at his neighbor's wife; they lust and think it no wrong.
Never think, oh man, your Nathan won't come, and sing you a sad little song.
Men drink and glut and revel in smut, and steal and cheat and lie.
And smoke cigars and drive fine cars, while brave boys fight and die.
I started something I am too small for; there is too much to say.
But I am confident, America is now having a Roman Holiday.

SLAPSTIX

A HOUSE DIVIDED IS A SPLIT LEVEL

Report From Richmond

By Orby L. Cantrell and Ford C. Quillen

The 1981 "short" session of the Virginia General Assembly began on January 14, 1981 in Richmond, Virginia. Delegates Orby L. Cantrell and Ford C. Quillen are happy to be back in the House of Delegates representing the people of the First Legislative District.

The Virginia constitution empowers the General Assembly to meet each even-numbered year for not more than 60 days and not more than 30 days during odd-numbered years. The 30-day session may be extended for up to 30 additional days with two-thirds approval of both Houses. If the volume and complexity of this year's proposed legislation does not exceed expectations, this "short" session will adjourn the last week in February.

This is Orby's 30th year of service in the General Assembly and he is now the ranking House member in terms of seniority. Ford is also a well experienced legislator and is beginning his eleventh year of representation.

Orby is chairman of the Roads and Internal Navigation committee, vice-chairman of appropriations and a ranking member of mining and mineral resources and the rules committee. Ford is chairman of agriculture and serves on privileges and elections, courts of Justice and mining and mineral resources committees.

The first order of business of this session was the convening of the House and Senate in joint session to receive the Governor's State of the Commonwealth address in which he outlined his recommendations for the expenditure of $188 million in new state monies. In reality, this money is not a surplus but a result of last year's underfunding of the education budget and salaries of state employees.

[illegible] OF THE BUDGET

STATE EMPLOYEES - $47.3 Million has been proposed to increase salaries of state employees from the original 1981-82 increase of 4.5% to 9%.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS - $38 million of the State money will be going to local school divisions, $2 million for textbooks, $1 million for transportation. In 1978-79, Virginia localities spent an average of $83.85 per pupil to transport students to school, but last year that cost increased to $102.53 per pupil and is expected to be even more this year. From 1978 to 1980, the cost of transportation rose 1.6¢ per mile and operating costs for school buses increased $1400 per bus. The remainder of the $38 million would go to increase public basic school air from $1099 to $1155 per pupil.

PRISONS $26.4 million has been proposed to go to the corrections department for extra guards at new and remodeled prisons.

STATE FUEL PAYMENTS TO BE CURRENT - Virginia State Welfare Commissioner, William L. Lukhard, announced this week that the payments by the State Welfare Department giving aid to Virginia consumers in paying their fuel bills, should become current in the next few days. There had been a backlog in these payments due to computer problems and the State Welfare Department has been working overtime to bring the payments up to date. Commissioner Lukhard announced that checks totaling $2.2 million have been sent to 1469 fuel vendors. About $1.9 million of that was sent out by 10:00 A.M. Wednesday. This was a result of the efforts of state department staff members and personnel of the Arlington Computer Firm which the department hired to handle the payment and processing system who have worked nights and weekends to catch up on last week's 38,000 application backlog. Lukhard said 23,000 of those applications have been acted upon with notices for credit authorizations already out to clients and fuel vendors. The remaining 15,000 are being worked on. These applications are expected to be processed and payments brought current by sometime next week.

Lukhard also said that the overtime hours his staff and the computer firm staff have put in on the program will not threaten the administrative cost limit that comes with the program. Federal regulations state that administering the program may not cost more than 10% of the State's total grant. While the Federal Government is paying 7.5% of that estimated total cost for administration, the Department was afraid that it would need about $700,000 more to run it. The department's request for an additional $690,270 was included in Governor John N. Dalton's proposed amendment for the 1980-82 budget. That budget request goes to the General Assembly.

The assembly is composed of 74 democrats, 25 republicans and 1 independent in the House and 32 democrats and 9 republicans in the Senate

As in the past, we invite your comments and suggestions. We may be reached as follows: Delegate Orby L. Cantrell, General Assembly Building, Room 523, Richmond, Virginia 23219 (804-786-6801) and Delegate Ford C. Quillen, General Assembly Building, Room 704, Richmond, Virginia, 23219 (804 786-6717).

January 16, 1981
Letter to the Editor:

I have never complained public or wrote any letters to editors concerning our elected officials until now. I am referring to the Board of Supervisors meeting that was held on Wednesday, January 14, 1981.

January 15, 1981, Kingsport Times reported this meeting as "Supervisors' Actions in Legal Question." I guess this is true, but the Supervisors Actions have been a legal question for years, not just the January 14 meeting. I just can not see why you have to be either a Democrat or Republican before you can be heard. They were elected to represent all the people. Maybe Democrat or Republican should have been added to our discrimination law. If Republicans are seated Republicans are heard, if Democrats are seated Democrats are heard.

Mr. Hughes was there to make a request, but all of a sudden the board remembered that he was not on the agenda, so he was denied, but other people that were not on the agenda before him were not denied. I was on the agenda with a legal request, in fact I had two requests. The second request was that I be allowed ten minutes under the Boards rules, to speak, but I guess that was denied too, because I did not get the time. Vice Chairman Barker was so interested in getting his denial motion voted on, I guess that he just forgot that I was there.

All I wanted from the Board anyhow was an answer to my request but I feel the manner in which I got it was a very rude and political behavior, especially from Mr. Barker. So therefore I can see no better attitude from the Board and it is a shame that a citizen has to get elsewhere to be heard and get answers that are already a matter of law.

Sunday School Lesson

LEARN FROM THE LORD

Fearless John the Baptist condemned the sin of Herod Antipas, the king, for living in open adultery with Herodias, whom he had taken from her husband, Philip. The wicked king had John the Baptist incacerated in the fortress of Macherus near the Dead Sea.

Matthew 11:2-6

After some months elapsed, John the Baptist's confinement relaxed sufficiently for his friends to be permitted to communicate with him. When his friends visited him, they discovered that his long imprisonment had sapped his courage and he was depressed. To encourage him, they told him about the wonderful works of Christ, but their report caused him to wonder.

John the Baptist sent two of his followers to the Saviour to inquire if He were really the Messiah for Whom he had been looking. Christ told the messengers to inform John the Baptist that His works were sufficient proof of His messiahship. Christ told them to inform him that the deeds which He performed – giving sight to the blind, enabling the lame to walk, cleansing the lepers, enable the deaf to hear, the dead being restored to life, and the poor receiving the gospel – could not have been done by anybody except the Messiah.

Matthew 11:25-30

In a prayer of thanksgiving and praise to the Father, Christ thanked Him for the revelation of spiritual truths to the humble, but which was hidden from those who were wise in their own conceits and too proud to come to Him in penitence and faith. One can never reach the acme of spiritual growth until he recognizes the truth which Christ taught in verse 27, namely, that one can never know the Father except through the mediatorship of His Son.

Christ wanted all who were laboring to keep the law of Moses, but were unable to do so, to cast off the yoke of the law, receive Him as their personal Saviour, experience forgiveness of sin and deliverance from the fear of judgment, become His disciples, learn from Him, and work with Him. Learning from Christ involves more than just following His example. There must be a real submission to His will, instruction and guidance.

Christ promised that His yoke would be easy and His burden would be light. A yoke is made for two, and, as this expression is used in this passage, it is eloquent with the fellowship of the believer with his Lord. It is not always easy for the Christian to serve Christ, but, being yoked with Him, the Lord Jesus makes the burden light, as His yoke is always padded with divine love. those who are yoked with Christ move easily, for His will is right and best, and He carries the heavy end of the burden. In keeping step with the Lord and working with Him, we find rest in service.

It is truly wonderful that our great and gracious Saviour and Lord offers the rest of pardon, of peace, of protection, of power, and of provision to all who will receive Him.

HEY, AMERICA, HERE WE ARE!

Hey, America, here we are
Buy yourself an American car
Your tax dollar working for you again.

Borrow a billion bucks of surplus funds
Buy a car you hope will run
Twenty percent interest, the federal way.

Now there's a tax on the tax
That is a tax to the tax
And I guess it is the American way.

Well, here we are in '81
Paying taxes just for fun
I hope the Ayatollah don't get his way.

Now if you're lucky to be 65
Thank the Lord you're still alive
And let's pray Social Security can carry you on.

Now there's a tax on the tax
That is a tax to the tax
And I guess it is the American way.

Now if all of this is not enough
I'm a local taxes buff
Sixty-three percent was 1980

There was a bond we thought of well
Would pay the teachers, oh! swell!
How were we to know the well was dry.

Look out folks in '81,
I think you'll find taxes fun
Forty percent or more, the Lee County way.

Now there's a tax on the tax
That is a tax to the tax
And I guess it is the American way.

Ten Gas-Saving Techniques That Work

Courtesy of Jonesville Junior Woman's Club

1. There's no fast way to save – 55 mph on the highway consumes as much as 20 percent less gasoline than driving 70 mph. 55 mph is legal and it's efficient.

35 mph in town, where legal, is the average car's thriftiest speed. It'll give you the most miles per gallon.

Too slow is inefficient, too. If you drive at 10 or 20 mph you're also wasting gasoline needlessly.

2. A Tune To Save Gas By – An engine that is badly out of tune can burn more gas than one that's properly tuned. Just one misfiring spark plug on a 6-cylinder engine can increase your fuel consumption by 17 percent.

3. Savings by the foot – Fast starts and screeching halts use extra gasoline and carry a big price tag. Start off slowly and accelerate smoothly. Brake slowly too; coast to stops instead of rushing up and slamming on the brakes.

4. Pilots file a flight plan – Instead of making several trips in one day, plan one trip with several stops when you can. Making this a habit saves gasoline, and you still accomplish everything you planned.

5. Share a ride – More and more, people are sharing rides. In one part of town, neighbors take turns driving to do the weekly shopping. Doing this would save 26 trips a year if you drive every other week. You'd still get where you need to go and use only half the gas.

6. Turn your tires into gas savers – Use a tire gauge to keep your tires at their recommended pressure. Measure the pressure when the tires are cold. Soft tires put a drag on your car, and that's a drag on the gas tank. If you're shopping for new tires, look into radials. Tests prove they really save gasoline. That's why they're standard on most new cars.

7. Align wheels – Incorrect wheel alignment can waste gas too, if toe in is excessive. Watch for sign of excessive wear on the outer edges of your front tires. Properly aligned wheels can save gasoline and extend tire life.

8. No free rides – Those handy conveniences like air conditioning and automatic transmissions make life easier, but they use extra gasoline. No need to change lifestyles but you should know that these conveniences not only cost more to buy, they cost more to use. So, get only the features you need on your next car. You could save plenty of gasoline in the process.

9. Dr. Smart's Quick Weight Loss – Like people, cars have a harder time pulling around excess weight. So don't load your trunk with unnecessary things. When you don't need to, why buy gasoline to carry around unsightly fat?

10. Walking and biking save gasoline, too. – Bet you thought we'd never get around to it. It's a small point, but an important one. Americans have been labeled "car crazy," driving everywhere for anything, anywhere for nothing. But, when was the last time you walked? Say, to the store a few blocks away? Walking is one way to save gas that also improves your health!

Like a well coached basketball team, I, Stone Face Sam come on stronger with my predictions as the season progresses.

So for this season my predictions stand at 101 correct and 41 games that didn't go exactly as I had expected.

You may expect the competition to get tougher between some of the district teams as the season progresses.

There will be some upsets that will change the standings as tournament time rolls around.

Wise Indians Scalp Bobcats

The Pennington Bobcats traveled into Wise County last Thursday night, and ran into a host of Wise Indians who mauled the Bobcats 71-51, January 15.

Jerry Myers troops trailed by nine points at the first rest stop at 18-9, but managed to cut the deficit to four at halftime, trailing only 34-30. Twin Springs Squaks By Rye Cove

Twin Springs is still rolling, but the ride and road to the Cumberland District Crown is getting rougher!

The Titans trailed at the end of every rest stop, except the last quarter, and thats the one that tells the story on each and every game. It definitely tells who the winner is!! Jerry Fields' forces used a 19 10 fourth quarter to barely get by the Rye Cove Eagles 50 47, January 13

The score could very well have been different, and the upset history, had not the Eagles committed numerous turnovers

Twin Springs had a well balanced scoring attack, led by Kevin Short with 15 points, followed by Tony Rudder and Sammy Parks with 10 points each

Rye Cove was led in its gallant effort by Roy Lane with 18 points. Randy Spears was the only other Eagle in double figures.

the Titans who are now 8 and 0 on the year have now beaten everyone in the district, except Dryden. Rye Cove is now 5 and 6 on the year and will get one more chance at the Titans before tournament time, but next time on the op positions court

Flatwoods Topples Dryden

In a game that was scheduled for December 16th, but canceled was played this past Friday night, and the Dryden Crusaders probably wish it had been canceled again, because they came out on the short end of the score, dropping a 50-38 decision to the Flatwoods Eagles.

Trees Offer Hedge Against Inflation

It may sound funny, but investing in trees may be one of the best ways to fight inflation. Many large corporations and investment firms are becoming involved in timberland investments.

The biggest drawback is that it is a long term investment, but the upkeep and maintenance is minimal. Returns can be very good.

Predictions are that future demands for wood products will be impossible to meet without increased involvement from the small private non industrial timberland owner. This indicates that timber prices should escalate sharply in the future.

Getting started in timber growing is not difficult and does not require a great deal of money, especially if you already own some timberland.

A professional forester will examine your woodlands and make management recommendations free of charge. If you own some open land, you can start a forest tree plantation.

Cost sharing programs are available for many management practices. For further help and information contact the Virginia Division of Forestry, P.O. Box 798, Big Stone Gap, Va. 24219 or call 628 2791 or 523 0903. Most services are free of charge.

Green Hill News

Our goal for the coming year at Green Hill is to encourage the surrounding communities to become involved in our "Adopt a Resident Program." We have eleven residents adopted by special friends who visit with them frequently, take them out visiting and sight seeing, also short shopping trips. We appreciate any amount of time that anyone can spend with them. The following residents are adopted Fannie Clouse - Cathy Anderson; Lillie Mae Bowman - Francis Williams; Sarah Jane Johnson Florence Russell, John Spurlock - Earnestine Rasnic; Armina Poteet Cecil Jones; Lillie Harris Grace Davis; Evelyn Moore Bess Brooks; Lucille Henebber Rosita Crumley, Leona Clegg Ethel Crumley; Anna Fox - Judy Reece; Ruth Richmond Alice Bishop. We see a difference in these residents because someone cares and is a special friend to them.

We are very excited about getting our activities program organized and in full swing for the coming year. The activity director at Green Hill will be attending a one day workshop on "activities" for homes for adults in Abingdon, Va. on February 3, 1981. Some things we have on the agenda are Library visits, visiting museums, sight seeing tours, "Quilting Bees", wood crafts, organizing a music group, "Gale Fests" Current "event discussions" exercise program, fishing trips, nature walks These are some project we already have planned and under way.

We have chosen Joe Taylor as our resident of the month for December Joe is originally from central Virginia. He has resided at Green Hill for about two years. Joe is always more than willing to participate in any craft or activity we offer He is always considerate and helpful to our residents.

We have chosen Juanita Marion as our Employee of the Month for December. Juanita is very compassionate and thorough. We feel she is an asset to Green Hill.

By Betty Jean Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Now that Christmas is over and things have quieted down, it's a good time to check the toys your children received. Are the toys suitable for the child? Or, are they too difficult for him? A child gets very frustrated when he can't manage a toy. He feels like a failure and it is a blow to his self-esteem. He may even develop a dislike for the toy and not want to play with it when he grows enough to be able to manage it.

Can he reach the pedals on his new bike? Does the jigsaw puzzle have too many small pieces? Is the Tinker Toy set too difficult for him? Can he read the directions on the "Uncle Wiggley" game? Is the book too old for him? Then put them away. Hide them. In about six months, bring the toy out and see if the child is ready for it.

Children get a great deal of pleasure and learn a lot from toys, but only if they are suitable and not too difficult. So put away those difficult toys. The child may greet them with joy six months from now.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service programs, activities, and employment opportunities are available to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap, or political affiliation. An Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer.

HOW TO KEEP SICK

I recently read an interesting little pamphlet on how to get sick, how to keep sick and how to make others sick.

This is welcome information and fills a long felt want.

Among the other suggestions, I note that the leading one is "Think Sickness." That is, if you want to have any particular disease, concentrate your mind upon it. There are times when a disease is very handy. When you want to dominate your husband it is often very effective to use the tyranny of tears. If you have worked up a lather of self-pity and want your wife's sympathy, it will be much easier to get it if you can come home, fall limp into a chair and roll your eyes.

Hence, if you wish to have a bad spell, say to yourself, "Day by day in every way I am feeling worse and worse."

Another valuable piece of advice is — Talk sickness.

It is well known that our words affect our opinions by a sort of reaction. Therefore, make it a point to talk about every sort of pain, itch, megrim or gripe that you may have to have had or expect to have.

Talking sickness is easy and pleasant. It gets you sympathy and attention. It is the shortest road to being conspicuous.

Other pertinent hints are:

No work of any kind. Work greatly interferes with the progress of disease and sometimes even stops it. People who work right along do not seem to find time to be sick.

Eat as much as possible. Always eat a little more than you want. Particularly eat plenty of pastry. This food produces unhealthy fat and is full of various poisons which will be of great value in promoting your ailments.

Always drink ice water after meals so as to chill your stomach and prevent digestion.

When traveling, drink strange waters freely. This gives you a fine chance to get typhoid.

Don't chew your food. Bolt it. Wash it down with plenty of liquids. This saves time and is a good health preventive.

Don't think about what you eat. Eat what you like. Comfort yourself with the saying that what is one man's food to another man's poison and that nobody knows anything about diet anyway. Scorn all information regarding calories, vitamins and such nonsense.

Eat plenty of candy and drink quantities of soda water and ginger ale and the like. This will help you get rid of your teeth and also assist in securing diabetes.

Never visit a physician when you are well in order to find out how to keep from being sick. Wait till you are very ill and then call him in.

Worry as much as possible, read plenty of gloom literature and don't forget that everybody who is cheerful is a hypocrite.

Byrd Honored For Support Of Small Business

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., Ind. Va., has been cited as a leading champion in the U.S. Congress of measures aimed at bolstering small business.

Byrd and four other senators tied for first place in rankings done by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB).

Byrd, who was a member of the Senate's Task Force on Small Business, said he was delighted to be associated with efforts to reinvigorate small business.

"Small business provides most of the jobs in this country. It's time we strengthen the competitive position of small firms by relieving the tax and regulatory burdens imposed upon them," Byrd said.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, Byrd last year sponsored several measures to sored several measures designed to stimulate a job-creating expansion of small business.

Byrd also cosponsored legislation to ease stiff federal estate taxes, which are driving many modest firms and family farms out of business.

NFIB presents a "Guardian of Small Business" award at the end of each Congress to members who vote in support of small business issues at least 70 percent of the time.

The five, first-place Senators received 89 percent scores. Besides Byrd, they were William Armstrong, R.-Colo., Richard Lugar, R.-Ind., Harrison Schmitt, R.-N.M. and Edward Zorinsky, R.-Neb.

Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

We live down the hall from an elderly gentleman whose middle-aged son and daughter come and visit him about once a month. Our old neighbor has always been a nice old gent but we've noticed in the past year that he seems to have slipped noticeably. Our kids tell us at times he doesn't make any sense when he talks to them and more than a few times my wife has seen him rummaging through the garbage. My wife tells me I should mind my own business, but I think I should say something to the old man's son or daughter. What do you think?

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED.

I think that under the circumstances you might tastefully relate some of your observations to the old man's son or daughter. You may be witnessing the first stages of senility, or a condition caused by hardening of the arteries in the brain. The oldtimer may not be eating properly, or he may need medical attention.

DEAR DEBBIE:

Several months ago our 17-year-old daughter had to be hospitalized for what our doctor called a "nervous condition." She did receive psychiatric therapy at the hospital but she never had any shock treatments. Two days after my daughter had been home, a neighbor in the street asked me if my daughter had recovered from her nervous breakdown. She had a funny kind of expression on her face when she asked — the kind of look you see in the movies when one of the characters asks about a crazy person. I almost lost all my control. I am worried sick about my daughter's readjustment to school and friends. She's anxious to get back into her classes and several of her girlfriends have called and spent hours laughing on the phone with her. But do you think she might be better off in a new environment, like perhaps a private school away from home?

WORRIED MOM

DEAR WORRIED:

Your daughter belongs where she wants to be. If her friends are welcoming her home after her illness, and she is anxious to pick up her life where she left off, don't throw roadblocks in her way. Don't let one insensitive neighbor lead you to believe your daughter has been stigmatized by a whole neighborhood.

DEAR DEBBIE:

Twelve years ago my husband and I agreed to stay married for the sake of the children. It was understood that when the obligation to them was over we would each go our separate ways. Well, our last daughter has graduated from college. Neither my husband nor I ever brought up the subject of our agreement of 12 years ago. Ironically, I have come to love him almost as a dear friend and he has made me as comfortable for himself as an old habit. I don't think either of us would know where we would go if we left each other. Aside from that, our shared intimacy has taken on a dimension over the last year I never thought possible. But I live waiting for the other shoe to drop. There is no answer.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED:

Veterans Administration News ....

Q -- As a serviceman, how do I obtain a Certificate of Eligibility for a GI home loan?

A -- You must have at least 181 continuous days in active duty status. You then must obtain, from your base personnel office, a statement of service showing all periods served of active duty honorably with no time lost. You must also obtain a DD-1747 Permission to Live Off Base form, from your base housing office. Once you have these two forms, contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office, which will aisst you in making application for your GI home loan.

Q -- What is tutorial assistance and how do I apply for it?

A -- Tutorial assistance is a payment made to a veteran enabling him to hire a tutor when he is deficient in certain phases of his schooling. This fact must be determined by the school and verified to the Veterans Administration. For specific information, contact your nearest VA regional office.

Q -- What is Direct Deposit as it relates to VA benefits?

A -- Direct Deposit is a government program that allows you to have your monthly compensation or pension payments delivered directly to the financial institution of your choice for deposit to your personal checking or savings account. To apply, take your check to your financial institution and tell them you want to sign up for Direct Deposit.

Toy Recalled

A children's stuffed animal, sold nationwide as the "Squeeze Me Bear," is being recalled because the toy may present safety hazards that could injure young children.

An estimated 53,000 Squeeze Me Bears have been sold since 1979 at retail prices averaging from $7-$8 each. The toy bears were manufactured in Taiwan and distributed to toy stores and retail outlets by the Atlanta Novelty Co. of Long Island, N.Y.

The potentially hazardous toys bear the product code number of either 291 or 296, said Glen Hetzel, Virginia Tech Extension safety specialist.

Testing by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) of a random sample of the bears showed that one of the bears contained a potentially hazardous sharp wire in the stuffing. This led CPSC staff to believe that a significant portion of the other Squeeze Me Bears may also contain such wires.

The potential danger lies in the possibility that the wire may work its way through the bear's fur. So far there have been no injuries reported to CPSC.

In addition, during CPSC testing which simulated normal use and abuse of the toy by a young child, some noses of the bears fell off, posing a potential choking hazard to young children.

These stuffed toys have been determined to be "banned hazarous substances" under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act.

Of course, that's not as easy as falling off a log. There's a lot of figuring involved. Because just how much you get, or don't get, involves a few fairly complicated things. Things like the minimum balance, even the average balance.

The Southwest Virginia Health Systems Agency, at its January 8, 1981 Board of Directors meeting, reviewed and took action on the following five (5) requests for Certificates of Public Need (COPN), two of which came from Lee County:

·A proposal by Lee County Community Hospital, Pennington Gap, Virginia, for the establishment of a two (2) bed ICU/CCU Unit. The proposed capital expenditure is $2,000. The HSA Board recommended approval of the project.

·A proposal by the St. Charles Community Health Council, Inc., for the placement of an additional National Health Service Corps (NHSC) physician. Federal Funds requested are estimated at $40,000. The project was approved by the HSA Board.

·A proposal by Lynchburg General - Marshall Lodge Hospitals for renovation and expansion of their acute care facility. The proposed capital expenditure is $6,609,758. The project was recommended for approval by the HSA Board.

·A proposal by Medical Subsidiaries Home Health Services, Roanoke, to establish a home health care service in the Roanoke Valley area. The HSA Board recommended approval of the project.

·A proposal by Catawba Hospital for conversion of 50 gero-psychiatric beds to 40 adult intermediate care psychiatric beds. The proposed capital expenditure is $125,000. The project was recommended for approval by the HSA Board.

·A proposal by Waddell Hospital and Clinic, Inc., Galax, for an extension of an existing Certificate of Public Need. Waddell Hospital and Clinic, Inc., was granted a COPN in August, 1979 for the renovation of an existing 58 bed nursing home and the construction of an additional 77 new nursing home beds. The HSA Board reviewed and approved the proposal in July, 1979.

In September, 1980, The Board reviewed a request for extension of the COPN and amendments to the COPN concerning financing and project costs. The Board recommended approval of the request and the State Commissioner of Health approved the request in September, 1980. The applicant is now requesting an extension of the COPN for not less than six (6) months beginning on February 7, 1981 and an amendment to the present COPN increasing the approved square footage involved from 43,882 to 45,678. The HSA Board recommended approval of the project.

All recommendations concerning Certificate of Public Need will be forwarded to the State Commissioner of Health, who either issues a COPN for each project or denies the Certificate of Public Need requests.

The HSA Board also reviewed and took action on the following Request for Federal Funds:

In other business, the HSA Board will request the State Health Commissioner to reconsider his denial of the financing cost increase for Riverview Nursing Home in Narrows. The basis for this request is that the Statewide Health Coordinating Council, who stated the Riverview project was "not cost effective" at a 12% interest rate nevertheless approved another nursing home project in the state with the same rate of interest.

The Board also reviewed and admitted into the record documentary reports on Cardiac Care Services in Southwest Virginia, Alcohol Detoxification Services in Southwest Virginia, and a proposal to be made by the HSA to Governor Dalton and various state officials and legislators on Medicaid Cost Containment Strategies in view of the projected $62 million dollar deficit in the Virginia Medical Assistance Program (Medicaid).

Parvovirus: A Continuing Danger For Dogs

By Robert L. Stear, DVM
Manager of Veterinary Services
Nordax Laboratories

Across the country, veterinarians are explaining a new disease to dog owners -- "parvovirus infection."

Parvovirus is an extremely hardy organism that was first identified in 1978 to be the cause of a new contagious canine disease. It was initially seen in a few show dogs, and then quickly spread across the United States, Canada, Europe, and even to Australia. The disease causes a severe diarrhea, accompanied by fever and vomiting, and can also result in heart failure in puppies.

The virus spreads by direct and indirect contact. An infected dog can transfer the virus organisms directly to a healthy animal by physical contact. Or a healthy pet can become infected indirectly, by the virus in fecal material, on feed or water bowls, or in kennels that housed sick animals.

Almost all dogs are susceptible to parvovirus infection, but not all will become ill. Pets that are stressed by parasites, poor nutrition, or age will sicken much more quickly than pets in good condition.

The most common victim of a parvo infection is the young puppy. Although they may be healthy, young animals experience a great deal of stress. Their bodies are growing rapidly, their digestive systems must adjust to new foods, and they spend a great deal of energy in daily play. All these factors make puppies vulnerable to infection.

Often pet owners don't know that puppies are infected with parvovirus until shortly before the pets collapse. The only warning of cardiac failure may be the puppy's refusal to eat and the erratic breathing and whimpering that accompany the internal heart damage.

Parvovirus can also cause an entirely different set of symptoms that resemble the warning signals of canine distemper. The dog seems depressed and loses its appetite. Then a fever develops, and the dog begins to vomit. Finally, diarrhea begins, and the pet rapidly dehydrates. The strain on the intestinal system may also encourage other bacterial infections to develop.

It is extremely hard to distinguish parvovirus infections from certain other canine diseases such as distemper. To be positive, your veterinarian probably will order certain laboratory tests to be performed on stool or blood samples. In any case, there is little to be done except provide good nursing care. The dog will need fluids to replace those lost through diarrhea and vomiting, and possibly antibiotics to prevent other infections from developing. Dogs that do recover are usually immune to other parvo attacks.

Your veterinarian will tell you that vaccines that prevent canine parvovirus infections are still in the experimental stage. Those commercially available are prepared from a vaccine that is used primarily to protect cats against feline panleukopenia, a disease that is closely related to canine parvovirus. These vaccines will protect your dog for short periods of time, three to six months.

Several companies and universities are working to produce parvovirus vaccines designed especially for dogs. These vaccines will offer protection for a year or more, and may be available sometimes in 1981.

In the meantime, you can take certain steps to reduce the possibility that your pet will contract parvovirus. Try to reduce the pet's exposure to other dogs and areas contaminated with canine stools, as these may contain the virus. Be aware that the greatest danger is present where large numbers of dogs gather -- at dog shows, boarding kenneis, or obedience trials. If you must be present at such gatherings, vaccinate with the currently available vaccines to reduce the risk. If you visit dog shows or households with dogs, consider disinfecting your clothing and shoes with a dilute solution of a strong bleach and water (one part bleach to 30 parts water), to help kill any virus particles that may come home with you. Finally, try to keep your dog in good condition. A healthy dog that is free from parasites, vaccinated against other diseases, and fed a balanced diet has the best chance to resist parvovirus attack.

Dr. Stear regrets that he is unable to personally answer letters from pet owners. He suggests that readers consult their own veterinarians when their pets have problems.

Sheriff's Office Busy With Weekend Arrests

A check with the Lee County Sheriff's Department revealed the weekend arrests of Russell Lee Jones, a fugitive wanted on burglary charges in Ohio, and Jack Lee Milsap, 31, of Pennington Gap, on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property taken from the residence of Joe Campbell, Woodway.

In the Jones arrest, Sheriff R.V. Chadwell and Deputy Glenn Cope were patrolling in the area of some recent Sunday morning break-ins and happened upon Jones driving an old truck with Kentucky tags. Jones had been living in the Thompson Settlement area for the past several months. A license clerk ultimately revealed that Jones was wanted in Ohio on burglary charges and plans for extradition are underway.

Assisting in the 11:50 a.m. arrest were Deputy Onzie Collins and Pennington Police Chief Curtis Middleton.

Later on Sunday, about 2 p.m., Milsap, a substitute school bus driver, was arrested after having been found with peropty stolen from Joe Campbell including a TV, an electric sewing machine, a jewelry box, and about $200 worth of record albums. A stereo was not recovered as Milsap had already sold it

CETA Program To Be Phased Out

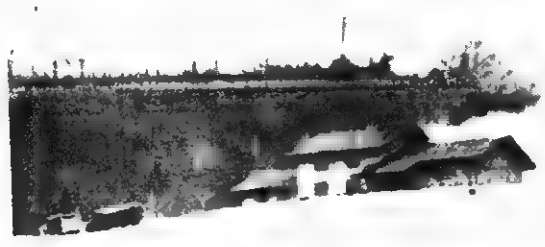
Gerald D. Griswold, Director of the CETA Regional Cooperations Center in Abingdon, Virginia, today announced that the Public Service Employment Program funded under Title VI of CETA will be phasing out of existence in this area for this fiscal year

The area started the year with approximately $3 million dollars in Title VI but due to funding revisions and changes in the Unemployment Insurance Program method of operation by the Congress in November and again in January we will be unable to operate all year.

Beginning on February 28, 1981 and continuing through May 30, 1981, the program will phase out This will effect 271 persons currently enrolled. Many contracting agencies will end their Title VI Program on February 28, while others will have sufficient funds to continue until the end of May

The reduction in funds amounts to $1.6 million dollars in this area.

The Title II D Public Service Employment Program is also being reduced in funding from $5.4 million to $4.0 million. This reduced funding will mean a gradual reduction to the end of the fiscal year resulting in approximately 350 enrollees being effected through layoffs.



The fire which severely damaged the Don Pope residence in east Pennington Gap, Monday, was brought under control by the Pennington Gap Volunteer Fire Department. The fire was said to have started in the kitchen of the home. Mr. and Mrs. Pope were unable to bring the fire under control. However, the quick response of the fire department did save the structure from complete loss.

Smoke and heat was said to have caused damage over the portion of the house not damaged by flames.

Fire Destroys Rasnic Residence, Severely Damages Pope Residence

Fire, one of the most dreaded of all hazards, has taken its toll here in Lee County within recent weeks.

Two fires, within the past week, have resulted in the loss of two recently constructed homes.

Last Saturday, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rhea Rasnic, which stands atop a hill, overlooking the community of Stickleyville, was completely destroyed by fire.

The entire family was away from home at the time fire, of unknown origin, was noticed by residents of that area. An effort, completely unsuccessful, was made to bring it under control. Meanwhile, the Pennington Gap Volunteer Fire Departments was called to the scene. The distance from Pennington Gap to Stickleyville, was too far. By the time the firemen arrived with their equipment the house was practically consumed by flames. The house and the entire contents were completely destroyed

A second home, located in Pennington Gap, was severely damaged by fire.

The Don Pope residence, located in east Pennington Gap, was severly damaged, along with the contents, according to a spokesman for the Pennington Gap Fire Department. The fire apparently started in the kitchen and Mr. and Mrs. Pope were unable to bring it under control. By the time the fire department arrived on the scene and succeeded in bringing the fire under control, severe damage had been done to the kitchen, living room, family room and dining room. Other areas of the home were damaged by smoke and heat. However, the structure was saved.

No estimate was available as to the dollar loss on either the Rasnic or Pope residence.

Wanted – Eye Donations

Corneal Transplants an operation which restores the sight of visually impaired persons are currently being performed less frequently, according to Everett Franklin, Executive Director of the Eye Bank of Virginia.

Franklin says the reason for the slow down is the scarcity of eye tissue required for the sight-giving operation. The eye tissue used in the operation is collected from persons who sign eye donor cards, available from the Eye Bank and members of the Lions Clubs. These persons agree to allow their eyes to be used in corneal transplant operations after their death

"Right now, we have 40 persons waiting in line for corneal transplants," says Franklin. "While we usually have a waiting list, it seldom goes this high. There simply isn't enough eye tissue to go around.

Franklin adds that the problem isn't exclusive to the area served by the Eye Bank of Virginia. The shortage, he says, is nationwide

"I don't think there would be a shortage if people understood how easy it is to donate their eyes and how much some one can benefit. Signing an eye donor card takes only a few minutes but it allows you to leave a legacy that lasts for years."

Franklin says if someone is interested in donating his eyes he should contact any Lions Club member or call the Eye Bank in Roanoke at 345 8823.

"If you ever spoke with someone whose sight was restored through this operation," says Franklin, "you'd probably call today."

USDA Strengthens Work Requirement For Food Stamp Recipients

Able-bodied food stamp recipients must actively search for jobs or be dropped from the program under new rules announced today by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Labor.

"Under the new regulations, people who fail to look for a job on their own or who don't report for the interviews at their state employment offices will find their households dropped from the food stamp program for two months," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Those who are exempt from the work registration requirement are primarily the elderly and disabled, those already working, those responsible for the care of dependents or those already subject to work requirements under the unemployment insurance or work incentive programs.

The rules also require recipients who register for work to be called in to their state employment service – now identified as the job search in many states – for an interview and job classification.

State job service agencies will continue to refer registrants to potential employers, but now food stamp job seekers will also have to supplement this service with their own eight-week job search.

The new rules will establish as a standard that work registrants contact up to 24 potential employers within the eight week period, and also report back twice to their employment counselors on progress made, Foreman said. Requirements for each person's job search will depend on their individual circumstances and the availability of jobs in the community, as assessed by the job service counselor.

The state job services will report to state welfare agencies the names of food stamp job seekers who refuse to comply with the interviews or job search requirements, as well as those who find jobs.

The regulations will be published in the January 16 Federal Register and become effective June 1

WARM UP YOUR WINTER WITH 'CREATURE COMFORTS'

Fur, wool and down garments always are in high style, always warm and always expensive As cold weather approaches, give a fresh start to your valuable garments by drycleaning furs not cleaned within the last two years, down or wool clothing not cleaned before storage and last winter's items hastily thrown into storage boxes with a few mothballs

Proper care for natural materials prolongs their life and protects your investment, say fabric care experts of PPG Industries, a major manufacturer of drycleaning solvents Professional cleaners know the best cleaning and finishing techniques to maintain the shape, color and texture of natural materials

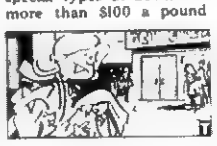
The PPG experts advise that conscientious fur selection, proper off season storage and annual drycleaning care will maximize the life span of fur or fur-trimmed items

Annual drycleaning, or bi annual at least, and professional storage will help furs maintain the natural oils that keep them wearable The pelts of furs that are improperly cared for will become brittle and tear easily Allow wet furs to dry naturally placing them near a heat source will dry the oils

Your drycleaner determines which solvents can be used safely on dyed or blended furs In addition, the drycleaner can repair lining, renew matted areas and hand clean chokers or neckpieces that may have glass eyes, jaws or claws

According to the PPG fabric care experts, it is well worth the cost to store furs commercially where rooms are regulated for proper refrigeration, ventilation and fumigation

Winter garments stuffed with down have gained tremendous popularity within the last few years Down is the soft, fluffy filament found under the feathers of ducks and other waterfowl that makes outdoor clothing very lightweight, very warm, and very expensive. Most down costs around $40 a pound; however, some special types of down cost more than $100 a pound



Although care labels found on many down items state drycleaning is not necessary, washing them at home is risky, warn the PPG specialists Hot water, harsh detergent or rough washing cycles can damage or ruin the item. Professional drycleaners have the proper spot-removing, washing and drying apparatus to keep the down items looking their best

Wool clothing retains popularity year after year. It is a resilient fabric that retains its shape, resists wrinkles and holds tailored creases. It has deep nap, absorbs moisture without making the wearer feel cold and retains warmth

Professional drycleaning is recommended for wool garments to prevent shrinkage and moth damage. Wool also scorches easily – drycleaners have the proper equipment to maintain a constant ironing temperature of less than 200 degrees In addition, drycleaners can treat wool to repel the moths and carpet beetles that attack the natural fiber

A closet full of fur, down and wool items can be the best energy-saving investment of the winter. To keep this investment productive, rely on the local professional drycleaner for the premium upkeep and maintenance of your premium creature comforts

Low Cost Solar Home Manufactured In Madisonville, Tennessee

A Madisonville, Tennessee, home manufacturer has completed its first solar home as part of TVA's Solar Modular Home project, which seeks to bring moderately priced, energy-efficient housing to the Tennessee Valley.

Manufactured by Monroe Modular Homes, Inc., the home will be sited in Jellico, Tennessee, later this month.

The 1,000-square-foot prefabricated home is expected to save up to 80 percent on heating bills over a conventional home by using "passive" solar and conservation design techniques. "Passive" solar techniques take maximum advantage of the sun without using mechanical equipment to store or collect solar energy.

The three bedroom design incorporates south facing windows and thermal storage walls to absorb the sun's heat. Insulating shades and extra insulation in the floors, walls, and ceilings help retain the heat. Natural ventilation and an attic fan will help cool the home in summer. A special airtight entry helps keep cold or hot air from directly entering the home.

TVA has provided technical and financial assistance to four other home manufacturers for the design and development of 20 floor plans. The other manufacturers are Dixie Royal Homes, Inc., of Cookeville, Tennessee; Eastern Kentucky Housing Development Corporation of Neon, Kentucky; Guerdon Industries, Inc., of Louisville, Kentucky; and Panelfab International Corporation of Miami, Florida. TVA will place 130 solar modular homes throughout the Tennessee Valley on a demonstration basis to monitor their energy efficiency. The homes will meet FHA, VA and other Federal financing guidelines. Two homes have already been sited and sold in Knoxville, Tennessee, under this program.

As more modular homes are completed, open houses will be held. Buyers of these homes will receive a $1,000 cash payment in return for TVA monitoring privileges. Persons interested in purchasing a demonstration home should contact the manufacturer directly.

Additional information is available from TVA's Citizen Action Lines. Knoxville residents may call 632-4100; Tennessee residents may call toll-free 1 800 362 9250, and other TVA Valley states residents may call 1-800 251 9242.

Lack Of Rain Is Reducing Hydro Power Increasing 1981 Power Costs, Parris Says

The Tennessee Valley is experiencing the second worst drought in 91 years of records and the lack of rain has already dropped low-cost hydro generation at TVA dams 40.9 percent below power projections for the first three months of fiscal 1981.

"Dry weather is definitely working against us in our efforts to hold down the amount of the rate increase needed next April," said Hugh G. Parris, manager of Power.

"We're not getting as much hydro power as expected and we're having to run our coal-fired plants, buy more power from surrounding power systems, and even run our combustion turbines more than we planned."

He said it is too early in the 1981 year to say what dollar impact the drought will have on next April's rate increase.

"It's certainly accurate to say the dry weather is having a negative impact on power costs. But there are some positive factors occurring in the power system to help offset the lack of rain, such as tighter management cost controls and good operation from Sequoyah Nuclear Plant."

Sequoyah, while still in its startup testing program, has been online producing varying amounts of power for the TVA power system since December 15 and has been at the 90 percent power level since December 29, 1980.

Based on normal year rainfall, TVA Power engineers had projected the TVA dams would produce 4.48 billion kilowatthours during the first quarter of fiscal 1981, October through December, but low-water levels in the TVA lakes have held hydro generation to only 2.65 billion kilowatthours, 1.83 billion below normal levels.

This time last year, the Tennessee Valley was seeing above normal rainfall and through December 1979, the TVA dams had produced 6.66 billion kilowatthours.

December 1980 rainfall across the Valley was only 1.2 inches, making last month the second lowest of 91 years of records. Rainfall for the Valley from June 1980 to December has only been 19.9 inches, which is also the second lowest in the 91 years of recorded history.

Parris said hydro generation averaged only 1,202 megawatts for all TVA dams from October through December, lowest for the first quarter of TVA's fiscal year since 1954.

In December alone, generation at all TVA dams averaged only 1,210 megawatts, the lowest December in TVA records since 1944.

Memories Of Lee County

Uncle Jim Has His Way

I have heard old people say that many years ago the doctor would not allow his patients to have water under any circumstances. They said that it would sure kill them. In our present set up this seems to be suicidal and really was in most cases. How anyone with an acute case of fever, especially phenumonia fever, could pull through without water is now unbelievable, yet some people did recover.

Down in Lee County once lived good old Uncle Jim who fell a victim of pneumonia and had about as high fever as a human being could endure. Old Dr. Jones was waiting on him and doing the best he knew how to bring the old man back to health again. He was not expected to pull through it by his friends and neighbors.

Another kindly old man, Uncle Ira was about as good a nurse to wait on the sick as could be found in those long gone days. He went far and near and would often neglect his own work at home and wait on the sick night after night. If a patient was in Uncle Ira's hands his people never worried too much about him being taken care of. Uncle Ira would feel deeply hurt if anyone offered to pay him for his trouble. He simply enjoyed helping the sick and needy and did it purely out of the goodness of his big heart.

Uncle Jim's family sent for Ira to come and wait upon him in his sickness. The family waited on him during the day and Uncle Ira was to look after him at night. One night the Doctor was there to check on him and upon leaving warned Uncle Ira that whatever he did not to give Uncle Jim any water, as it would finish him off.

The fever was very high on Uncle Jim and he suffered so much during the night that Uncle Ira was deeply concerned and rather doubted Uncle Jim living until daylight.

Uncle Jim called Uncle Ira to his bedside and said to him, "Ira do you love me? Are you my Friend?" "Of course I am, Jim". "Well, " said uncle Jim, "Go to my good old limestone spring and bring me a good old drink of water." Ira tried to prevail with him but Uncle Jim told him that he was going to die and that he should not let him die thirsty.

The pleading of Uncle Jim outweighed the order of the doctor with Ira and so he went spring about four o'clock in the morning and brought the water and gave it to Uncle Jim, begging him to drink only a little. Uncle Jim's thirst over ran his fear of dying and so he drank down the whole quart of cold water before he quit. Ira expected to see Uncle Jim breathe his last breath in a few minutes, but he was agreeably surprised. Uncle Jim immediately became better and his fever somewhat subsided.

When the doctor came and saw Uncle Jim much improved he told Ira that it was a good thing that he did not let Uncle Jim have water. Uncle Ira replied, "It's a good thing that I gave him about a quart of good spring water or he would most likely have passed away. The doctor could hardly believe it but finally conceded to Ira and told him to keep giving him all the water he wanted. Uncle Jim was soon well and lived many years after that.

It was said by the old people that this case revolutionized the whole theory that water was bad for the fever, but they began to give plenty of water and lost fewer cases in fever than they did before.

It is very common now to see hospital patients with bays of ice on their heads, sometimes around much of their bodies. We have gone a long way since those "good old days".

COOL IDEAS FOR YOUNG PLAYERS

By Bobby Orr

Mr. Orr has been commissioned by Standard Brands Incorporated, to write a series of articles designed to help youngsters improve their hockey game.

Everyone loves to shoot the puck, and shooting is a very important part of the game.

Orr

The most important shot in hockey is the wrist shot. More goals are scored with this shot then any other.

Here are a few tips on a proper wrist shot.

1. Use a firm grip on the stick

2. The bottom hand is not to high or low on the shaft but comfortable for you.

3. Bring the puck forward in a sweeping motion.

4 As the puck comes forward, your weight should also come forward.

5 Release the wrists. All your weight should be on the front skate leaning toward your target.

Clean Water --- Where Is It?

By Glenn F. Graham
Soil Conservation Service

Remember the days of the community swimming holes in Lee County's rivers and creeks of seeing the river bottoms and pond catches of bass red eyes trout and channel cats What happened? The same thing that happened to thousands of American communities flowing streams People's desire for a better life has squandered another resource that costs far better Old things get better or just was signed by the Nation 1 1972 Congress passed the Federal Water Pollu tion Control Act Amend ments Congress gave the Environmental Protection Agency EPA the au thority for implementing the Act but reserved for the states the primary responsibility for water pollution control The law provided federal and state programs for pre venting reducing and ultimately eliminating water pollu tion It seeks to achieve swimmable fishable waters wherever attain able just like Rural Clean Water Program RCWP is now active in Virginia The most pollu ted river basins have been identified and experimen tal work has begun

Virginia has taken a voluntary approach to solving water pollution problems Hopefully we citizens will decide to help ourselves instead of being forced by EPA to clean up our own mess Point pollu tion problems such as sewers dumps and feedlots are easily noticed and directly controlled Non point pollution from home business and agriculture is much harder to notice and to control Sediment from land erosion is our major pollutant of surface water. Sediment going into our streams carries with it, fertilizers, pesticides, and other chemicals. If soil is kept in place with good conservation practices, pollution is kept out of streams.

The Daniel Boone Soil and Water Conservation District will be having meetings this spring on Lee County's water quality and what to do about it. Come out to these meetings, learn the problems, and do your part to make Powell River and our county creeks swimmable and fishable by 1983.

Daniel Roberts

Memories Of Lee County

By Hampton Osborne

The recent article in Powell Valley News concerning the destruction by fire of Mr. Albert Roberts Mill brought to me many memories of the Roberts family on Blackwater.

I was not acquainted with Albert but was acquainted with his father, Fred Roberts, his grandfather Dave Roberts and his great grandfather Daniel Roberts who was referred to as Don Roberts which must have been a mistake.

Uncle Daniel had a combination saw and grist water mill. The raw rig was operated by a wide water wheel and had a saw which I thought was a cross cut or Whip saw. It took a lot of enguinity to devise such a new rig as that was. But that was up Uncle Daniel's mind to devise things which no one else could make.

The grist mill was powered by a turbine water wheel which made excellent meal. The mill stood about one mile west of the present Blackwater post office. The pond covered about two acres of level ground. During the winter when ice covered the pond the young people would skate on the ice. During summer they would boat ride over the pond.

There were abundance of fish in the pond. Once a year Uncle Daniel would open the pond which was screened and allow neighbors to get as many as they wished to get. He allowed men to fish all they wished below the dam.

Below the dam was a favorite swimming hole where the boys from far away and near by would swim on Sunday afternoons. Part of the old dam still stands. It was made of wood, logs, plank and stone

Uncle Daniel built a large three story grist and flour mill on Hardys Creek some 75 years ago and operated it many years and sold it to his son-in-law George Muncy and Muncy's son in-law Mr. Pace It closed down when Lee County began buying flour from the market.

My uncle Cameron Blackmore who operated the old mill at Gibson Station for 45 years said that he bought old parts from the Hardy Creek Mill to repair the mill he operated. This mill was known as the Blakemore mill but Blakemore had no interest in the mill. It was the Powell River Milling Co. Mill. I believe that the Government now owns it.

Uncle Daniel fought in the Civil War on the Confederate Side and was in service during the Cumberland Gap battles. His wife, who lived on Blackwater said the old mills would load up the old mule and ride to Cumberland Gap and take him clothing and bedding and some food and was never harmed on the way.

She said that once while her son and she was at home that Yankees pushed the puncheon up under the floor and went in to the kitchen and ate all the food she had prepared. They then placed the puncheon back and left.

Uncle Daniel spent the better part of his last years attempting to invest a perpetual motion machine, but of course failed.

Uncle Daniel was my wife's mother's Father. She was America Roberts who married George Munsey. So, David, mentioned in the article was my mother-in-law's brother.

I remember when Dave Roberts rented a tract of land from Lewis Robinette and planted it in water mellons. You could walk over the patch of mellons and not touch the ground. He built a small lean-to when he stayed to sell mellons, by day, and guard it by night. The mellons, large ones sold for 15 cents each. All the Roberts on Blackwater were good honest people and hard working people.

What the article mentioned about the good qualities of Albert Roberts would apply to any of the Roberts I ever knew.

Extended Unemployment Benefits Program Ended

The extended unemployment benefits program which extends the duration and amount of unemployment insurance payments to qualified jobless workers will end in Virginia on Saturday, January 24, 1981, according to Arthur L. Lane, Jr., DPA, commissioner of the Virginia Employment Commission (VEC).

There are approximately 8,000 persons in the state who are presently receiving extended benefit payments. All are being notified in writing that their benfits will end.

The extended unemployment benefits program provides additional benefits for persons who have exhausted all their regular unemployment insurance benefits during periods of high unemployment. Under the amended Extended Unemployment Compensation Act, extended benefits are ended in a state when the average insured unemployment rate for all states is less than 4.5 percent and when the state's insured unemployment rate does not meet certain requirements.

During the week ending January 3, 1981, the national insured unemployment rate dropped to 4.49 percent. In accordance with the "trigger-off" provisions for extended benefits, Virginia will suspend the payment of extended benefits the last day of the third week following the "trigger-off" date. The last payable extended benefit week will be January 24, 1981.

Because Virginia has enjoyed a relatively healthy economy, the State's insured unemployment rate is about 2.1 percent, which is well below the 5 percent criteria required for an individual state to "trigger on."

CSA Approves Grant Of $210,000 For Energy Assistance

Congressman William C. Wampler announced today that the Community Services Administration has approved grants totalling $210,000 for various energy assistance programs within the Ninth Congressional District.

Rose Hill Homemakers Club News

Pioneers Club To Assist In Handicap Survey

The Western Lee County Health Clinic was the meeting site for the Pioneer Home Extension Club on Wednesday, January 21st, at 2 p.m. Mrs. Bess Brooks and Mrs. Magdalene Brooks were co-hostesses.

Club President, Mrs. Hugh Crumley, presided over the meeting with Mrs. Bess Brooks bringing devotional thoughts.

Mrs. Crumley then introduced a guest, Mr. Charles Bledsoe, who brought to the attention of the Club the need for volunteers to make a survey in the Southwest Virginia Area in order to locate all those people who may have physical disabilities or handicaps. There is to be a training period later with funds allocated from the federal government which will depend on the degree of the handicap and the number needing assistance.

The Club voted to assist in the survey, and are also working on two other projects this year. One is a coupon swap at each meeting, and the second is to save and donate canceled postage stamps to be sold, with the proceeds going to help feed the hungry in Bangladesh.

The members turned in 5,000 stamps at the meeting, and will receive a penny for each stamp.

Mrs. Crumley presented Miss Betty Jean Moore, County Extension Agent, who gave an instructive talk on Food Additives. Miss Moore suggested the wisdom of reading the labels on canned and packaged foods to see what has been added to them, with the purpose of learning to choose wisely for the nutritive needs for the family.

Miss Moore's statement was a surprise and a shock when she stated that the average amount of sugar consumed in the United States each year by each individual is 125 pounds.

New Year Books were distributed with a request that each person write in her book what her "Heart's Desire" is, and to check at the end of the year to see if she had accomplished the desire she was striving for.

Delicious refreshments were served to fifteen members and two guests, Miss Betty Jean Moore, and Mr. Charles Bledsoe, who had spoken from his wheel chair.

"Applique" will be demonstrated at the February meeting.

Social Security And Your Date Of Birth

It seems that the older we get the greater the pressure to prove how young we are. However, when it comes to applying for social security benefits, everyone is required to prove his or her date of birth. Eligibility for benefits is generally based on one's date of birth and the amount of work covered under social security

In addition to proving your date of birth in applying for benefits, under current law you also have to establish date of birth as well as identify when you apply for a social security card

Proof of age continues to be the problem that plagues more social security applicants than any other The problem generally surfaces when they discover that the date of birth they are currently using is different from that given to social security many years ago when they applied for a social security card When this happens, social security requires additional evidence

The preferred proof of age is a birth certificate or baptismal record dated before a person's fifth birthday Other proofs may include a delayed birth certificate, insurance policy, census records, bible or other family record, military record, marriage record, vaccination record, physician or midwife's record of birth or passport. The list is not exhaustive Social security evaluates such documents in terms of how old they are and the circumstances under which they were made

Social security officials urge people who are not sure that they are using the correct date of birth to take steps now to set the record straight. People should apply for benefits at least 3 months before they want benefits to start This gives them time to clear up any proof of age problems and insure that benefits will start on time.

The basketball season becomes more interesting as the season progresses. Competition gets stronger. As the old saying goes - "on a given night" any team may beat any other team," is surely true. Based on my powers to predict the future, there will be some mighty upsetting upsets during the coming weeks. As the season progresses, my powers of "calling the shots" sets stronger. Top teams beware - you are sure to have difficulties during the coming weeks.

My present record of predictions stands at 125 games called correctly to 52 not so correct!

Dryden Overtakes Thomas Walker In Overtime

Ronald Skeens took his Pioneers to Dryden on Tuesday night of last week, and the Pioneers fell to the Crusaders for the third time this year. But much closer than the two previous times that Dryden had won.

The game started out as though the Pioneers were going to run the Crusaders out of the gym, as Thomas Walker led 17 to 7 at the end of one quarter. Second period action really went the Pioneers way, as they went up by twenty points at 31 to 11 with two minutes remaining until halftime. Dryden then closed the gap by outscoring the Pioneers 8 to 0 to trail 31 to 19 at halftime. The Crusaders came out of the dressing room at half time smoking as they outscored Thomas Walker 15 to 10 to trail by seven, heading to the fourth quarter. Ronnie Turners troops then outpointed the Pioneers 13 to 6 to send it into overtime. Both teams with 17 points at the end of regulation managed to only score two points each in the first extra period, but in the second overtime, Dryden scored eight while holding Thomas Walker to four to make the final score 57 to 53 in double overtime.

Dryden's record is now 5 and 7 for the year. They were led in scoring by Tony Young's 24 points. His best effort of the year so far. Randy Anders also scored 15 for the winners. Greg Peters who is a regular starter for Dryden, did not play due to being sick with the flu.

Thomas Walker is now 3 and 6 on the year. The Pioneers were led by Johnny Edds game high 27 points. Alden Payne scored 14 in defeat

Pennington Downs Keokee

The Pennington Bobcats downed the Keokee Mountaineers on January 20th, at Pennington by the score of 62 52. The Bobcats never trailed in this game, but had a twelve point lead several times only to see Roger Morris' Mountaineers come storming back. Keokee trailed 16 to 12 after one quarter. The Mountaineers saw their teams leading scorer Mickey Hubbard called to the bench with 1:58 to go in the first quarter, due to picking up his second personal foul. He sat out the rest of the quarter, but came back at the start of the second period. The Bobcats ran into a little foul trouble also in the second quarter as Gary Pendergraft picked up his third foul with 6:30 remaining before the half. He sat out the rest of the half

Hubbard picked up his third foul midway of the second quarter but remained in the game. He was called for a charging foul, that brought coach Roger Morris off the bench wanting an explanation from the referee on the call. The Bobcats edged Keokee 14 to 11 in the quarter to lead 30 to 23 at the half. As both teams left the floor for the locker rooms at halftime, Roger Morris again went to the referee and was hit with a technical foul. As the third quarter started, Gary Pendergraft shot the two technical free throws and made both.

Hubbard, again was guilty of a foul, his fourth in the third quarter, with 7:40 remaining. He was taken out of the game again at that point but returned with 3:11 remaining in the same period. He was only in for twenty one seconds before he was called for his fifth foul that put him out of the game.

The Bobcats outscored Keokee 19 to 16 in the third quarter, with Kent Henderson coming off the bench to score eight points in the quarter for the Bobcats. Kip Phillips also got eight for Keokee in the same period. Phillips did a good job scoring wise as he picked up the slack after Keokee lost Hubbard via the foul route

Kip Phillips led Keokee in defeat with 18 points, while Hubbard was the only other Mountaineer in double figures with 10 points, all coming in the first half of the game. Keokee is now 1 and 10 on the year.

Pennington, by winning raised their record to 4 and 4 on the year. They were led by Bobby Ledbetter with 17 points. The Bobcats had three more double digit scorers in Gary Pendergraft, Billy Byington, and Kent Henderson, all with 11 points each.

Pennington shot 53.3% from the field, hitting on 26 of 49 shots. They hit 10 of 18 at the free throw line for 55%. Keokee shot 43% from the field making 25 of 57. They made two of five free throws for 40%.

Pennington Hold Off Thomas Walker

The Bobcats had to hold on tight this past Friday night, as the Thomas Walker Pioneers came to the Bobcat den, and almost stunned them

After Pennington took a 16 12 first quarter lead, behind Gary Pendergraft's six first quarter points, the Pioneers roared back in the second quarter behind freshman Johnny Edds' eight points to take a 30 26 halftime lead. The Pioneers saw Bob Bryant pick up three quick fouls in the first quarter. He sat out the entire second period and came back in the third quarter. Jim Miracle who stands 6'6" did not start in the game but came in when Bryant got into foul trouble. Miracle got 12 points in the game while Johnny Edds was high man for the Pioneers and the game with 30 points The Pioneers fell to a 3 7 record with the loss, while the Bobcats raised theirs to 5 4

Pennington was led by Bobby Ledbetter with 24 points. He hit nine field goals and connected on 6 of 10 free throws Gary Pendergraft also scored 21 points, on eight field goals and 5 of 7 free throws. Two of the seven free throw attempts came as the result of a technical foul on the Pioneers coach. Pendergraft made 1 of 2 on the technical

The Pioneers forged ahead by six points in the third quarter, but saw the Bobcats come clawing back behind the inside shooting of Bobby Ledbetter, and a couple of long range shots by Pendergraft to take a 49 48 lead after three quarters. The Bobcats then went ahead by as much as six points in the final quarter but saw the Pioneers come back to within two points Thomas Walker had two chances to tie the game in the end, as with 15 seconds remaining Ledbetter was at the foul line for the Bobcats and missed the front end of a 1 and 1 situation. Twin Springs Shells Keokee

The Titans keep rolling along, winning every game that coach Jerry Fields sends them into! Their latest victim, was the Keokee Mountaineers whom the Titans shelled 65 53.

After only trailing 30 23 at halftime, Keokee was outscored by a 23 14 margin in the third quarter to trail by 16 at 53-37. The Mountaineers who now stand 1 and 11 on the year, did manage to outpoint Twin Springs in the final quarter by four points, but just couldn't overcome the 16 point deficit.

Kevin Short poured in 34 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead the Titans. Tony Rudder scored 12 points for the winners Twin Springs is now 11 and 0 on the year

Keokee was led for the second straight game by Kip Phillips with 22 points. Mickey Hubbard was held to 14 points

Twin Springs is presently ranked third in Southwest Virginia. With a won loss record of 11 and 0, they are the only unbeaten team in Southwest Virginia. It should also be noted that the state rankings came out this past Saturday, and the Titans are nowhere to be seen in the top ten. In fact the number one team in group A is the only unbeaten team in the top ten state rankings.

New Kent is 9 and 0, ranked number one in the state. Rappahannock County is ranked third in the state with a 5 and 5 record. James River is ranked sixth with a 5 and 4 record. Maybe New Kent with a 9 0 record is the number one team in the state, but with two teams ranked third and sixth with a total of 9 losses between them out of a total of 19 games, and three other teams ranked in the top ten with at least three losses, surely Twin Springs should be recognized.

Middlesboro Bombs T.W. Pioneers

Thomas Walker ran into a Middlesboro Kentucky team this past Monday night and found out the hard way that they had more than they had bargained for

It was like a bomb had exploded in the Pioneer gym, and exploded shortly after 9:00 p.m.! That's when the game ended Middlesboro literally did what ever they wanted to and when they wanted to The Pioneers trailed at the first rest stop 14 5, and probably were wondering how they could slow the pace somewhat. Ronald Skeens forces could not come up with any offense at all to help offset the onslaught as the Pioneers lost the second quarter by a 16 10 margin. Thomas Walker probably would have been better off by just playing a two quarter game instead of four because the third stanza was 21 12 in favor of Middlesboro, to make the score 51 27 heading into the final eight minutes

The bomb that was dropped by Middlesboro exploded in the fourth quarter as they burned the nets for 29 points while holding Thomas Walker to only 7. John Epperson led a Middlesboro team that saw 14 different players score, with 12 points. Mark Lester was next with ten points.

Thomas Walker was led by Johnny Edds with 10 points, well below his average per game. Alden Payne was next with seven points. The Pioneers did have eight different players to score, but not enough to match Middlesboro.

The loss put the Pioneers with a record of 3 and 8.

Middlesboro shot 57.2% from the charity stripe, hitting on 8 of 14. The Pioneers made 10 of 18 for 55%.

To make matters worse for Thomas Walker, they will play Middlesboro again on February 17th, and not on the Pioneers home court again! Maybe Ronald Skeen's troops will have a bomb of their own next time around!

Rye Cove Dumps Flatwoods

These two groups of Eagles clashed for the third time this year on Tuesday of last week.

Flatwoods had taken the previous two games earlier in the season. One of the two, by a 18 point margin. But this time around proved a different story

Jimmy Dishners' Eagles, who have been playing good ball lately, took the game by a eleven point margin at Rye Cove

Rye Cove had a 16 to 6 lead at the first rest stop and stretched the lead to the winning margin of eleven at halftime at 29 to 18. After Flatwoods managed a 18 17 third quarter advantage, Rye Cove then took the last stanza 15 14 to raise their record to 6 and 6 on the year. Flatwood's record fell to 6 and 5 as Max Chance's Eagles lost their fifth game out of their last seven.

Randall Spears led the winning charge with 22 points, while teammate Roy Lane hit for 16 points. Flatwoods was led by Jeff Seabolt who canned 22. John Trent scored 10 in defeat.

The baby Eagles from Rye Cove also won their game, by taking a 49 22 decision

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

Now we say goodbye to the first month of the year, January, 1981, but it will always hold two outstanding days in the history of our Nation On January 20 was the inauguration of our Nation's 40th President, Ronald Reagan It was also the day when 52 American hostages were released from Iran.

January 21, former President Jimmy Carter greeted the former hostages in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

Now for the second month, February The first day will come on Sunday but be on the alert for Monday, February 2, because that will be Ground hog Day

The woodchuck or groundhog as he is known hibernates in winter time and goes to his burrow in the fall of the year and stays underground during the cold weather The groundhog is one of our little marmots that is lazy He does not make any provision for winter and when he awakes hungry he comes out early in the spring searching for something to eat As the old saying goes If he sees his shadow on Groundhog Day he will go back to his burrow and to sleep and we will be six more weeks of wintery blast and cold weather

Let's hope "Mr Groundhog doesn't see his shadow come February 2

"In the Heart of the Beautiful Cumberlands - Where Virginia Begins"

Pennington Gap, Virginia Phone 546-1210

Report From Richmond

By Orby L. Cantrell and Ford C. Quillen

This week, Orby and Ford joined all Americans in their joy over the release of the Americans who have been held hostage in Iran. On the day before the release, the House of Delegates recessed from Chambers and members walked to nearby historic St. Paul's Church for a time of prayer and reflection. We offer prayers and best wishes to the free Americans and their families.

Also, this week, came the sad news of the death of our colleague, Delegate William P. Robinson of Norfolk. Bill, a leading black legislator and chairman of the House Health, Welfare and Institutions Committee, died on Monday, January 19, 1981 from cancer.

The first full week of the 1981 general assembly session has been a very hectic one as committees met long hours to deal with bills carried over from last year's session.

Quillen and Cantrell Ranked in Top Twenty - For the second year in a row, both Orby and Ford were ranked among the top 20 out of 100 most effective legislators in the Virginia House of Delegates. The survey conducted by the Virginia Pilot and Ledger-star included ratings by lobbyists, state and local government officials, journalists and other legislators. Delegates Bill Lemmon D. Marion and Archie Campbell - D, Wytheville, were the only other representatives from the 9th district to be ranked in the top 20.

Tobacco Tax Bill Introduced Ford has introduced legislation which would allow any Virginia County bordering a state with a cigarette tax 10 cents higher than Virginia's 2.5 cents; the option to levy a local 2 cents per package tobacco tax. There are presently 19 cities and 2 counties in Virginia which levy a local cigarette tax. Taxing power is granted to cities by charter and to Fairfax, Arlington County by specific state legislation. These local taxes vary from two to ten cents per pack. This bill would allow Lee and Scott counties which border the state of Tennessee to raise desperately-needed funds for education Tennessee has a 13 cents per pack state tax. The Quillen bill calls for all revenues generated by this tax to be earmarked specifically for school purposes.

Additional Education Monies An amendment to this year's budget will give more money to our localities for education Previously, localities were to be appropriated $1099 per child in basic school aid, but now will receive $1155 per child Wise county receives $6,008,516, an increase of $592,267. Scott County $3,139,004; an increase of $429,666. Dickenson County, $2,629,669, an increase of $45,980. Lee County $3,596,584, an increase of $330,231 and the City of Norton will receive $497,605, an increase of $66,091

Appropriations Meeting Members of the House Committee on appropriations, of which Orby is vice chairman, say Governor Dalton's supplemental recommendations to the 1980 1982 state budget do not come close to meeting the needs of public education

During a public hearing on the Governor's amendments to the $11 6 billion spending plan approved by last year's legislature, Orby stated that, "the big priority is education and that he would like to have seen a little bit more allocated." He doesn't believe there will be any drastic changes made in the Governor's budget, but he would like to see an honest effort to get a little bit more money in basic school aid before he votes for it."

Drinking Age Raised A bill has been passed by a House Committee which would raise the age from 18 to 19 those allowed to purchase beer "to go" from off premises stores. The idea is to prevent 18 year olds who are still in high school from buying beer for their younger friends. Under this measure, 18 year olds would still be able to drink beer in restaurants The minimum age for the purchase and consumption of liquor and wine is still 21

Change in Rape Law Passed in Committee A change in Virginia's rape law has been passed by the House courts of Justice Committee after three years of study. The original intent of the legislation was to ease concern of those who contend that the rape victim is put on trial However, the bill has undergone several revisions and its results are at best unclear Key provisions absent from the bill in its current for are. (1) A new definition of rape, (2) Degrees of sexual assault (3) making the rape law other than sodomy, sex neutral, therefore, recognizing that males, too, could be raped. Provisions in the bill which seem inconsistent with its purpose include a requirement that in order for marriage to not be considered a defense to rape the couple must be living apart and a property settlement must have been reached or divorce papers served Another provision is a committee amendment concerning admissability of the victims past sexual conduct which many believe could open the door to the rape victim's sexual history being presented before the court. Otherwise, the bill merely restates current Virginia case law on rape.

Ford and Orby appreciate the interest you have shown in current issues before the General Assembly and we invite you to contact us if at any time you have a question or a problem with which we can help. To enable a speedy response, please be sure to include your return address on all of your correspondence with us. A complete street address will ensure that our replies to you are received. We are interested and concerned about your options regarding legislation which faces the general assembly this year. You may reach us by writing to Delegate Orby L. Cantrell, General Assembly Building, Room 523, Richmond, Virginia, 23219, or by calling (804) 786-6801. Ford can be reached by writing to Delegate Ford C. Quillen, General Assembly Building, Richmond, Virginia 23219 or by calling (804) 786-6717.

Jonesville Senior Citizens

—Rev. Harry Bacon, pastor of Bible Baptist Church, West Jonesville, was the guest minister at the Senior Center on Monday. His talk was very inspiring. He was excited about our American hostages leaving Iran and had special prayer for them. He asked that we pray for their spiritual needs as well as their physical needs. Rev. Bacon joined in for the covered dish luncheon and the talk during the fellowship hour He admired the beautiful quilts that the ladies were quilting

—Rev. Bacon can come back to our Center any time. The lovely Mrs. Bacon was unable to be with him. She wants to come to the meetings sometime to learn how to quilt. She was intrigued with the quilting when she was at the Center at an earlier date.

—Mrs. Jerushia Burchett of Jonesville, and her daughter, Mrs. Georgia Roy of Rose Hill were in Middlesboro, Monday.

—Mary and Richard Allen and daughters, Karen and Barbara, Martinsville, Va., spent two weeks with Mrs. Leslie Morrison. Mary, Richard, and Karen left Mrs. Morrison's on their way to Santa Ana, Calif where they will be making their home. Barbara Allen would have gone to California to live also, but Mr Michael Young came down from Martinsville and he and Barbara were married in Jonesville He took the new bride back to Martinsville with him for the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Young. Love has a way of stepping in and changing the plans of parents and their children.

—Marie and Roy Fisher spent the week end in Indiana visiting Marie's brothers, Mr and Mrs. Aston Hall and family of Mitchell, Mr. Calvin Hall and daughter, Lisa of Saltillo, her sister, Virginia and Cletus Bennett of Lawrenceburg, her aunt, Mrs Sallie Hall of Orleans, her cousins, Vesta and Valley Hubbard of Orleans, and Lillian and Milam Slemp of Mitchell.

—Mr W.J. Quinley, Mrs. Marie Lyttle, and Mrs. Sallie Woliver visited with Mrs. Woliver's sister, Mrs. Lou Ann Vannoy, in Claibourne County Hospital, Tazewell, Tn., on Sunday.

The Jonesville Lions Club held their regular business dinner meeting at the Senior Center, Tuesday night, with Clyde Poe presiding. The food was prepared and served by some of the senior citizens —Maude and Odie Allen surprised the Jonesville senior citizens Thursday by bringing lunch for all of them. This was a gala occasion because they brought cake and ice cream too. Everyone was in a festive mood. We think a lot of our newly weds and feel they are still on their honeymoon. Don't you think it is wonderful when a couple in their eighties would do so much for their fellow senior comrades? There was so much excitement that they had to keep calling Maude back to play Rook with them. Maude loves to entertain with parties and it seems that Odie enjoys it as much as she does. I hope that I have the zest for living and being so happy when I'm in my 80's. Maybe this is what joining the Senior Citizens Center does for you. Come on out and join the Club!

—Marilyn C Pace, Executive Director, and Nancy Jeffrey, Nutrition Director, of Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Inc., Wise, Va., made a business trip to Jonesville, Thursday. They called on some of the merchants and business owners to inform them of the Senior Citizens I.D Discount Program. There was not enough time to visit all the merchants in Jonesville, so if you did not receive a call, don't worry, they may be back.

—Ms Pace and Mrs. Jeffrey visited the Senior Center while in Jonesville. They informed the Center that the MEOC I.D. Discount Staff would be here February 4, from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00, to make pictures for the Discount Card for anyone 60 years of age and older If anyone has not received a senior citizens card, be sure you are at the Center, in Cumberland Bowl Park, on that day If you have one, pass the word on to someone that doesn't.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Mr Robert Beasley of Dayton, Ohio, who passed away last week He was the son of Mr and Mrs Howard Beasley, Jr., and the grandson of the late Minerva and Howard Beasley, Sr., all former residents of Ben Hur.

—We are happy to report that Mrs. Billie Ann Muncy is back home and doing fine after undergoing surgery in Indian Path Hospital, Kingsport. I visited with her on Wednesday and was surprised to find her looking and doing so well. She and I talked so much, that a few minutes visit extended to almost two hours.

—Mrs. Mary Lou Howard of Harlan, Ky. came through the surgery at the Appalachian Regional Hospital, and is doing so well that her mother, Mrs. Vesta Muncey is rejoicing, along with family and friends, that God is so good to them.

God fills our cup to overflowing when we visit with people who know who the Lord Jesus Christ is, and depend on Him as the Source of their strength and health. Who know in whom to turn to every moment, day and night. More people need to turn to this Supreme Being in whom we live, and move, and have our being. My visit with Billie Ann Muncy filled my cup

God heard the prayers of all who prayed for the release of our hostages in Iran. Their freedom came on the day that President Jimmy Carter was going out of office, and a new president was taking the oath of office in the inauguration, President Ronald Reagan. His Inaugural Address and Parade was making news, simultaneously, with the news of their release We pray for our freed hostages and for the new administration We need to turn to God in all our ways.

There were twelve Jonesville Senior Citizens that enjoyed the beautiful, sunshiney day while in Pennington Gap Saturday Before returning home they enjoyed lunch at the local restaurant. A SECOND OPINION

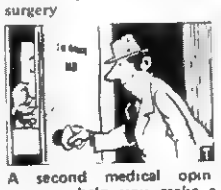
If surgery is recommended, a first-rate idea is seeking a second opinion

Many operations—tonsillectomies, hysterectomies and hernia repairs, for instance—are not emergencies. You can decide when—or even if—you should have surgery



A second medical opinion can help you make a better decision about whether to have surgery

One way to make the difficult decision of whether to have surgery is to seek the advice of another qualified doctor—a second opinion

There are differences of opinion about medical problems One doctor may recommend surgery, another may suggest waiting, a third may suggest an alternate treatment You'll be in a better position to decide what's best for you if you ask the right questions, get thorough information and have the opinions of two doctors

Gasoline Consumption Drops 5.4%

Virginia's gasoline use in November 1980 fell 5.4 per cent below the November 1979 consumption mark, and registered 1.2 per cent below the federal target established for Virginia.

Gasoline purchases during 1980 have consistently dropped below the consumption levels of corresponding months in 1979.

Virginia's gasoline purchase record was rated by the Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles has also kept the State under the month's federal consumption targets for nine out of the eleven months reported to date.

With the exception of the November figures Virginia is now under the federal targets on a cumulative basis by 2.0 per cent.

Virginia motorists have saved well over 100 million gallons over eleven months, which is quite an accomplishment in a state that is reliant on motor vehicles, said George L. Jones, State Coordinator Virginia Office of Emergency and Energy Services (OEES).

Figures released today by OEES indicate Virginia motorists purchased 210,682,000 gallons in November 1980 5.4 per cent less than the 222,658,000 gallons purchased in November 1979.

The Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles measures gasoline usage in the State by calculating gasoline sales for the month.

Price increases have had a significant impact on consumption, but the results of the trend toward smaller and more fuel efficient cars has also begun to surface," Jones said.

Jones pointed toward carpooling, vanpooling and the increasing use of mass transit as other factors that impact on individuals' gasoline purchases.

The target for the month of November, set by the U.S. Department of Energy (USDOE), called for the use of no more than 213,186,000 gallons. Virginia motorists fell short of this mark by 2,524,000 gallons, or 1.2 per cent.

Monitoring our performance in light of the federal targets is a voluntary process," Jones said, "but under provisions of the Emergency Energy Conservation Act (EECA) targets could become stricter and Virginia's compliance with the targets could become mandatory," he added.

EECA, passed by Congress in November 1979, established a new state federal partnership for dealing with future gasoline shortages.

"Title I of the Act is the coupon rationing plan, which is probably better known among the public," Jones said. If a fuel shortage reaches 20 per cent or greater, coupon rationing can be implemented by the President.

"Title II of the Act, though, is probably not as well known. If Title II were implemented, compliance with monthly gasoline consumption targets could be mandatory," Jones said.

Title II of the Act primarily establishes a state federal planning and implementation process to deal with shortages below 20 per cent.

Have We Waited Too Long?

Coal haulers are having a difficult time making a resonable profit and at the same time staying within the load limit regulations. It has been pointed out that the amount of fuel required to transport a full truck load and a load that will be within the prescribed load limits is just about the same.

This creates a problem that should be solved. The coal business is vital to this area. A healthy economy is also most important. If our state representatives have not taken a close look at the situation then it is time that they do so.

Transporting coal from the point where it is mined to the shipping point or to its destination is a vital fact of life in this area. It is simply not fair to the truckers or to the industry to literally force them to deliberately break the law in an effort to survive. The economy of this area is at stake.

For the good of all concerned it is time that the people of Lee County join together; put partisian politics aside and make a concerted effort to bring enough pressure to bear to induce the state government to understand that the time has come to provide the funds for the construction of roads that will make it possible for coal haulers to move their loads without fear of being arrested for violating the law.

According to recent news releases, the lawmakers of the Commonwealth of Virginia are now wrestling with the problem of how to dispose of the huge surplus in the state treasury. Appropriations sufficient to put the roads in satisfactory condition to allow these large trucks to get the coal moving would solve this problem.

Highways in Lee County have too long been neglected. Perhaps the people of the county have already waited too long to let their needs be known in a manner that would get the attention of the people who represent us in Richmond.

It is time that we use what ever means necessary to make our representatives respond to these needs.

A token gesture of a few miles of road improvement is not enough. We deserve more but unless we take the time and make the effort it is apparent that there is not likely to be much change in the attitudes or the policies of those who have the power to make these decisions.

We may have already waited too long.

IRS Projects 2,156,000 Virginians To File Returns

An estimated 2,156,000 Virginia residents will file Federal individual income tax returns for 1980, according to Internal Revenue Service projections. About 6,900 of them are from Lee County. A total of 2,138,000 Virginians filed 1040 and 1040A returns for 1979.

The IRS says the bulk of the 1980 tax packages should be delivered throughout Virginia by the U.S. Postal Service during the week between Christmas and the New Year's day. With only minimal changes in the tax law affecting 1980 returns, taxpayers will find both the "long form" 1040 return and the short form 1040A essentially with the same lines as last year, the IRS reports.

Among the IRS's these are the major tax law changes for 1980 returns:

*The allowable deduction for business use of a car or truck has been increased to 20 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 11 cents for each mile thereafter. The standard mileage rate for charitable, medical or moving purposes has been increased to nine cents per mile.

*Both the percentage (40%) and the maximum credit allowable ($4,000) for installing solar, wind, or geothermal energy equipment in connection with your principal residence are increased, and

*Real estate owners are the prime beneficiaries from live changes of the rules involving installment sales used to spread out taxes on the profit during the years in which the buyer makes payments to the seller.

In addition, taxpayers are being asked questions about their place of residence which the Census Bureau uses for distribution of revenue sharing funds.

Tax assistance, which includes ordering forms and any of the nearly 100 free publications, is as close as an individual's telephone, the IRS says. In an effort to keep the regular assistance lines open for tax questions, state-wide toll free telephone numbers are available for those persons who only need to order forms or free IRS publications. Richmond, 771-2327, elsewhere in Virginia, 1-800-552-9768. Hours, 8:15 A.M. - 4:30 P.M. Monday - Friday. No help with tax questions will be given at these numbers.

For answers to tax questions and advice for tax problems, other than ordering forms and publications, call IRS toll free, Monday - Friday, 8:15 A.M. - 4:30 P.M. Richmond, 649-2381, Northern Virginia, 557-9230, Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth Virginia Beach 461-3770, elsewhere in Virginia, 1-800-552-9500.

Individuals are encouraged to use the toll free system first to avoid long lines, excessive waiting time, or the unavailability of some forms at IRS offices.

Walk-in assistance during the January 2 - April 15 period will be available to persons in the Lee County area at the IRS office in Bristol, Va., in the Trayer Building, at 2195 Euclid Avenue, Monday - Friday, 8:15 A.M. - 4:45 P.M.

Taxpayers seeking walk-in help should bring all of the records necessary to complete the return such as W-2 wage statements and Form 1099 indicating interest or dividend payments as well as the tax package received in the mail with the peel-off address label. In addition, those receiving assistance at an IRS office should be prepared to complete as much of their own return as possible.

To insure the most prompt receipt of refunds, the IRS says to check returns for accuracy and correctness, be sure both spouses sign and date a jointly filed return, use the envelope and preaddressed peel-off label provided with each tax package to taxpayers, make any corrections right on the label, and file early.

To help us provide courteous answers, IRS sometimes listens to telephone calls. No record is kept of a taxpayer's name, address or social security number.

The key word for the use of fats in our daily diets should be "moderation." American diets are generally high in fat intake. We can reduce the amount of fat we eat simply by removing excess fat from meats, using lean cuts of meat, and using little or no fat in food preparation. We can cut down on our intake of such things as butter, margarine, and salad dressings.

It is important, however, to cut down but not out on fats. Some fat is necessary for good health.

Fats are the chief sources of essential fatty acids, as well as carriers of some essential vitamins, A, D, E, and K. Two little fat can result in a diet dificient in these nutrients.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service programs, activities, and employment opportunities are available to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap, or political affiliation. An Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer.

TRUST IN GOD'S VICTORY!
Matthew 13: 24-35

Christ spoke the parables for the purpose of securing the attention of those who composed His audiences, of stimulating their thinking faculties, and of enabling His listeners who were responsive to the truth to understand and to remember what He was saying, but, at the same time, His enemies were not able to comprehend what He was saying.

The Parable of the Tares -- Matthew 13: 24-30

A man sowed wheat in his field. An enemy stealthily crept into his field under the cover of darkness and sowed bad seed on the newly-plowed soil, perhaps before the good seed had been covered.

Both the good and the bad seed germinated and grew alongside each other. When the crop reached the stage that the discerning servants recognized the presence of the obnoxious weeds in the wheat field, they informed their master of their willingness to pull up the tares and destroy them. Knowing that the tares could not be uprooted without damaging the wheat, the owner commanded his servants to let the tares remain in the wheat field until the harvest, at which time the reapers could burn the tares and place the wheat in the bin for storage until it was turned into flour.

This parable points out the difference between the members of the churches, some of whom may be compared to the good seed and others to the bad seed.

The Parable Of The Mustard Seed -- Matthew 13: 31-32

A grain of mustard seed was the smallest seed husbandmen were accustomed to sowing. Normally it did not grow into a very large plant. However, in this case Christ said that its growth was so remarkable that what should have been an herb developed into a tree, which was large enough to attract the birds and they came and lodged in its branches.

This phenomenal growth of mustard from such a small beginning is a picture of the tremendous growth of Christianity. As the tree is defiled by the birds which lodge in its branches, so the unsaved, who unite with our churches, do the churches an injury and impede their growth, whether they do so for their own personal advantage in society, politics or business.

The Parable of the Leaven -- Matthew 13: 33-35

In both the Old and New Testaments the word "leaven" is used uniformly as a symbol of evil. However, some claim that in this passage there is an exception, and that here it is a symbol of good. They claim that the leaven represents the gospel of Christ and that the meal is a symbol of the world, thus teaching that in due time the entire world will be saved. This position I do not accept. Nevertheless, the leaven does give us a familiar picture of the power of human influence.

Here is today's quiz about those plastic cards that most people carry around in their wallets.

1. You lost your credit card, or it was stolen. How much money would you be responsible for if someone else used the card?

2. You lose your automatic bank card (you know, the one that works the bank's magic money machine), or it is stolen. How much money would you be responsible for if someone else used the card?

Here are the answers:

1. You liability is limited to $50 for each missing credit card.

2. There's a difference for automatic bank cards. If you notify the bank within two work days that the card is missing, your liability is $50. But if you don't notify the bank until more than two days have passed, you could be liable for up to $500.

To learn more about electronic transfer of your funds from banks (such as with the bank cards), send for a copy of the new Federal Reserve Board booklet Alice in Debitland. It's free from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 6053, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The two-day rule also applies to other electronic transfer systems. One system involves using a card that looks like a charge card. But instead of getting a bill when you buy something, the computer transfers the money directly from your account to the merchant's.

The rules usually apply to direct transfer of funds from your checking or savings account to pay bills, whether the money is sent automatically or you have to authorize the transfer over the phone.

If you have any of these accounts, the bank has given you a secret code number, usually on a separate piece of paper. Don't keep the card and the code in the same place. Then if someone does take the card, they will not be able to use it.

So that you can notify the bank quickly if you should lose the card, make sure you have the telephone number handy for reporting the theft. Keep a list of the card numbers so you can give those to the bank when you call. And make sure you read your monthly statement as soon as it comes. That way, you can protect yourself from loss because of theft or error.

To learn more about electronic transfer of funds, send for a copy of Alice in Debitland (free). At the same time, you will receive a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog, a listing of more than 200 free and low cost federal consumer publications. The Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration.

The members of the Pennington FHA Chapter really had a treat. On January 21, 1981 in the place of their monthly club meeting, the members visited Pizza Hut. Daniel Morrison, the manager, demonstrated the process of making pizza and allowed us to sample these works of art. He explained his job as manager and how he achieved this position.

This trip corresponded with our chapter project for this year - Jobs and Careers.

Your Share Of Federal Budget Is $3,200

Virginia taxpayers will have to contribute over $17 billion to former President Carter's proposed $739.3 billion federal budget for fiscal year 1982 beginning next October 1. The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce's estimate is based on the calculation that Virginia taxpayers bear 2.32 percent of all federal taxes.

Dividing $17 billion by 5.3 million, or the number of people in Virginia, yields a figure of just over $3,200 as the share for each man, woman and child in Virginia. Naturally, any substantial changes Congress may make in Carter's budget will reduce or increase the share Virginians will have to pay.

By contrast, Virginia's state government is operating on a budget of $11.6 billion for the 1980-82 biennium. This two-year budget is nearly $6 billion less than the state's share of the one-year proposed federal budget.

In addition to the familier individual income tax, the following federal taxes will be levied on Virginians: corporate income tax, estate and gift taxes; excise taxes on alcoholic beverages, tobacco, customs, etc.; trust fund taxes, including Social Security, motor vehicle fuel and highway user taxes; and airport and airway taxes.

The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce has not attempted to determine how much of the projected $27.5 billion deficit - money to be spent in fiscal 1982 but not collected - will be borne by Virginians.

Black Lung Medical Benefits Information

Any miner who is receiving benefits under the Black Lung Benefits Act is eligible for payment of medical treatment expenses for his/her black lung disease and directly related diseases at no cost to the miner. Medical treatment costs for these beneficiaries are covered in full, including doctor visits, travel expenses to and from the hospital or doctor's office, drugs and other expenses specifically prescribed by a physician for the treatment of coal workers' pneumoconiosis and related disease conditions. Beneficiaries are entitled to the reimbursement of covered medical expenses from the date they become eligible for benefits.

Black Lung beneficiaries' dependents are not eligible for medical benefits.

Tips To Expedite Medical Reimbursement Claims Filed By Miner's Or Their Survivors:

1. Always show the miner's social security number and identification number which is shown on the red and white medical card issued to each miner.

2. Always attach a statement from the physician showing that the treatment was for a lung or lung related condition. (All expenses must be verified)

3. Always list the drugs on Form CM-915. Be sure to include all the information regarding drugs, item purchased or respiratory therapy rendered in Item 5 on this form. Be sure to attach itemized receipts.

4. Always be sure to sign the reimbursement forms.

5. Claims for treatment or travel should be mailed to:
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
430 Evergreen Lane
Annandale, Virginia 22003

Claims for diagnostic tests or travel for the trip to take the tests should be mailed to the appropriate office which was responsible for authorizing the tests.

6. If any part of the expense has been paid, please annotate the amount paid and show the name of person or Insurance Company making the payment. (Attach proof of this payment.)

7. Always check to be sure the miner has a valid Black Lung Medical Card at the time the services are rendered.

8. A certificate of medical necessity signed by the treating physician is required for durable medical equipment, oxygen or respiratory therapy.

9. Prior approval is always needed for purchase of durable medical equipment.

10. If the hospital expense will exceed $100.00, prior approval should be obtained. If possible a telephone call should be made. In emergency cases, please telephone as soon as possible.

11. Providers (Hospitals, clinics, physicians, oxygen or durable medical suppliers, etc.,) should be sure to include their provider number assigned to them by the Department of Labor.

If the beneficiary has difficulty obtaining his medical benefits or has questions regarding the Black Lung Program, he should contact a U.S. Department of Labor, Division of Coal Mine Workers' Compensation Office for assistance. The Norton, Virginia, office is located at 630 Park Avenue, N.W. directly above the Social Security office. The telephone number is (703) 679-4590.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

A healthy, vigorous, growing economy, a workable, but reduced Federal government, and a firm, consistent foreign policy, backed by military strength — these are the goals enunciated by President Ronald Reagan in his Inaugural Address last week. Speaking briefly and clearly, he challenged the American people to believe in themselves and their country; to have faith that a solution to our problems can and will be found.

The United States government in recent years has been sagging under its own weight. It will take more than the "Scarsdale Diet" to reduce it to slim and trim proportions and restore it to the vitality of good health. Hopefully, President Regan will move quickly to deliver his proposals to the Congress, so the work can begin in earnest.

He took the first step on Inauguration Day by placing a freeze on Federal hiring. It is expected that by the time he delivers his State of the Union message to Congress next month, he will be ready to present comprehensive proposals to reduce Federal spending, impose a moratorium on new Federal regulations, and suggest changes in the tax structure that will act as incentives to greater productivity. These are the most important, most imperative steps toward reducing inflation and bringing our economy under control.

"As we renew ourselves here in our own land, we will be seen as having greater strength throughout the world." In those words, President Reagan correctly identified economic stability with worldwide strength and influence. However, he reminded friend and foe alike that the will and moral courage of the American people should not be underestimated. With a direct reference to "those who practice terrorism and prey upon their neighbors", the President indicated, that under his leadership, America would not tolerate the humiliation inflicted by the terrorists in Iran, ever again, anywhere in the world. The advance knowledge of his firm determination in this regard is credited with hastening the release of the hostages. Let us hope that the 97th Congress will give him the tools to "maintain sufficient strength to prevail if need be, knowing that if we do so we have the best chance of not having to use that strength."

I am looking forward to a period of rejuvenation for our country ... a tough struggle and a long one ... but I believe real progress can be made with strong leadership, a cooperative Congress, and the support of the American people.

Virginia Game Wardens Expose Wildlife Marketing Ring

NOTE: The following information was initially released on January 20, 1981 in conjunction with a Press Conference held at the Commission's Headquarters in Richmond, Virginia. It is again being printed in an effort to obtain optimum exposure of this vitally important information.

A massive undercover operation by Virginia Game Wardens, covering most of the area of Virginia north of the James River and extending across state lines into Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and the District of Columbia, has resulted in the arrest of, or the issuance of arrest warrants for, ten persons on eighteen charges of illegal traffic in wild game violation of State Laws. The operation also resulted in the collection of evidence involving approximately forty two violations of federal laws by eighteen individuals. The evidence of federal violations has been turned over to federal authorities by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries for use in prosecution in federal courts.

Those arrested for violations of State laws will be tried in courts in King George, Fairfax, Stafford, Augusta, Fauquier and Madison counties.

The illegal trafficking in wildlife was discovered by Virginia undercover game wardens as a result of continuing intelligence gathering activities. In recent years state game wardens have received intensive training in undercover operations and have developed improved intelligence gathering techniques. Using these modern investigative techniques, undercover wardens found thriving markets handling a wide variety of illegal game in several areas. The illegal operations involved the sale and transportation of deer within Virginia and the illegal sale and transportation of deer, bear, rabbits, ducks and geese across state lines. Undercover officers also observed squirrels, pheasants, muskrats and raccoons either illegally offered for sale or sought after for purchase by illicent merchants of wild game.

When, during the course of the three month long investigation, it became apparent that wildlife was being transported across state lines for sale in violation of the Lacey Act, agents of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service were invited to participate in the investigation.

The operation involved a number of Virginia undercover game wardens engaged in hazardous undercover work, working in remote areas, in cities, at night, frequently in potentially dangerous situations. In addition to the wildlife violations uncovered, at least one charge of illegal possession of narcotics resulted from this investigation.

Undercover intelligence gathering activities and investigations are regularly conducted by undercover game wardens of the Virginia Game Commission, operating statewide. These illegal commercial operations were discovered as a result of such intelligence gathering activities by undercover wardens operating in Northern Virginia, which led to the arrest of large scale buyers and suppliers of game species that were being sold through a number of retail market outlets.

Preliminary Results Of Eagle Survey Released

The following information was provided by Dr. Mitchell Byrd from the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia: "Tentative counts of Bald Eagles in Virginia during a recent mid-winter Bald Eagle Survey showed fewer birds than in 1980. The survey, which is sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, indicated in what are only preliminary figures, that 130 birds were counted in Eastern Virginia. There are only the initial figures and final results have not been completely tabulated at this time.

These figures compare with a count of 166 eagles in Virginia during the 1980 mid-winter census. The lower count in 1981 may largely have been due to the severe, inclement weather which precluded maximum coverage during the count period.

The largest number of birds observed was on the James River where 65 eagles were seen. It is thought that many of these eagles had been forced south to the James River from more northerly areas because of extensive ice.

Biologists continue to be encouraged by the large number of inmature eagles which are being seen in Virginia as well as other regions of the country.

Superstition is that if you use the same pillow your dog uses, you will dream what he dreams.

Dental Health Month

Again this year we address the national challenge of proper dental health. But this time, the 33rd observance has been changed from the traditional week to a full month, in response to a resolution passed by the American Dental Association's House of Delegates.

Dental health is more important than ever before and this once-a year special promotion for dental health education is intended to reinforce dental health programs and create an awareness of the new dental health "month, according to the American Dental Association.

They tell us that the spread of dental disease is all but universal, affecting 98% of the U.S. population. Tooth decay is a bacterial disease. The bacteria feed on the sugars and other carbohydrates in foods, creating acids which attack tooth enamel. This may occur at any time. So, dental health can't afford to wait and neither can you. The long range problems may be too costly for your teeth and your general health

This year's National CHildren's Dental Health Month theme is "Smile America! Take Care of Your Health.. Head First." Instruction on good oral hygiene is most important and it goes hand in hand with good nutrition.

Besides brushing and flossing programs, attention to diet is an important defense against tooth decay

Pay attention to the physical characteristics of the foods you eat. Sticky foods which stay on the teeth prolong the acid attacks caused by bacteria Reducing the sugars, fermentable carbohydrates, and sticky foods in your diet is an important step in reducing dental decay

A carefuly selected diet is important in reducing the foods that lead to tooth decay and in providing enough calcium for proper formation of primary and permanent teeth, especially important during the first years of life

A good diet plan is to select foods from the four food groups Milk, Meat, Fruit Vegetable and Grain

One way to select snack foods that are both nutritious and noncariogenic is to choose cheese cubes fruits and vegetables crackers, bread sticks, yogurt, popcorn and nuts, or a glass of milk All these foods provide a wide variety of nutrients and are good for dental health

Federal Crop Insurance Available On Tobacco

"Producers of burley tobacco may sign-up to protect their investment in their 1981 crop by obtaining all risk Federal Crop Insurance at the Lee County ASCS Office," ASCS Director, Charles M. Ingram says. The insurance offers protection against losses to tobacco crops due to drought, excessive moisture, insects, blue mold, frost, disease, flood, wind and all natural causes of loss. Only theft of the crop is not insurable.

Each policyholder will be provided a dollar guarantee based on the number of pounds of tobacco to be grown times 65 percent times the current year support price. The premium rate for Lee County is only 2.7 percent of the dollar guarantee. Premiums are not due until after tobacco is sold.

May 20 is the final date to apply for insurance on the 1981 crop. All interested persons may contact the Lee County ASCS Office for further information.

Lee County Rescue Squad On The Go

By Sarah McGee

The Lee County Rescue Squad has certainly been kept busy over the past few months; so let us catch our breath long enough to fill you in.

In 1980, the squad responded to approximately 443 rescue calls. 176 of these rescue runs took place in November and December. This involved around 2,800 volunteer men hours, and about 12,276 miles of travel. Apart from that, our members participated in 900 hours of training. This training included such things as: Advanced First Aid; Emergency Medical Technician Training; Defensive Ambulance Driving, Vehicle Extrication and C.P.R.

Furthermore, the squad purchased land on Kentucky Ave. which will be the future site of the Lee County Rescue Squad. We are very excited about those plans

The Junior Rescue Squad is in the process of recruiting more members. If you are 15 to 17 years of age and are interested in serving your community in an exciting, and challenging way; then you are just the person we are looking for! If you are interested contact any member of the squad or call 546-4563 for more information.

The squad, which is now being formed in the western party of the county, is presently responding to rescue calls on a limited basis. Forty one people are now involved in an Advanced First Aid course, in order that they might serve on this squad.

Well, that should about cover our present happenings. The entire squad would like to thank you for your continued support, in our efforts to serve you.

She gave a most interesting report on her recent tour to Jerusalem, Greece, Egypt, etc. She displayed various wood carvings, pictures, beads and a beaded hand bag, items bought on tour Mrs Laningham was the first Regent of Lovelady Chapter DAR after it was organized Mrs. George Taylor of Big Stone Gap, Virginia was the Organizing Regent The first meeting was held in the First Methodist Church in Pennington Gap. on November 9th, 1964 This was a luncheon meeting with 31 Charter members A number of visitors from neighboring Chapters attended making a total of 55 ladies present

Mrs Laningham has held many and varied offices since that time and continues to give generously of her time and talents in achieving the objectives of the Daughters of The American Revolution, which are Historical Educational and Patriotic

Mrs Laningham and Mrs Hattie Muncy Bales also a member of Lovelady Chapter, have compiled a two volume set of books Early Settlers of Lee County Virginia and Adjacent Counties, which have been most helpful to prospective members

At the conclusion of the program, members were given a copy of the story (which follows) of how our Chapter got its name

History Of The Name "Lovelady"

There has been so many inquiries about the name "Lovelady" from local people as well as State and National Officers that it seems necessary to give a brief history of the name.

When a new chapter of DAR is organized, it has to comply with the National Society DAR rules with regard to name. They require the name of a Revolutionary solider, a pioneer settler, a path, a route or a place of historic interest dating back before or during the Revolution. Lee County history before the Revolution is practically nil. Therefore, we had to depend more or less on historical incidents handed down by mouth from generation to generation. Some of the DAR members having heard older citizens who resided near Lovelady Gap tell the story of Thomas Lovelady, an Englishman, began searching for some authentic record of Thomas Lovelady, who with other pioneers, passed through Lovelady Gap sometime near 1770. The following story was told by Captain Joshua Hobbs, whose grandfather, Vincent Hobbs, was a friend of Thomas Lovelady

Thomas Lovelady and his wife, with a party of pioneers, made camp at a Gap in Wallen's Ridge Thomas Lovelady's wife, who was ill, could not continue so he remained at this camp with his wife who died and was buried near there Thomas Lovelady, not wanting to leave the grave of his wife, remained here, lived in a cabin alone, made friends with the Indians and his cabin became the stopping place for many pioneers on their way from Watauga settlement to Kentucky The Gap became known as Lovelady Gap.'

This story is practically verified by Harmon's Annuals of Southwest Virginia which states that Thomas Lovelady settled in Turkey Cove, Lee County, Virginia, during 1773, was a friend of the Indians and learned from them that they were planning to attack the white settlers Lovelady warned the white people of the approaching attack This angered the Indians and they murdered them Harmon's history states Lovelady was the first white settler in Lee County. This complied with the requirements of the National organization

The name Lovelady" Powell Valley" and Yokum Fort were presented to the National Executive Board from which to choose and approve a name for the new DAR Chapter The board approved both Powell Valley and Lovelady with a preference for Lovelady so the name Lovelady was chosen by the Organizing Committee of the Chapter

From a friend of the organizing Regent came this information I am so thrilled with the name of your new chapter It is quite fitting that such a romantic English name should be chosen by a DAR Chapter located in the section of Virginia which claims the purest strain of English blood now existing in the United States of America I have referred to the supposed history of the origin of English names and find the following

A gallant young English man fell in love with a beautiful lady whose father was the head of a feudal clan The young man stole his sweetheart and carried her to his castle There with his armored men, he defended his bride and defeated her father's attacking clan. Victory in a battle in the early English history meant knighthood, so the gallant young Englishman was knighted and named the Knight of Lovelady because he so gallantly defended his Love Lady

In the seventeenth century we find the Lovelady family living in other countries using the name Lovelattley, Loveledy and Lovetly. The spelling of all English names varied according to the pronunciation of the country or community in which they lived

Snow, Ice and Slick roads took their toll last week. This tractor-trailer rig, traveling U.S. Alternate 58 from Jonesville to Pennington Gap, separated with the trailer overturning on one side of the eastbound lane. The tractor, remaining upright, came to a stop on the median, separating the two lanes. No injuries were reported.

Family Quarrel Ends In Fatal Shooting

Frank Ball, 25, of Woodway, has been charged with murder in the Saturday night shooting of his brother Clarence Edward (Fred) Ball, 26, also of Woodway.

According to sheriff's reports, the shooting death came after the two brothers became involved in an argument over a bill while at the home of their father, Jay Ball, also of Woodway.

The sheriff's department received a call about 5:30 p.m. and according to Deputy Charles Elkins, the victim apparently died from stomach wounds received from a .30-.30 rifle.

There were no other injuries in the shooting which is still under investigation.

Frank Ball was released from the Lee County jail on $100,000 property bond with a preliminary hearing date set for February 9.

Clarence Edward (Fred) Ball was a lifelong resident of Lee County and an employee of Yale Mining Company.

Surviving are his wife, Virginia Ball, of Pennington Gap; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessee Ball, of Pennington Gap; maternal

Keokee Man Found Dead; Weekend Arrests Reported

Roy Holmes, 64, of the Rawhide section of Keokee, was found dead near a section of the railroad tracks Sunday by a Southern Railroad train crew.

According to a report by a local medical examiner, Holmes apparently died from over exposure to the cold.

In other news from the Lee County Sheriff's office:

A. J. Dickerson, of Big Stone Gap, a fugitive from justice, was arrested Saturday at Cudjo's Caverns by Sheriff R.V. Chadwell and Deputy Bud Rouse. Chadwell said that Dickerson was wanted on kidnapping charges in Wayne County, Kentucky. Hearing date was set for February 11.

Sheriff Chadwell also reported the recent arrest of a Pennington Gap juvenile in connection with the January 26 burglary of the Poor Valley home of Henry Clark. All stolen items were recovered with the exception of $20 which had already been spent.

The sheriff added that his department is well on the way towards wrapping up three other recent burglary cases with arrests due soon.

Capt. Combs Resigns Post

Sheriff R.V. Chadwell, in a recent announcement regarding personnel, reported the resignation of Captain Sam Combs.

According to Chadwell, Combs resigned in order to devote more time to his private logging business.

As a result of his resignation, effective February 1, Chadwell has promoted Deputies Charles Hall and Bud Rouse to the ranks of Sergeant joining Onzie Collier in this post. This action will provide a sergeant on duty during each shift.

Chadwell said he also plans to appoint a lieutenant in the near future once he has received confirmation of salary adjustments from the State Compensation Board.

Judge Gets Tough On 'No Show' Violators

What happens to an individual who fails to appear in court on the appointed date?

Four local men recently learned the answer to that question after failing to show at their appointed court times.

All four, Donald Lambert, Duffield, Robert Hopkins, Pennington Gap, Millard Rowe, Pennington Gap and Jerry Wayne Dean, Norton, were issued a capias by General District Court Judge William Fugate and were given the alternative to either make a surety bond or be arrested and jailed until the next scheduled court date of General District Court.

General District Court meets on Monday hearing traffic and civil cases, and every Wednesday for criminal cases.

Hospital Reports Survey Results

The results of a telephone survey conducted in December were discussed at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Lee County Community Hospital.

The purpose of the survey, according to Hospital Administrator Ron Bodary, was to determine the public's view of the hospital and to use the results of the survey to aide in the review of the hospital's long range plans.

Both Administration and Board of Director's members were very pleased with the results of the survey.

Those persons contacted during the random survey echoed comments heard daily by Administration and Board members about the excellent caring provided by the nursing staff and other personnel at the hospital.

Although portions of the hospital are quite old, comments from former patients or their relatives and friends emphasized the warmth and caring they experienced during their stay.

Another factor brought out during the survey was the need to travel long distances for care by certain basic physician specialists. As a result, the Board has identified certain physician specialists which it plans to recruit.

Administrative staff and members of the Board of Directors wish to thank those persons contacted during the survey for their comments.

VEA Says Teacher Wages Low

Despite increases in Virginia teacher salaries, a fifth of the state's school systems start beginning teachers out at $10,000 or less, according to the latest research from the Virginia Education Association.

The median beginning salary for Virginia teachers rose from $9,600 last year to $10,500 this school year, according to the VEA report, yet 27 of the state's 135 school systems employing nine percent of the state's teachers start at salaries of $10,000 or less.

The report, Salary Schedules for Classroom Teachers 1980-81, shows that minimum or beginning salaries in the state range from $9,000 in Charles City to $13,293 in Arlington while maximum or "top of the scale" salaries for teachers with bachelor's degrees range from $12,700 in Bland county to $24,585 in Arlington. In localities with rank low in teaching salaries, such as Craig and Bland counties, the maximum salaries for experienced teachers actually fall below the starting salaries in a high pay locality such as Arlington.

A teacher in Arlington would earn $403,507 over a 20 year career in the classroom, based on this year's salary scale for holders of bachelor's degrees. In Craig county, however, where career earnings are the lowest in the state, a teacher would receive less than 60 percent of that amount.

"When young people look at salary scales for teachers and see that in many Virginia localities,

Seed Catalogues Offer Promise Of Spring And Better Weather

Many an enjoyable cold winter evening has been spent armchair gardening as seasoned veterans and green gardeners alike carefully study the pages of the seed catalogues and dream of bountiful harvests ahead.

Those colorful spring planting guides generally arrive at the most opportune moment when holiday bubbling spirits have dwindled to a tiny fizz and the cold grey months of winter stretch endlessly ahead.

Disgusted with the high priced, tasteless fruits begrudingly called tomatoes, we view the pictures of the ripe, ruby red varieties and our mouths fairly water .. or read those savory descriptions of sweet corn which guarantee melt in your mouth goodness.

It all looks so tempting, so healthy, so promising you just want to sit down and fill out your order on

House Finance Group Kills Tobacco Tax

Added revenue for Lee, Scott and Washington counties will not come from the Quillen-Cantrell sponsored tobacco tax bill this year.

The effort to get the two cents a pack state tobacco tax proposal out of the General Assembly's House Finance Committee failed this week when the committee voted a 9-9 tie.

Had it passed, the bill would have levied a 2 cents per pack tax on each pack of cigarettes sold in the counties of Lee, Scott and Washington Counties.

The effort toward getting the bill passed would have, its sponsors asserted, provided a considerable amount of revenue for each of these counties. The revenue would have been earmarked for education and imposed at the option of the local board of supervisors.

Passage of the tobacco tax would have been the first in 13 years. In 1968, Arlington and Fairfax counties were the last localities to win approval of such a tobacco tax. It has been estimated that such a tax would have added some $50,000 to $85,000 in revenue to the Lee County budget.

Encouraged by the fact that the committee vote had changed from 10-8 to 9-9, within a year, the sponsors indicated that the bill would be up for the consideration of the General Assembly's House Finance Committee next year.

Camera Shy

Some critters, like some people, are just plain camera-shy as these two pictures plainly illustrate. As local temperatures dip in the teens and a wintry blanket of white alters our everyday schedules and actions, consider those beasts and feather-covered creatures who must endure a frozen environment. Feed your livestock and other farm animals or pets well and put out a few extra tidbits for the birds. After all, we're all creatures in the eyes of Our Maker.

Reading the offerings of the many seed companies is a pleasant way to spend a snowy winter's evening.

the spot so you can get the ball rolling and be the first in your neighborhood to have early lettuce.

"HOLD ON!" is the advice of local Extension Agent Harley Young, who reminds folks that May 10 is considered our frost date.

Don't get so carried away with plans for your future garden that you overlook some mighty important details, Agriculture Agent Young warned.

When making selections for seeds and plants for your garden, several factors must be considered.

First, you have the option of ordering from seed companies or buying from local farm supply and greenhouse outlets. "Just make sure that the seed you choose to grow is suited for the climate and growing conditions of the area and has been scientifically tested, usually by a state agriculture testing facility such as Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

In your seed catalogues, the description of the seed and the necessary growing recommendations usually include such research information.

Free printed matter with regard to varieties best suited for Virginia and this region are readily available at your local Extension office for the asking.

Extension Agent Young also recommended that the family considering raising its first vegetable garden should have a soil sample made. Directions and special containers for this test are also available upon request from your local Extension office. The soil sample will provide specific details on the acidity of your soil making recommendations for the amount and strength of fertilizer and/or lime to add.

Ideally, the section of ground to be planted in garden should be plowed or turned under at least once before spring plowing and seed bed preparation to allow the soil to go through the freeze-thaw cycle once or twice, Young said.

Once the garden has been planted, he suggested, it is critical to the future health of your crops that you set up a regular spray schedule and follow it. By doing this you can deter harmful diseases or pestilence before any real problems begin.

Again, your local Extension office offers valuable information free for the asking with regard to what vegetables and flowers grow best beside one another and how much yield to expect from a given garden area.

For instance, the agriculture agent said, many people don't realize that use of any type of tobacco product such as smoking a cigarette while you work in the garden can cause a problem with mosaic in your green peppers, leading to deformed leaves and low yield.

Likewise, you're just asking for trouble if you plant tomatoes in the vicinity of a walnut tree as the two aren't compatible.

As a final suggestion, Young pointed out that the amateur gardener doesn't have to buy a lot of expensive tools or equipment to raise a productive garden.

He advised that before you turn your first shovel ful of soil, stop and consider the reasons for raising a garden ... figure in your labor, costs and time involved. If you're in it for the economy, make sure that indeed it figures out to be cheaper than buying the same product from the store.

offer TV rental services to its patients.

The rental television service will provide one 19-inch color TV mounted on the wall in each room at a charge of $2.50 a day (24 hour period), with the exception of pediatrics (Room 109) where the service will be free. The $2.50 charge could be shared as in the case of semi-private occupancy.

According to Mrs. Sandra Montgomery, an Auxiliary secretary and chairman of the television service committee, each patient choosing to take advantage of the rental service will have access to an individual bedside speaker.

An Auxiliary member will make the rounds of patients' room each afternoon to sign up persons interested in TV rental.

The television rental program will be in effect within the next month, allowing for a two week installation period, Montgomery said.

Hospital officials feel that by adopting this uniform TV rental policy, fire safety hazards will be reduced and patients will be spared the inconvenience of having to haul personal TV sets from home which often take up precious space in already cramped facilities.

Chairman Montgomery pointed out that once the rental system is completely in effect, no personal television sets from home will be allowed at the hospital.

She suggested that perhaps friends or family of hospital patients might want to give a TV rental gift certificate available through the Auxiliary instead of the traditional flowers or candy.

Restrictions On Visiting Lifted

Beginning February 3, the Lee County Community Hospital announced that normal visiting hours were resumed.

The Hospital reports that the number of cases of flu have subsided based on consultation with the medical and nursing staff.

The Hospital Administration and staff wish to express their appreciation to friends and relatives of patients during this limited visiting period.

We request visiting by friends and relatives during the cold season be limited voluntarily. We ask that anyone who has symptoms of the flu or has been recently exposed, not visit. Patients in weakened conditions are more susceptible to the flu.

Visiting hours at the hospital are from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Visitors need to pick up visitor passes from the Hospital Volunteer representative before going to the patient's room.

Teacher Wages Low

they can expect to start out at $9,500 or less, and they see what they will have earned after a lifetime of service in the classroom, it is easy to see why many of the best are turning to other more lucrative careers," said VEA President Walt Mika.

"Salaries for Virginia teachers aren't keeping up with those around the nation, or even in the southern states surrounding us. And they're certainly not keeping up with salaries in other professions," he added. "Serious thought must be given to what Virginia can do to raise teacher salaries dramatically."

Salary Schedules for Classroom Teachers, an annual report of the VEA research division, is a detailed locality-by-locality look at teacher salaries in Virginia, including tables on maximum and minimum salary scales, rankings of each county and city, and "lifetime" earnings of teachers. It also includes complete salary schedules for each school division in the state and information on pay for teachers in summer school programs and night school programs for adults.

What About Lee County?

And just how do Lee County school system teachers fare as compared to salaries paid teachers in other systems in the state?

The minimum annual salary for a holder of a Bachelor's Degree is $10,604. This is $814 over the salary scale for 1979-80. This salary scale ranks 52nd of the 135 systems listed.

The maximum salary scale for Lee County teachers with a Bachelor's Degree is $16,126. They received an increase of $1466 in 1980-81 over the previous school year. The salary of such teachers ranks 59th of the 135 listed.

The report showed that a teacher with a bachelor's Degree who teaches 20 years at the 1980-81 scale will earn a total of $260,432. This amount ranks 77th of the 135 reported. Close scrutiny is exercised over ALL ADVERTISING (Classified or Display) accepted for publication in [illegible] newspaper.

We never knowingly publish advertisements that are untruthful or fraudulent -- and detrimental to the best interest of our readers. All advertisements are accepted for publication on the promise that they are factual, that products advertised are properly described at the advertised price and will be willingly sold to the customer at the price and conditions in the advertisement.

If any reader ever encounters anything other than faithful compliance with these conditions we would appreciate your calling or writing the Powell Valley News: Phone 546-1210.

Classified ads placed by persons who do not have a regular account with the Powell Valley News must be paid for in advance. This policy is effective January 1, 1976, due to the fact that the expense of collecting such ads is prohibitive.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has ordered to be published, pursuant to Sections 29-125, 29-126 and 29-127 of the Code of Virginia, the following proposed changes in Commission regulations applicable statewide. Public hearings on the advisability of adopting, or amending and adopting, each of the proposed changes, or any part thereof, will be held at the Howard Johnson's Midtown Motor Lodge, 3207 North Boulevard, Richmond, Virginia, beginning at 9:30 a.m., on February 19 and 20, 1981, at which any interested citizen present shall be heard. If the Commission is satisfied that proposed changes in its regulations, or any parts thereof, are advisable, in the form in which published or as amended as a result of the public hearing, the Commission may adopt each such proposal, acting upon the proposals separately or in block.

CHAPTER 23.
Fishing Generally.
Amend Regulation R23-2. Creel limits, to establish a separate limit of eight per day for walleye or yellow pike perch and eight per day for chain pickerel or jackfish statewide, except that ten walleye a day may be taken from South Holston Reservoir below full pool elevation of 1730.

Amend Regulation R23-13 to read as follows: R23-13. Permits required for striped bass fishing rodeos, etc.

No person shall organize, conduct, supervise, or solicit entries for, striped bass fishing tournaments, rodeos, or other striped bass fishing events on the inland waters of this State, for which prizes are offered, awarded, or accepted, either in money or other valuable considerations, without having applied for and obtained a permit from the Commission to do so. Exercising a due regard for the distribution, local abundance, economic value, breeding habits, and natural growth potential of striped bass in the affected public waters, the Executive Director is authorized on behalf of the Commission to issue or deny permits pursuant to this regulation, and to establish such special rules for each tournament as may be deemed necessary, after consulting with the State Fish Biologist and with the approval of the Commission's Fish Committee as designated from time to time by the Chairman. Failure to comply with all special rules and other provisions of any permit issued pursuant to this regulation may be deemed grounds for denying the permittee a permit for a similar event to be held within three years from the date of such failure of compliance.

Amend Regulation R26-9. Taking carp and gar with bow and arrow. Section (a) Season to eliminate the closed season only on taking carp and gar with bow and arrow from the public inland waters of the State, except waters stocked with trout, during the daylight hours only.

Gilley - Robbins Exchange Vows

Kathy (Robbins) and Barney Gilley

Kathy Ann Robbins became the bride of Barney Gilley Jr. on December 27th at the First United Methodist Church in Pennington Gap.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Paul B. Robbins and the late Mr. Robbins of Pennington Gap.

The Rev. Kenneth Perkins performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with red poinsettias and flanked by candleabras holding white candles.

A program of wedding music was presented by Rebecca Robbins of Bristol, cousin of the bride and Sidney Fannon of Pennington Gap. Musical selections included traditional wedding marches, "Annie's Song," "Together," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her uncle William Roy Stewart of Norton, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza. The fitted bodice featured a high neckline outlined with a dainty lace, English net yoke trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace, pearl clusters and irredescents and bordered with maribu; lace with pearl clusters accented the bodice and empire waistline. Full bishop sleeves, with an undersleeve, accented with lace motifs, were cuffed with a wide band of organza and edged in maribou. Her a-line skirt was highlighted with an over-skirt edged in maribou and a deep gathered flounce complimented the hemline and chapel train. The bride's elbow length veil of white illusion was attached to a bandeau coverd with white maribou. She carried a muff trimmed in maribou and white carnations.

Mrs. David Pressnell of Big Stone Gap, cousin of the bride was matron of honor and wore a red and green plaid gown with a red velvet bodice and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Bridesmaids were Ginger Sullivan and Selina Light of Pennington Gap. Their gowns were identical to that of the Matron of honor.

Nicole Wolfe, of Flagar Beach, Florida, niece of the groom was flower girl and wore a red and green plaid gown with red velvet ribbons.

The groom's brother, Steve Gilley served as best man. Groomsmen were Wayne Gilley of Big Stone Gap, cousin of the groom and Eddie Gardner of Big Stone Gap.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the Methodist Church.

The bride was graduated from the American Labratory Institute, Nashville, Tenn., with a major in medical technology and is now attending Clinch Valley College.

The groom was graduated from Mountain Empire Community College with a major in business management and is employed by Gilley's Jewelers in Pennington Gap.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Gilley, Sr. of Big Stone Gap.

Following a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, Tenn., the couple are residing in Pennington Gap.

Miss Kelly - Mr. Gibson To Wed

Lisa Kelly, daugnter of Suzie Kelly, of Dryden and Don Gibson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carter Gibson of Pennington, will be united in holy matrimony on February 14, at 6:30 p.m. in the Deep Springs Missionary Baptist Church. The candlelight, double ring ceremony will be performed by the Rev. David Brewer.

Plant Trees Today

By Harold Jerrell
Va. Division Of Forestry

The Virginia Division of Forestry is now taking tree orders for spring planting. As soon as the ground thaws, millions of seedlings will be ready for sale that someday will provide sawlogs, pulpwood or veneer for our wood using industries. With the increased sale of wood burning stoves, wood will be a valuable item on the market in just a few years. Wood is already bringing a premium price around the metropolitan areas with tree poaching being added as a new and increasing type of crime.

The use of wood for energy is certainly going to play an important role in the next few years. Fortunately, we live in a area where wood is still plentiful. The average landowner in Lee County has 33 acreas of woodland. Is this enough to assure a continued supply? Considering the inability to harvest some of this acerage and improper management, we could very well be mislead. As we have mismanaged the use of coal, oil and gas, the same could occur with our use of wood.

Our forest should be managed in such a way that we still can have a multiuse forest. Poor quality or diseased trees should be used for fuel with the end result being that although we have removed trees, we have improved growing conditions for the remaining trees that someday will be sold for sawlogs.

The decision that affects the outcome will be made by you. Wood is a renewable energy source where as coal, gas and oil are not. Why not assure the next generation of an adequate energy supply by practicing sound conservation practices today. The Virginia Division of Forestry has professional foresters available to assist the land owner in all phases of forest management. Most all services offered are also free of charge.

For assistance in Lee County, contact Harold Jerrell 445 5448 after 5:00 p.m. Daytime emergency calls such as forest fires, should be reported to your local sheriff's department immediately.

More than two million acres of Virginia's cropland need better conservation practices, said Edward B. Hale, Extension agricultural engineer at Virginia Tech. Only 981,492 of the almost three million crop acres are considered to be adequately protected, according to a recently released report.

Sunday School Lesson

HAVE COMPASSION — Matthew 15: 29-39

After traveling and ministering through Phoenicia, especially in the area of Tyre and Sidon, Christ and the disciples returned to Galilee. Tired and desirous of escaping the crowds and acquiring some rest, they ascended a mountain near the east shore of the Sea of Galilee. The statement He "sat down there" implies that Christ wanted to rest from His labors, and to have an opportunity to give the disciples additional instruction. The multitudes soon found Christ on the mountain, and many of them who lived nearby brought with them their loved ones and friends who were "lame, blind, dumb, maimed," etc., and hastily placed them at the feet of Christ and rushed back to bring other afflicted ones into His presence, believing that the Great Physician could and would heal them. As the crowds witnessed Christ's display of the mighty power of God in the performance of the miracles of healing, "they glorified the God of Israel." His miracles vindicated His claim to have come from God, proved that He was man's benefactor, and brought great glory to the Father. Their thanksgiving and praise should constitute a challenge to us to do likewise when Christ demonstrates His love and compassion toward us.

Reluctant to leave and return to their homes, the crowd continued to watch Christ's miracles and to listen to His teaching. Naturally, they became hungry for food. Unwilling to send them away before they received nourishment, Christ summoned the disciples and let them know that He was concerned about the souls and the bodies of people, and for that reason He did not intend to send the crowds away while they were hungry. The disciples readily stated that they did not have sufficient food to satisfy the hunger of so many people. They let it be known that seven loaves of bread and a few small fish were all that they could supply. When the disciples presented their loaves and fishes to the Master, Christ ordered the people to sit or recline on the ground in orderly fashion, after which He gave thanks to the Father for the food, multiplied the amount of the food, gave the pieces of it to the disciples, and they in turn distributed them to the hungry multitude until the appetites of all were satisfied. It should be remembered that 4,000 men plus a large and unknown number of women and children were supplied with an abundance of good food by Christ, ministering through the disciples. When the hunger of all was completely satisfied, the disciples gathered up seven baskets of leftovers. This is a splendid example of Christ's refusal to allow anything to be wasted.

All Christians, who seek to please and honor their Saviour, should have compassion on the multitudes who have numerous physical and spiritual needs, and should do their very best to meet those needs as the Lord enables them. None of us will ever regret following the example which Christ has set for us in helping others. Like our Lord, out of hearts of compassionate love we should strive to help those who hurt, who are helpless, and who are hungry for food for the soul or for the stomach.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Gerald Wayne Hendricks who departed this life February 3, 1979.

Two years have come and gone
Since you were called away from home
As we sit on the porch during the summer
We often look toward the place you always parked and wonder.
Wonder as we recall all the times we watched as
You walked up the steps toward home
Where have all the happy years gone.

Sadly missed by

Grayson Urges Changes In Teacher Certification

This statement from House of Delegates member, George W. Grayson of the 51st District, outlines his proposals for Teacher Certification requirements.

For years we have made excuses about the uneven quality of public education in Virginia. We have relentlessly blamed television, segregation, desegregation, drugs, rising divorce rates, permissiveness, inadequate funding, and other factors for sagging Scholastic Aptitude Test (S.A.T.) scores and the unacceptably high proportion of ill prepared – sometimes semi-literate – students who annually receive high school diplomas. As one writer expressed it, blame has been placed on "everything but sunspots and the phases of moon."

We have had enough excuses. American society has always labored under a number of stresses, including wars, depressions, recessions, and migrations. The hour has arrived to take prudent steps to improve our state's educational system. The public demands no less. The General Assembly and the State Board of Education cannot shirk this responsibility.

Where do we begin? Our needs are many; our resources limited. However, the teacher is the most important element in education, and any successful reform must begin by improving the competence of individuals who teach, or aspire to teach, our youngsters.

The time is long overdue for major improvements in teachers' salaries. The 1981 General Assembly will make progress in this area, but we must be prepared to appropriate even more monies in the next session. The dogma that administrators merit higher compensation than teachers must also be vigorously reexamined.

As elected officials, we can justify – and mobilize support for – significantly improved salaries only if we make certain that the most qualified individuals available receive certificates to teach in our schools.

The current system perpetuates a cruel hoax on students, parents, and employers. It must be changed. Except for a few cases, our schools of education simply do not perform the kind of a job we as legislators and taxpayers have a right to expect. While there are a handful of exceptions, most of these institutions suffer from (1) inadequate, or nonexistence, screening of prospective majors, (2) students with lower S.A.T. scores than their peers in other fields, (3) curricula filled with "how to" courses, (often considered "cripe") rather than substantive offerings, (4) spiraling grade inflation, (5) a passion for tape recorders, slide projectors, video-tape machines, and "visual aids", rather than attention to rigorous analysis and mastery of a subject matter, (6) use of a jargon of "Educationese" that mocks the English language, (7) loosely coordinated and sometimes poorly executed practice teaching programs for students and (8) a readiness to certify – and recommend for jobs – too many men and women who are demonstrably unqualified to pursue the world's most important profession. It is amazing that, despite these well known problems, Virginia boasts thousands upon thousands of good, dedicated teachers.

Below are test scores of students who intend to concentrate in education compared to those planning to enter other fields.

The schools of pedagogy will not reform themselves. Few institutions in history have. In this case, too much is at stake – pride, reputations, and – most important – the almighty FTE (Full-Time Equivalent "student") that determines teaching positions, administrative posts, operating budgets, and influence within the school's parent college or university. Education associations, institutions of higher education, and bureaucrats also have a vested interest in the status quo.

Members of the General Assembly have sworn to uphold the Constitution of Virginia, Article VIII (Section 1) of which provides that "an educational program of high quality . . . (will be) established and continually maintained." Because of this mandate, I have introduced House Joint Resolution 254 to help qualified liberal arts graduates obtain teaching certificates, even if they have not taken professional education courses. Its general purpose is to open the teaching profession to individuals who have the intellectual and personal qualifications to work effectively with students.

In preparing to teach youngsters with reading problems, learning disabilities, and other special needs, certain education courses are useful. But, in my view, individuals who wish to teach English, mathematics, history, science, etc. may best equipt themselves by taking as many substantive courses as possible related to their area of concentration.

A person's competence and personality – not the number of pedagogy courses completed – should determine whether he or she gains access to one of the most, if not the most, important precincts of our society: the classroom.

USDA Issue 408-Page Yearbook On How To Cut Energy Costs

"Cutting Energy Costs," the 1980 Yearbook of Agriculture, was issued today by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The 408-page book is designed to help bring down energy costs of farmers, foresters, homemakers, communities and the food industry.

"Every American should find something worthwhile in this volume," Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said in the book's foreword. "... All of us are well aware of how the increases in energy costs have cut into our incomes.

"Farmers especially have been struggling to hold down their production energy requirements so that Americans can continue to get their food at reasonable cost," he said. "In fact, a new agricultural revolution may be in progress -- one in which agriculture's own renewable energy supplies may be used increasingly to fuel farm machinery, heat farm buildings, dry grain and serve many other purposes."

"Some of agriculture's renewable energy supplies already are being used in gasohol to fuel the family car."

A copy of "Cutting Energy Costs" may be purchased by sending a check or money order for $9.50 to Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Australian Fencing

Local Extension Agent Harley Young stands beside a span of recently-installed fencing new to Lee County. Described as Australian design, the fence is five taunt, high tinsel steel wires stretched between fiberglass posts. This fence, part of a demonstration, is the process of being put up on the Frank Litton farm in Dot under lease by Guy Gilbert.

According to Young, 12-guage wire is less expensive than barbed wire and the fence is automatically held tight by special springs as shown in the picture. All strands or separate strands can be electrified by a special high voltage, low amp electric charge. A charger can send juice up to a range of 20 miles. This Australian design fence is a cheaper alternative of fencing, costing about half as much as a smiliar span of barbed or electric fencing.

1,000 CETA Jobs To Be Eliminated In Virginia

Eleventh hour Congressional budget cuts have drastically reduced 1981 funding for CETA Title VI public service employment in Virginia's Balance-of-State area, according to Arthur L. Lane, Jr., DPA, commissioner of the Virginia Employment Commission.

Two "continuing resolutions" approved by Congress in November and December of last year are responsible for funding cuts totaling $7.3 million from the $14 million budget originally planned for Balance-of-State Title VI Programs. As a result, as many as 1,000 public service jobs for skilled Virginians temporarily out of work must be eliminated by June of this year, William F. Dillon, Jr., VEC associate commissioner for CETA, said.

The Balance-of-State area includes almost half of Virginia's population, primarily in rural areas not served by one of the state's ten independent CETA programs.

Unable to agree on a final Labor Department budget, which includes CETA funds, legislators passed resolutions which allow programs to continue functioning at specified levels until budget appropriations are finalized. The December resolution cut Title VI funds by $500 million nationwide, effectively eliminating 44,000 public service jobs across the country.

Balance-of-State Title VI funds were further reduced from their November allotment of $9.8 million to $6.7 million. The second resolution continues in effect until June 5, unless Federal legislators are able to agree on a different final budget before then.

"Since this Title VI reduction came after one quarter of the fiscal year has passed, we actually have only $4.4 million left for the remainder of fiscal year 1981 (ending September 30, 1981)," Dillon said.

"That $6.7 million figure is the total we will be allowed to grant for Title VI positions, including what has already been spent since October 1," he continued.

Problems caused by funding cuts were increased by the "Omnibus Reconciliation Act" of December, 1980, which holds public service employers responsible for the unemployment insurance (UI) compensation due CETA workers when their federally-funded jobs end. Formerly, UI benefits for ex-CETA workers were paid by the federal government.

UI tax liability for Balance-of-State Title VI workers alone could run as high as $500,000, Dillon said.

A second CETA public service employment program, Title IID, a transitional employment program for training unskilled or inexperienced workers through community projects, was not affected by the latest funding cuts. However, UI tax liability for Title IID workers could run as high as $600,000 in the Balance-of-State area, Dillon said, further reducing the funds available for wages and the services they provide.

Trimming Down

As they try to trim down, firm up, or just plain "feel good," increasing numbers of Americans have turned to exercise, jogging, and physical fitness programs.

Having capitalized on this national craze, the manufacturers of athletic wear and equipment can boast that their business is booming. In fact, business is so good that consumers who have joined the ranks of the health fanatics have more and more choices to make. Athletic products now vary in style, quality, and price.

Sneakers and tennis shoes, for example, can be of canvas, nylon, or leather. They might be the "lace-to-toe," "circular vamp" or "U-throat" style. Their prices can range from five to thirty dollars. And if that's not enough variety, "running shoes" are a different choice al together. With so many decisions to make, the consumer can easily be ripped off if he doesn't know where and how to shop.

Many outlets have sneakers, golf shoes, spikes and jogging shoes at 40 percent off. Shopping at factory outlets is one way for the athlete to trim their budget while trimming their shape.

There are literally hundreds of factory outlets in New York and New Jersey which sell items other than athletic wear, like home furnishings, food, china and fashion accessories. A practical guide to these outlets is the Factory Outlet Shopping Guide by Jean Bird. The guide describes the quality of the merchandise offered and the discounts shoppers might expect to find in each outlet. It also offered and the discounts shoppers might expect to find in each outlet. It also alleviates the problem of tracking down hard-to-find outlets since it supplies directions to every listed outlet. The Factory Outlet Shopping Guide makes outlet shopping less scary by suggesting what to do and advising what NOT to do once you get there.

Shopping at a factory outlet can trim expenses on quality athletic equipment and other merchandise by as much as 75 per cent. With savings like these, consumers can buy all the athletic paraphernalia they want and really "feel good!"

The Factory Outlet Shopping Guide is published annually for New Jersey & Rockland County; New York; Pennsylvania; New England; North and South Carolina; and Maryland - Virginia - Washington, D.C. - Delaware.

The Guides are available at most bookstores for $3.95 or may be ordered by mail from: Factory Outlet Shopping Guides, P.O. Box 239R, Oradell, NJ 07649 for $4.45 including postage and handling. Review copy upon request.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

Among the Notable Days of February is the birthday of Daniel Boone who was born on February 11, 1734 in a log cabin. His parents settled in the Quaker Colony of Pennsylvania He was from a large family

He was one of the best known of American pioneers, from his early life to old age his days were full of adventure. He made many expeditions and at one time on one of these trips he traveled across the continent

Daniel did not learn to read and write until he was fourteen years old because there were few schools during his life on the frontier His father owned good pasture land and he worked hard to keep the cattle from straying in the woods He learned much from nature and the days spent in the woods helped him lay a foundation for his fame as a hunter His father gave him his first rifle when he was twelve years old

The Boone family moved to North Carolina When he was twenty one he fought in the French and Indian War After the war he began to explore the wilderness He later married and reared a family. He then devoted more and more of his time to hunting and going on expeditions. Finally in 1767 he went westward with one companion into the mountains of Kentucky But it was not until 1769 he set out on an expedition that made him one of the founders of the state

At one time he was captured by the Indians but managed to escape. By 1773, settlements were made there, and on June 1, 1792, the land became the state of Kentucky, the fifteenth star on the flag

Years after his death a monument was built in his memory at Frankford, the capital city He was one of the early pioneers to explore the region, and help settle it, and by honoring him, they honored what was greatest in pioneer men who had gone into the wilderness with great risk to their lives to build a nation

The life story of Daniel Boone is very interesting but we better get back to the present time

Think of it as a savings account with scenery.

FDIC

There are all kinds of checks, you know.

Plain checks. Fancy checks. Beige checks. Blue checks. Even checks with palm trees and other pretty pictures.

Now, we love palm trees. But in these inflationary times, we think the prettiest pictures around are portraits. Of guys like George and Abe and good old Andy Jackson.

That's the reason for our new NOW account, the checking account that pays you for putting your money in it.

Of course, to keep it working like a checking account but earning interest like a savings account isn't duck soup. It takes some fancy figuring and special conditions. Things like minimum balance, average balance.

So it makes more than a little sense to go to the people with the most practice. Us. We're A Full Service Bank,* the home of modern checking, and we've got it down to a science. Isn't that beautiful?

Look for this symbol. We've got the answers.

Caffeine is also found in products made from these plants, such as cocoa and chocolate, and cola and pepper-type drinks

The amount of caffeine normally present in a cup of coffee is about 90 milligrams Decaffeinated coffee has up to 97 percent of the caffeine removed

The U.S Food and Drug Administration's Standard of Identity for soft drinks provides for caffeine in cola drinks They are made of carbonated water, acidulated sugar syrup, extracts from decocainized cocoa beans and kola nuts, and other flavoring material. Cola drinks contain caffeine in amounts ranging from 20 to 36 milligrams per 6-ounce serving A one ounce sweet chocolate bar contains about 20 milligrams of caffeine

1981 Feed Grain Notices To Be Mailed

Vice-Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, Max Graham, has announced that the ASCS office will be mailing farmers their Feed Grain Allotment and Yield Notices the last week in January. Each farmer who has reported a planted acreage of one or more of the four program crops of corn, wheat, barley and grain sorghum since 1977 will receive a notice.

The notice will contain the farm's normal crop acreage allotment (NCA) as well as the established yields of any of the four above crops grown since 1977. The NCA is based on the total amount of planted feed grain and wheat acreage reported in 1977.

If a producer desires to prove a yield for a crop, he must file a request within 15 days of the date of the allotment notice. Acceptable evidence includes commercial or warehouse receipts, sale or elevator receipts, ect.

Graham also stated that under the terms of the 1981 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs, producers will not be required to plant within their farm NCA to receive full program benefits. Producers will be eligible for low yield benefits, price support, prevented planting protection and commodity loans by timely filing an acreage report at the county office.

Self Rescuers Delay

A federal court ruling requiring immediate installation of oxygen generating, self contained self rescuers in the nation's coal mines was hailed as "a tremendous victory for coal miners' safety everywhere." by UMWA President Sam Church Jr

"This proves what we were saying all along These machines are reliable, necessary and will save lives, despite what some coal operators tried to claim," Church said

More than 10 years ago Congress mandated the development of rescuers which could produce at least an hour's oxygen After years of delay the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration set a December 21, 1980 deadline

But the coal industry was able to convince MSHA that a six month delay was needed for additional testing, despite years of thorough experiments which proved the units' reliability. The U.S. Court of Appeals rules that MSHA's actions in granting the delay were too hasty

"This is just great," said UMWA Safety Director Everett Acord, "although it's a shame it took a court decision to enforce what should have been a common sense safety policy"

Jonesville Senior Citizens

Sunday was "Men's Day" at Jonesville First Baptist Church. It sure looked good to see 15 men in the choir, and more wonderful to hear them singing their specials without any back up from the ladies. We wish they would do this more often. The four "little men" passing the collection plates were the triplets of Laura and Charles Arney, Michael Matthew, and Mark Arney and Keith Hensley son of Sandy and Phil Hensley. I noticed that two of the fathers in the choir were beaming proudly. Everyone was smiling as these boys did an excellent job.

Rev. K.S. Cardaniel sang in the choir with the other men. The pulpit was given to Mr. Dane Poe who gave a remarkable talk and testimony of some of his experiences of the past twenty years. It was truly a Christian testimony. He is a member of Jonesville Baptist, and was introduced by his brother in law, Mr. Gary Martin, as our guest speaker."

The women of this church can keep a secret. Mrs. K.S. (Frances) Cardaniel was surprised with a birthday dinner at the postorium following church services. Sharing the birthday dinner with her was her husband, also, their son Ken, his wife Lawanna, and two children from Harrogate, Tenn., their daughter, Barbara, her husband, Rev. Ernest Mullins and young daughter. The family kept the secret from Frances. All of us wish that you had a wonderful birthday.

—I would like to wish "Happy Birthday" to my grandson, Richard Govitz, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., January 27th, from his Grandma Baumgardner. He reads this paper and this will surprise him. I could say that he is 23 and unmarried, but I won't.

—Seems like a lot of activites at Jonesville Baptist, Sunday. There are some that I won't write about. One that was outstanding was the Sing-A-Long at the night services. There were duets, trios, quartets, and congregation singing. All did a wonderful rendition with their songs, but one I would like to mention, and that was the Poe Family Quartet, Clyde Poe, daughter, Donna Poe Martin, sons Dane and Don Poe. We'll not mention the others, but all were good, especially when you sing for the glory of God.

Jonesville senior citizens conducted a Praise and Thanksgiving service, at their Center, Monday in honor of the liberated hostages from Iran. Several took part by reading and other expressions of thanksgiving. It was a service of prayer for the future physical and spiritual needs of these 52 people.

—Mrs. Willie Rogers, a nurse from the Lee County Health Department, came to the Center, Wednesday, and took blood pressures of 20 people. We wish to thank her and the Health Clinic for this service to senior citizens.

—Betty Jean Moore, Lee County Extension Office, was at the Center Wednesday and Thursday and taught Macrame classes to ten participants. Most did real well for their first class.

—Mrs. Jerushia Burchett, daughter, Mrs. Georgia Roy, and son Levi (Buddy) Burchett, were visiting Buddy's children in Corbin, Sunday.

Mrs. Jerushia Burchett and Mrs. Georgia Roy made a business trip to Middlesboro, Monday.

Sue Sutton, Hazel and Butch Cress made a business trip to Kingsport, Thursday.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Charlie (Juanita) Poe, who passed away in King sport hospital. Our prayers are with the family.

Irene and George Kirk of Woodway received word from their grandson, Ted E. Osinski, a crew member of the USS LaSalle, that they were in Philadelphia, Pa. for an overhaul, after completing one of the longest deployments away from the U.S. in Naval history. You will remember that Ted was a student and graduate of Pennington High. He attended Lee County Vocational School at Ben Hur, and made his home with his grandparents. Irene and George are happy that Ted had the opportunity to serve on the LaSalle and see such places as Egypt, Spain, and Persian Gulf, and other ports in the Middle East, and the Mediterranean. We are happy for Ted, and his family in Detroit, Mich. are very proud of him. His mother is the former Nina Kirk, and his great-grandparents were the late Joe and Rosa Kirk of Ben Hur.

—Maude and Odie, Allen, Pattie Wallen, Faye and Frank Oxford were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Smith of Ewing. Mr. Smith had returned home after a stay in Mountain Home Veterans Hospital, Johnson City, Tn.

—Mrs. Lillie Carroll and Gaynelle Baumgardner made a business trip to Big Stone Gap, Thursday morning. They visited in the afternoon with Mrs. Cora Howard and Gloria Hall of Pennington.

—Mrs. Nancy Jeffrey, Nutrition Program Director, Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Wise, made a business trip to the Pennington Nutrition Site, Wednesday.

—Lee Hospital Auxiliary met Tuesday night at the Jonesville United Methodist Church with 23 in attendance. Mrs. Pat Maggard presided at the meeting.

—Mrs. Ruth Moses received a call from Dayton, Ohio, that Mrs. Maudie Poteet had undergone heart surgery Tuesday at the Kettering Medical Center, Kettering, Ohio. Buford Poteet, Maudie's son, told Ruth that his mother was doing fine, but was still in the Intensive Care Unit. We have been praying for Maudie ever since she went to Dayton for this surgery. We pray for a speedy recovery. We love you, Maudie.

Gaynelle Baumgardner visited with Mrs. Ora Grabeel and Mr. Mayo Ledford, Monday afternoon. Both had been on the sick list.

—Grace Davis and Lorene Terry drove to Richmond to attend the Cancer Society's Board and Committee Meetings held at Holiday Inn West. They were there for the different committee reports and election of new Board members which took place on Thursday. They attended the dinner that evening at the Inn. Both enjoyed the meetings.

—They arrived home Friday evening, after stopping for a visit in Abingdon with Mrs. Rose Minor, a niece of Miss Davis'. There they found lots of snow. They reported that, on their way back, they didn't see any snow until they got to Roanoke, and more and more as they came through the Bristol area. We were happy to see them return safely home.

Miss Davis said that the next meeting, for the Cancer Society Crusade would be held in Fredericksburg sometime in March.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

Fifty-two Americans came home from captivity in Iran this week ... home to family and friends and an uncertain future. They were greeted enthusiastically by their countrymen, with joy and relief. But the trauma with Iran is not yet over.

The prime topic of discussion and debate in Washington since the release of the former prisoners has been whether or not the Reagan Administration should honor the agreement negotiated by the Carter Administration in the last days and hours of his tenure. Many feel we should be free to abrogate the treaty since it was obtained under duress. Many others feel we should retaliate against the terrorists and the country which supported them.

I intend to study very carefully all information I may be able to obtain concerning the events which made this tragic situation occur. I am, of course, especially interested in measures which would prevent such a disaster from ever happening again.

Officially, an investigation of the terms of the agreement is already underway to determine the legality of each provision. An investigation of the alleged mistreatment of the hostages is also being initiated. The Secretary of State has indicated publicly that the United States will not resume shipments of military supplies or equipment to Iran. There is further conjecture as to whether or not normal trade relations will be resumed.

I believe the Administration is carefully considering every aspect of the agreement that effected the release of our people. A cautious approach is the proper course to take at this time, and I will personally reserve judgment on final compliance with the agreement until all these investigations are complete and the long term interests of the United States are fully weighed. However, I feel strongly that we are honor bound, as a Nation, to uphold those provisions of the agreement, negotiated in good faith by a former President, which are consistent with international law and justice.

Survey Shows Small Firms Want More Access To Courts

An overwhelming majority of Virginia small-business owners say state and local governments should have to pay the attorneys' fees for small businesses when government bodies bring unwarranted suits against them. This conclusion comes from the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) as a result of a recent survey of its approximately 7,000 members in Virginia.

Of those responding to the survey, 94 percent of the small-business people said legislation should be passed permitting the courts to force state and local governments to pay the attorneys' fees of a small business when the court finds that a civil suit brought against the business is without merit. Only four percent were opposed and two percent were undecided.

According to NFIB's director of governmental relations in Virginia, Dave Stephenson, small business is the most defenseless group in terms of available money and manpower when challenging unreasonable interpretations of laws and government regulations. "Small businesses seem to be hit the hardest by government regulations because while they are subject to more regulations than an individual, they often have no more resources with which to defend themselves," he stated. "Also, small businesses don't usually have the in house staff of lawyers and accountants that big businesses have to defend themselves." He concluded, "They end up paying fines they believe are unjust, or they go to court and pay legal fees they can't afford."

In other results of the survey, the small business people voted overwhelmingly for a state spending limitation. Ninety-two percent said state government expenditures should be limited to a percentage of the annual increase in personal income in Virginia.

The results of a second question showed that when those in favor of a limit are given a choice between a statutory spending limit and a constitutional limit, the constitutional limit comes out ahead, yet 48 percent said they would prefer to see both types of legislation passed.

Two bills pending before the Legislature -- S.J. Res. 161 by Sen. Dudley Emick and H.J. Res. 166 by Delegate Ralph Axselle provide for a constitutional amendment outlining the general principle of a spending limit.

Said Stephenson, "The proposal does not attempt to reduce the current level of spending or taxes. Tying state expenditures to the growth in the state's total personal income would bind state government spending to the taxpayers' ability to pay."

He continued, "Over the past several years," the demand for public spending by well-organized special interest groups has overshadowed the general interest in controlling the cost of government. The benefits of new spending programs are highly visible to those who benefit, while the burden on the taxpayers has been far less visible." He admonished, "If people as a whole are not allowed to set some parameters on government spending, then special interest groups will continue to exert an unwarranted influence on the shape and scope of government activity. The benefits of new programs will continue to outweigh the burden on taxpayers just as the special interests will continue to overshadow the general interest."

Concerning unemployment compensation, a majority of the respondents said claimants should not be paid for the one-week waiting period. They can now receive money for that week during their fifth week of unemployment. A bill in the Senate, S.B. 586, introduced by Sen. E.T. Gray, would repeal this provision. However, 38 percent said that no change is necessary, four percent said the waiting period should be repealed, and six percent were undecided.

NFIB is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization representing 539,000 small and independent-business people across the country

—Looks like we have about three inches of snow this morning. Maybe the snow will help some to put moisture in the ground for crops next summer. We haven't had much rain. The snow closed the school down for a day. Guess some of the mothers would rather it would be school. Well in the days when there wasn't any buses to carry the children they always had school when it snowed. I can remember when I lived on Wallens Creek, it would be big snows on the ground and my sister Mabel and myself would walk to school upon a hill that was called Mysby. I guess then was the good old days.

Dear Mr. Lee,

I have written a little poem here that I'm sure both you and your readers can appreciate. Please print it. The Lord knows that we need help in this county and I hope to urge you to continue your stand for fair and equal taxation for all citizens. The working and landowners in this county, including yourself, are a small minority and we can not stand much more. Soon people will loose their farms for lack of tax money. Perhaps a smile will help gain the interest of those yet uninvolved. Help us please.

Sincerely,
Virginia Ward

The Killing Of Paul Revere

Now come all you children and you shall hear of the late night killing of Paul Revere.
His voice rang clear as Paul rode through the night, "The British Are Coming," "Take your Arms and fight."

Taxes were high, the people were worn, they joined the cause; a new nation was born.
Year after year his story was told.

His fame continued, his glory grew too.
No one could stop it, the people were true.
After all of the years of a great nation's pace,
Five in a county called Lee brought disgrace.

Two, we shall call "Peat" and "Repeat" his brother — For what did one, so did the other.
They sat on a board of Supervisors of Lee
And piled on the taxes with no sympathy.

"Cut the budget of the Health Department" was cried. Peat said "yes", Repeat complied.
When out of the crowd came a voice crying,
"Shame". "I take it back," said Peat and Repeat chirped, "Same".

"How about a wheel tax to even the load?"
The next voices pleaded but were over-rode.
"The poor can't afford ten dollars a year.
Tax the landowners - give them the spear."

"Give us equal taxes for one and for all!"
"Of course not!" cried Peat and Repeat,
Appalled.
"The farmers and landowners are the fools of The Lot.
They pay their taxes; so pour it on hot.
And if they can't pay, we'll sell them!" they cried.
This was the night that old Paul died.

This ride for freedom had hit the dust.
The Lee Board of Supervisors had crucified us.
Paul would roll over if he heard the news.
Peat and Repeat had cut him down to his shoes.
Perhaps in the ashes of this great man's fame
We'll find another who can stand the strain.
If you, dear readers, can answer my call —
Step up — and help us — resurrect Paul.

WANTED — "MEN"

God, give us men. Time demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and willing hands;
Men who from lust of office do not kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor, men who will not lie . . .
J. H. Holland

Mr. Holland gave us a good mental picture of the kind of men we need today. Our time, as well as in all past history of mankind, needs men of the type of whom the poet writes, and asked God to give to us. Such men must be fearless and unafraid of the powers of the wicked and unscrupulous.

We need men of strong minds who will not be unduly influenced by the high and the mighty who do not have the best interests of the public at heart, and seek only to carry out their own evil plans. Such men will never be led by any "click or machine" but will have in mind only the principles of just service to all regardless of political affiliations. Such men will not be a rubber stamp, and will not be an echo for any special group of men or society, but will strive to do that which will be just and right for all

We need men of great hearts who can take abuse and not whine; who can be criticized and not chaff; who will not return railing for railing; who will not stoop to "mud-slinging." We usually select men who we think are capable leaders, or should select such men. It is too often the case in both major parties, regardless of the qualities; regardless of his qualifications, or fitness for the office

We should select men of high caliber of character and who have ability and courage to operate his office without dictation from selfish and designing men, as though it was a puppet show

The Bible admonishes us not be "slothful in business." An official should be willing to do his work and not to leave the responsibility to others who, in many instances, are not interested in the work but in his salary only

Many men are looked upon as honorable and respected, as such before they are entrusted with some position of honor and trust, but fail to live up to their friends and supporters' trust. They become associated with corrupt men and by the spoils of office, and thus lose respect of honorable people. Men who will not sell out to the evil element for a position or "a mess of pottage" is the type of officers who will have the respect and support of all honorable people We need men who will stand four-square for the right regardless of the jerrs and sneers of would be leaders.

We need men of opinions to lead us today in our religious and social life that we might have trustworthy guides to help us solve our many and varied problems of our rapidly changing world. We need men who are sincere about their obligations to the people as a whole; who realize fully the weighty problems and responsibilities which are theirs.

They must process a will and determination to carry out the policies which they truly deem to be essential to the welfare of all people. They must prove their efficiency by giving a good account of themselves in their record of skillful and efficient service.

Men of questionable character should never be considered by the party regardless of his "loyalty to the party." We all have too often seen the disastrous results of such a course, during our experiences in the past. Many men are selected because of their financial status regardless of their fitness. They have been most hurtful to the parties who elected them.

Truthfulness is the chief cornerstone of leadership in any field of endeavor. An untruthful leader will soon lose the respect of all people, except those of his type, and will soon come to naught. A liar is not believed even when he accidentally tells the truth.

Too often wrong leaders get into office because of pressure from within or without the party. Some of our best men, and most efficient hesitate to seek office because of their acute sense of the responsibilities or the feeling that they could not properly do justice to the high position to which they would be entrusted.

We have many good men holding offices of trust, who have retained their respect of their fellow citizens, in church and social life, but we still need more such men to make America really the "land of the free and the home of the brave."

God give us strong, true and courageous leadership today; with the poet, Holland, we beseech: "God Give Us Men."

According to my calculations, the pressure will increase as tournament time draws nearer. Twin Springs is still the team to beat. So far, they have lived up to the predictions of the coaches of the Cumberland District. Can they stand up under this great pressure until and during the tournament? An undefeated season would be wonderful for any team. It can also be assumed that every team in the district will be out to knock them from their pinnacle.

My record for predictions stands at 134 games as I said they would be and 58 which fate turned in the other direction. Now, I say, "Twin Springs beware."

Twin Springs Edges Pioneers In Overtime

Twin Springs Titans remain undefeated after they edged by Thomas Walker January 27th, by the score of 70-68 in double overtime.

Ronald Skeens' Pioneers went to Twin Springs following a drubbing they took the night before at the hands of Middlesboro, Kentucky, and almost pulled the upset of the year But fell short of victory, as Jerry Field's Titans finally subdued the Pioneers.

Thomas Walker put up 21 points in the first quarter, while their defense gave up 16 points. The second stanza saw the Titans come to life and outscore their opponent, 19-11 to take a 36-32 advantage unto the locker room at the half. Twin Springs opened up a eight point lead heading to the final frame. Thomas Walker, known to be a running team, came out in the fourth quarter and outscored the Titans 18 10 to tie the score Sending it to the first overtime.

Both teams scored only three points each in the extra frame, sending the game to a second extra period. Twin Springs scored five to the Pioneers three in the second extra period to win the game by two points

Twin Springs had beaten the Pioneers by ten points earlier in the season Thomas Walker could very well have won the game, if they had done better at the free throw line.

Thats where the game was decided at.

From the field, the Pioneers shot 48%, while Twin Springs hit 36%. Thomas Walker hit 18 of 31 free throws for 58.2%, and Twin Springs shot 66%, hitting 22 of 33. The Titans also out rebounded the Pioneers 42 to 39.

Kevin Short, the district's leading scorer, pumped in 29 points in the win, followed by Tony Rudder with 17 points. Short is averaging 24.8 points per game.

Thomas Walker's record is now 3 and 9. They were led by Johnny Edds with 26 points, Jim Miracle and Riley Littrell hit 14 points each. Edds and Miracle also had 9 rebounds each for the Pioneers.

DMV Titles Fewer Vehicles

During 1980, the Division of Motor Vehicles titled 4.6 percent fewer vehicles than in 1979, according to Donald E. Williams, DMV commissioner

New vehicle titles issued declined by 17.4 percent, while used vehicle titles transferred declined by less than one half of 1 percent. "Apparently many people chose to buy used rather than new cars last year for economic reasons," Williams said.

Although total titling figures for the month of December were up 19 percent, compared to December 1979, Williams said it was too early to predict a turn around in the downward trend.

In December, new vehicle titles transferred increased by 23 percent.

Williams noted that used vehicles titled for the first time in Virginia, either by newcomers to Virginia, or by Virginia residents and dealers who purchased vehicles out of state, increased slightly during 1980 by two tenths of a percent, but increased by 27 percent in December compared to December 1979.

Titling fees are deposited in the state's Highway Maintenance and Construction Fund

Stickleyville Roof Gets Supervisors' Go-Ahead

Supervisors approved a $23,000 transfer of funds from the Yokum Station school debt fund for roofing repairs of the Stickleyville Elementary School and a boiler at Dryden School at their regular Wednesday meeting, February 4.

School Board requests for $65,000 for a new roof at Dryden School and $34,800 for new school buses were, however, passed by.

Supervisor and vice chairman of the Board, D.J. Barker, said the money just isn't in the budget now for a new roof for Dryden, but that hopefully it will be planned in the coming year's budget.

Barker, after describing the worsening conditions of the roof at Stickleyville Elementary "with tubs set about to catch the leaks," moved to transfer $23,000 from the Yokum Station School Debt Fund to rectify the situation. Some $22,000 of this amount will be used for roofing and $1,000 will be earmarked for a boiler for Dryden School.

In discussing the School Board's $34,800 request for two new school buses, supervisor Bill Thomas pointed out that the longer supervisors hesitate, the higher prices will climb, about "$2,000 per bus."

Phil Hensley, Title I Director, noting that the trimmed budget appropriation only allowed for replacement of three of the usual six buses due to inflated prices, said that the $34,800 would buy two 1980 models at current market rates.

Supervisor Thomas moved and the Board agreed to take bus request under advisement.

In other action, the Board withdrew a motion authorizing former County Attorney, Les Bailey, to proceed in the handling of cases concerning the collection of delinquent personal property taxes allegedly owed by Rhea Rasnic and Wayne Stanley.

Both Rasnic, owner of several grocery stores and tobacco warehouses, and Stanley, operator of Stanley Bluegrass Cabs, are appealing the cases -- the only two, according to Bailey of several hundred of delinquent personal property cases he had handled for the county during his term as county attorney.

Supervisors agreed to retain local attorney Ronnie Montgomery to handle the suits at a price of one-third the amount he collects. The Board also appointed Brenda Baird to continue collection of delinquent personal property taxes at a rate of 10 percent of the amount she collects.

The county says Rasnic owes $4,000 in back taxes while Stanley owes a

Lee School Board Hears Requests For More $'s

A major portion of the regular February 10 meeting of the Lee County School Board was spent by Board members listening to the requests of teachers and coaches alike for more money next year.

Representing the Lee County School Board with salary and fringe benefit requests and educational recommendations were LCEA President Jack Spiers and Lawrence Scott, Jonesville guidance counsellor.

First on the list of priorities is a 13.5 percent cost of living increase, based on the U.S. Dept. of Labor Statistics for 1980. In addition, Lee County educators would like a 6.5 percent increase based on the 11th step of the '80-'81 pay scale for teachers holding a bachelor degree.

A second salary request would increase the master degree supplement to $1,500 and a third salary recommendation would add another step to the salary scale.

Under the category of fringe benefits, Lee County teachers would like full hospitalization paid on each professional employee; retain the maximum number of accumulative sick leave days at 150 and pay $10 per day of unused days upon retirement; and duty-free lunch periods for all teachers.

Teachers would also like four personal days paid in full, full pay for recertification by the Board to be paid at the time of enrollment and would like to be able to accumulate up to 10 days of paid personal leave. "These same personal days of leave should not be taken from us," they request, "when teachers are serving as delegates to the VEA convention." Teachers already pay a substitute when they miss work on such an account.

High on the list of educational recommendations, Lee County teachers are asking for impartial and forthright dealings with regard to assignment and that notice of such geographic location be given at the time contracts are issued, May 15th.

In reference to relocation or assignment, teachers maintain that transfers or promotions should be decided on the basis of senority and/or certification. Spiers added that "a very positive effect upon teacher morale would be the end result of giving every consideration to the teacher having the most seniority."

Other educational recommendations included improvement of facilities, full-time physical education, special education, art and music teachers for all the elementary schools, an unencumbered planning period for each teacher and all unnecessary paper work for teachers to be delected.

Spiers said that teacher

Low, Moderate Income Housing Survey For County Now Underway

The Lee County Redevelopment and Housing Authority is now accepting pre-application for new low and moderate income apartments. Rents from $0 to $150.00 adjusted income, according to Fred Griffity, executive director of the authority.

Persons interested in further information are urged to visit the Housing Authority office in the courthouse in Jonesville, or call 346-3623.

Griffith said that any one knowing of a person or persons who may be in need of better housing could contact him at his office in Jonesville.

The pre-application forms may be secured at the office in Jonesville. All information on these forms is confidential, Griffith pointed out. He did state that this information is required for vertification of eligibility for Low and Moderate Income Housing.

Should enough interest be shown in this type of housing, there will be a possibility of securing funds for such housing.

Hearing Dates Set For Tax Equalization Board

Lee Countians will have an opportunity to make application for equalization of their real estate taxes, if they feel that their property has not been properly evaluated in the reassessment just completed.

An ordinance providing for the establishment of hearing dates for the Board of Equalization is to be found elsewhere in this edition of the news.

The ordinance provides that any property owner or lessee wishing to make application for equalization of real estate assessment shall be no later than April 27, make application with the Lee County Assessor's office in Jonesville

All applications, the ordinance states, must be finally disposed of by the Board of Equalization by May 22, 1981.

Charges of unfair taxation based on previous assessments of Lee County real estate brought about the most recent assessment which has just been completed.

Once any adjustments deemed necessary by the Board of Equalization have been named, the board of supervisors will then have a basis for setting the tax rate for the coming year. The rate will, of course, also be based on the financial needs of county government as determined by the board of supervisors at the time the budget for the coming year is being considered.

The Board of Equalization is appointed by the Circuit Court Judge, in accordance with state statutes. The board of supervisors may recommend possible appointees to the judge. Previous boards of supervisors have, on occasion, had difficulty in finding qualified individuals willing to serve in this capacity. In a number of instance a person would accept such an appointment only to realize that it would fall his lot to decide if his neighbor's taxes should be adjusted to the amount desired. On more than one occasion the individual would then tender his resignation before actually getting into the work at hand

At last inquiry the board of supervisors had made no recommendations to the Judge

Property owners or leasees who desire to know the value at which their property has been reassessed may go to the office of the Lee County Assessors office in the Courthouse in Jonesville

An Ode to Zipcode

By Diane Herndon

There's one less Zipcode
in Pennington Gap today;
One less Zipcode to run about and play.

Although he never sent a letter or package in the mail,
You could count on his speedy arrival, his ever-wagging tail.

Zipcode had no owner;
he called no place his home.
The streets and roads of Pennington Gap were his alone to roam.

His faithful journey's over now, he's gone to his peaceful sleep.
And may his canine heaven
be one big Postal Jeep.

(Ed. Note: The death of Zip Code, as he was called, has been a cause of much concern among the people of Pennington Gap. For reason unknown only to Zip, he was the self-appointed escort of the U.S. Mail Jeep as it made the rounds over Pennington Gap, everyday, rain or shine. Even though he was getting on in years, he seldom failed in his duty. His death serves as an example of what can happen if we put off doing what we meant to do. Since his death, many people have said, "I thought about buying a dog tag for him but I just didn't get around to it." Like most of us do at times, he got into trouble. He became involved with another dog on that dog's home ground. A call to the Dog Warden got quick response. Since Zip Code did not have the required tag and the county cannot afford a dog pound for confinement of untagged animals, the Warden was required to do his duty. Even though Zip Code is gone, he will long be remembered for his unswerving devotion to carrying out his duty as he saw it.)

Proposed St. Charles Housing Meeting Set For February 13

The first public meeting to discuss the potential development of housing sites on an abandoned strip-mine bench in St Charles will be held at the UMWA Hall on Friday, February 13, 1981 at 7:00 P.M. Representatives of the Lee County Redevelopment & Housing Authority, the Appalachian Regional Commission, and TVA will meet with the public to explain the project, interpret results of initial studies completed on the St. Charles site, and respond to questions and comments relating to the project.

This project is part of a joint agency agreement between TVA, ARC, and USDA to focus on the problem of housing in coal mining areas. St. Charles is one of eleven communities in Tennessee, Virginia, and Kentucky identified as a potential site for this demonstration program. The Agencies are projecting that 400 energy efficient and affordable new homes will be built on strip mine benches during the three year implementation of this project

The Friday meeting in St. Charles is being held for the purpose of sharing information and determining community support for this project.

Everyone interested is urged to attend.

Crash Kills Middlesboro Resident

A Saturday evening traffic accident on U.S 25E about one half mile south of Cudjo's Caverns resulted in the death of 20 year old Bruce Shumate, Middlesboro, and the unborn child of Shumate and his 18 year old wife, Anita.

Charged by Virginia State Policeman M.C. Wells with involuntary manslaughter is Millard Foister, of Pineville, Ky., who was driving his vehicle on the wrong direction in south bound lane of U.S. 25E

Foister was also charged with driving under the influence by Lee County Sheriff R.V. Chadwell, who handled traffic at the scene of the accident

Foister collided head-on with the vehicle driven by Terry Leon Cosby, 19, of Middlesboro. Also in the Cosby vehicle were Vicky Cosby, his wife, the Shumate couple and Diane Shumate, their daughter.

Terry Cosby is in the Intensive Care Unit of UT Hospital in Knoxville while Anita Shumate remains in Intensive Care at Fort Sanders, Knoxville.

Foister, according to Sheriff Chadwell, was free on $35,000 bond from Kentucky authorities for allegedly fatally shooting his wife last weekend.

Burglars Have Sweet Tooth

Lee County Special Investigator Charlie Janeway reports the February 1 break in of Fry's Grocery in St Charles. The burglary was reported to have taken place between 8 to 10 p.m. resulting in the theft of about 72 bottles of 16 ounce soda pop, five or six pair of Jersey material gloves, and a quantity of candy

In connection with the incident, Janeway also reported the February 2 break in of First Christian Church of St. Charles.

According to Janeway, Deputy Charles Elkins, upon his arrival at the church, observed two suspects leaving the building having in their possession four 16 ounce colas. Stashed inside the church, Elkins found a quantity of pop, candy wrappers and empty potato chip bags. One of the suspects was wearing a pair of Jersey gloves

Charged with breaking and entering of the church and contributing to the delinquency of a minor was Darrell Lee Newton, 18, of St Charles.

A juvenile found with Newton was charged with breaking and entering.

The two, also charged with breaking and entering of Fry's Grocery, claim no knowledge of that incident, Janeway said.

Sheriff R.V. Chadwell in discussing the recent rash of home and business burglaries in the county, said that one of the best safeguards against theft is neighborhood cooperation and involvement.

Neighbors should look out for one another's homes and property noting any suspicious or unfamiliar vehicles or persons in the area.

The sheriff also said many burglaries would be stymied if the outlet for fencing stolen goods didn't exist.

Wampler To Speak At GOP Dinner

The Lee County Republican Party annual Lincoln Day Dinner to be held Saturday, February 14, at Jonesville High School will feature Congressman William C. Wampler as the guest speaker.

Tickets are now on sale from precinct leaders over the county or they may be purchased at the door.

Dinner will be served from six p.m. to 7:30 p.m. The program will get underway immediately following. The public is cordially invited to attend this dinner

Drug Abuse To Be Discussed By Parents, Patrons, Teachers At Pennington HS

A group of parents, patrons, former students, teachers and others interested in the problem of drug abuse will meet in the Pennington High School cafeteria Monday, February 16, at seven p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Those who will lead the discussion will include a representative of the Virginia State Police, Sheriff Robert Chadwell, a doctor, a druggist, Commonwealth's Attorney Cynthia Kinser and possibly others.

Those responsible for calling the meeting are interested in making the public in general, particularly the young people, aware of the dangers involved in the use of controlled drugs.

Another goal is to attempt to determine if there are any "pushers" or those who may be selling controlled drugs in Lee County. If it is determined that such individuals are operating in the county, possible means of halting this illicit trade will be discussed.

All persons who may be interested are urged to attend this meeting.

Pictured above is a representative picture of our annual feature, "Meet Our Valentines." These two young, beautiful and carefree lassies are picture proof that innocent and happy youth is one of the most wonderful times of life. It is no wonder that the parents and grandparents of those shown in the 243 pictures found in this edition are so proud of them.

This annual feature is our salute to youth, love and happiness with the sincere wish that these youngsters have a full and happy life ahead of them.

Survey To Identify Handicapped In Region

Volunteers for Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia will soon be going door-to door in Lee County and the neighboring counties of Scott and Wise and the City of Norton surveying the local populace in an effort to identify the developmentally disabled and handicapped.

This survey, part of a grant resource project in Planning District One, will help provide an accurate count of persons in the region with handicapping conditions toward the future planning of service programs

Questionaires will seek information concerning specific individual disabilities, those types of services most needed by local disabled persons and the basic living conditions handicapped persons have to cope with in the region.

According to Charles Bledsoe, Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia chairman, this developmental disability grant will also include an information phase utilizing public meetings and distri

Changes Noted In Food Stamp Program

The Virginia Department of Welfare announced today that the United States Department of Agriculture is making changes in the Food Stamp Program affecting deductions and maximum coupon allotments

The changes, effective January 1, 1981, are

The standard deduction for households will be increased from $75 to $85

The shelter dependent care deduction will be increased from $90 to $115.

The maximum coupon allotment will also be increased For example, the allotment for a one household will increase from $63 to $70 for a four person household from $209 to $241

There will be no change in the maximum amount of income allowed per household However, because of the increases in deductions, persons who were formerly slightly over the income level may be eligible to receive food stamps after January 1, 1981

In addition, persons who are currently eligible will most likely receive increased food stamp benefits at that time

Those persons who may be eligible after the increased deductions go into effect should contact their local welfare agency and reapply for the program

For more information about the Food Stamp Program or where persons can apply call toll free 1 800 552 4141

the store manager said, the problem will even tually have to be solved

Deputy [illegible] suggested we coordinate our efforts and keep a list of stolen items as well as [illegible] serial numbers of all guns stolen etc

Obviously, this makes it harder on thieves, but not impossible and more likely to be returned to the rightful owner

Layers of wool or thermal clothing are more effective for keeping warm in cold weather than one heavy coat or sweater, said Glen H Hetzel, Extension specialist at Virginia Tech smaller sum of approximately $164.

Children should be dressed for protection against outside temperatures and should be encouraged to change to dry clothing when they get wet," he stated.

Tom Rasnic, attorney for his father, maintains the suit is unconstitutional on the grounds that merchant's capital has not been assessed correctly or equally in years in Lee County

However, Commissioner of Revenue, Silas Glass contends that Rasnic has been treated just as fairly as anybody and that each year he has checked with him about inventories and vehicles.

Merchant's capital for tax purposes in Virginia is defined as the inventory of stock on hand and the difference between accounts receivable and accounts payable, with the exception of cash on hand and tangible property not offered for sale.

In other action the Board withdrew a motion authorizing former County Attorney, Les Bailey, to handle collection of delinquent personal property suits of Rhea Rasnic and Wayne Stanley both who are appealing the collections

Rasnic, local owner of several grocery stores and tobacco warehouses, is appealing the collection of $1,000 allegedly owed in back taxes, while Stanley, owner of Stanley Bluegrass Cabs, is appealing a $161 judgement morale in Lee County is low and that many teachers are forced to moonlight or drop out of teaching entirely. Teachers have no right to negotiate contracts, he continued, "we just ask," he said

The LCEA spokeman urged School Board members to continue "to go to bat for the teachers in the county, as you have done for us in the past."

Also appearing before the Board was Coach Sunny Brooks, along with several other delegates of the Cumberland District Coaches Association, including Coaches Neil Johnson, Max Chance and Rosetta Cavin

Brooks, who presented the Board members with handouts illustrating the average amount of time coaches spend on the job, said members of his Association are only seeking to be brought up equal to the supplements paid in neighboring counties.

The Cumberland District Coaches Association is requesting sports supplements for football and basketball be raised from 10 percent to 12 percent; for baseball from six percent to eight percent; for J.V. and assistant coaches from 6 percent to eight percent and in all other sports from three percent to five percent

Coaches would also like to see an athletic director at each school for scheduling of sporting events at a cost of $1.50 per student or five percent supplement.

Handout statistics showed a coach with about eight years experience would work about 444 hours including practice, games, meetings, scouting, laundry, pre and post season activites and summer football programs. At a salary of $12,529 plus a 10 percent supplement that averages out to roughly $2.83 per hour or less than minimum wage.

Noting that the formula for coaching pay hasn't been changed in the past 10 years Brooks urged the Board to consider the inequity that now exists, and honor their requests so that Cumberland District coaches would be up to par with people that they're being asked to compete against

The February 10 School Board agenda was quite lengthy and the remainder of the business and action will be reported in the next edition of the News

Mountain Empire Older Citizens Sets February 15 As Heartwarming Sunday

Sunday, February 15, has been designated by Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Inc. as the 5th Annual Heartwarming Sunday. Each church in the area is asked to participate by contributing a portion of its Sunday morning offering or a special love offering to help our older people in emergency crises due to the high cost of home heating fuel.

MEOC's Emergency Fuel Fund for the Elderly is in its seventh winter of offering assistance to elderly citizens who get trapped in emergency situations during the winter months. The fund depends entirely on local support with all money raised going directly towards buying fuel, paying electric bills, or hauling donated coal. Donations from Heartwarming Sunday and individual contributions can be sent to P.O. Box 1097 in Wise.

Marilyn Pace, Executive Director of MEOC, stated that "the support of this program by area churches in past years has been vital to the effort to meet this need of our area's older citizens. Without the past support of our churches, many more older people would have gone without food and fuel during the winter months."

bution of free literature to the general public about developmental disabilities.

A third goal of the project is to establish a referral resource center providing the handicapped population with an up to date listing of agencies and services available.

Handicaps Unlimited is a non profit organization established in September of 1979 and since its inception has worked to locally encourage compliance of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, initation of curb cuts, installation of handicapped parking and organization of a sheltered workshop.

Bledsoe, in explaining a developmentally disability, said that the person as a result of this disability, must show need for a variety of different and special services for a life time, which are individually planned and coordinated

Some examples of developmental disabilities are mental retardation, spina bifida, epilepsy, autism, cerebral palsy, deaf blindness, severe learning disabilities, childhood psychosis, emotional disturbances, severe visual impairments, and others.

For more information about this agency and this project, contact Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia, P O 'Box '587, Jonesville or visit their office in the basement behind the jail

Winter storage of farm machinery is important and requires attention by Virginia farmers. According to Easley S. Smith, Extension farm machinery specialist at Virginia Tech, proper storage can add at least 25 percent to machinery life and reduce repair cost 25 percent.

Smith offered these tips for producers to follow:
--Retract hydraulic cylinders to prevent rusting of rods.
--Slightly reduce tension on all belt drives.
--Remove oil and grease from rubber belts and tires.
--Fill fuel tanks to prevent sweating or condensation inside tanks.
--Start and operate engines approximately 15 minutes every six weeks.

Quota Increase For Burley Tobacco

A 7-½ percent increase in burley tobacco basic quotas was recently announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Max Graham, Vice-Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, reminds farmers of the February 15 deadline to lease their 1980 tobacco quota. "Leasing of 1980 quota cannot be done after that date," said Graham.

Graham also announced that 1981 quotas cannot be leased until after quota notices for 1981 are mailed in late February or early March.

Farmers are also reminded that the 1981 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) ends on February 13. "I encounage all farmers who need cost-share assistance in order to solve their conservation problem to apply," Graham added.

A soil sample should be provided on the day of enrollment for all lime and fertilizer practices. Any practice which the farmer begins before county committee approval is obtained will not be eligible for cost-share assistance.

There are special cost-share rates available for low income farmers

FmHA Approves Grants, Loans For Scott, Dickenson

The Farmers Home Administration has approved a loan of $362,000 and a grant of $335,800 for the Town of Gate City for improvements to its water system, and has also approved a loan of $90,000 and a grant of $215,000 for a water system in Dickenson County, Congressman William C. Wampler has announced.

The funds awarded to the Town of Gate City will be used to meet the increased cost due to inflation on the previously planned project of updating the existing water treatment plant, construction of reservoirs and pumping stations and extension of water lines to serve the town.

The Big Caney Water Corporation will administer the funds awarded to Dickenson County. This project will consist of purchasing a water connection from Buchanan County PSA, construction of two pumping stations and transmission line, replacement of pumps and motors in the existing station and replacement of distribution lines in the community of Clinchco.

ASCS Advises Farmers To Report Changes

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, encourages farmers to report changes in their farm operations promptly to the county office.

For ASCS to help producers get program benefits, farm records must be up to date. Therefore, producers should contact the county office if there has been a change in the land owned or operated, if a farm will have a new owner effective for 1981, or if a change is made in the operation of an existing unit.

"Requests to combine farms or divide a farm should be made as soon as possible because reconstitutions require special processing as well as county committee approval," Myers said.

The Lee County ASC Committee has established May as the final date to report a farm change which requires a cropland determination to divide the tobacco and feed grain allotments. For changes reported after this date, the allotments will not become effective until 1982.

Myers also reminds farmers who desire to obtain proven yields for 1981 feed grains or wheat that they must substantiate production on all acreages for the crops.

Feed grain yield and allotment notices were recently mailed to all Lee County farmers who have reported planted acreages during the past four crop years.

140 Different Viruses Cause Flu, Respiratory Diseases

Upper respiratory infections will undoubtedly increase during the next several weeks predicts Dr. G.C. Honeycutt, Jr., Director of the Lee County Health Department.

"If the respiratory infections that are prevalent in winter follow their usual pattern, we can expect a rise in the number of upper respiratory illnesses during February," he said. Although these diseases, which can be caused by over 140 different viruses, generally are not serious, they can be a threat to certain groups of our population. "Pregnant women, those suffering from chronic illnesses, and the elderly are most likely to suffer complications from influenza," says Dr. Honeycutt. "These people have a lowered resistance to infection, which affects the duration of the sickness and whether complications develop."

Avoiding influenza is difficult because the infectious person is most contagious just prior to and during the onset of the first symptoms. "Avoiding crowds, maintaining a nutritious diet and getting plenty of rest helps keep your body's resistance at a high level. Recent studies indicate that the viruses that cause flu-like illnesses are easily transmitted from contaminated objects by the hands. Wash your hands frequently and keep your fingers out of your mouth and nose," says Dr. Honeycutt.

If you get the flu, go to bed, Dr. Honeycutt advises. "You will be doing yourself and others a disservice if you try to carry on your normal activities.

There is not a great deal that can be done to hasten recovery. Just stay in bed, keep warm, but not overheated and increase your intake of fluids and fruit juices. Medications ordered by a physician should be taken as directed."

Dr. Honeycutt also warns patients not to return to their normal activities too soon. "Time should be allowed for your temperature to remain normal and your strength to return. This will help avoid excessive fatigue and that 'dragged out' feeling," he said.

If your temperature remains elevated for a long period of time, contact your physician immediately.

Dr. Honeycutt says you can expect the effects of the flu to last 10 days to three weeks depending upon the individual patient. In some instances, mostly among young people, it will last only a few days. In any case, it would be wise to check with your doctor before resuming a full schedule of activities, he said.

1980 Attendance Figures Up For Virginia Travel

Virginia travel attractions overcame a generally poor December and brought 1980 to a close on a positive note, according to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce. That analysis comes from the Virginia Travel Barometer, an monthly survey of travel attractions throughout the state.

Of 47 stations reporting to the Travel Barometer in December 1980, 33 had less attendance that month than in December 1979, 13 had a better month, and one reported no change. For the entire 12 months of 1980, however, the figures were almost completely reversed. Thirty four attractions reported more attendance for all of 1980 as opposed to all of 1979, while 11 were down and two were even (difference of less than 1 percent).

Reports to the Travel Barometer come from scenic and historic attractions, city information stations and select airports from throughout Virginia. While the voluntary survey does not count every Virginia visitor, it is recognized as a valid indicator of trends in pleasure travel in Virginia.

The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce is a private, nonprofit membership organization representing business and profussional people from all parts of the Common wealth.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Hazel Shell Lemar who passed away one year ago February 15, 1980

Our memories of you
Cast a gentle glow
To grace our days and light our ways

Through all our lives
We'll miss you
The years will come and go
But in our hearts
You'll live forever
Because we love you so.

Death brings heart ache
No one can heal
But our memories
Are tributes no one can steal

The love filled times
That mean the most
Are kept in memory
Ever close
It was hard to let you go
Because we still love you so

NATIONAL VO-ED WEEK

Future Homemakers of America throughout Virginia will observe National FHA-HERO Week February 8-14, in conjunction with Vocational Education Week. Using the theme "KNOW HOW FOR THE EIGHTIES". The Pennington Chapter joins some half million other young men and women members across the country in demonstrating projects that have real value for youth in preparation for future responsibilities.

State President Lisa Knight explained that the overall goal of the organization is "to help youth assume their roles in society through home economics in areas of personal growth, family life, vocational preparation and community involvement. "In other words", she said, "it helps us develop leadership, good citizenship and prepare for the vital work of our country. In our FHA-HERO Chapter meetings we analyze member concerns and then develop what we call in-depth projects that are related to our home economics classroom studies. Many people have no idea what is taught in home economics classes today. It isn't just cooking and sewing, it's learning about living, teaching us how to cope with the dual role of homemaker and wage earner in todays fast paced economy. During this week we want to impress on people the importance of vocational education and of Future Homemakers of America as a part of home economics education in preparing us for future living".

Members of the Pennington Chapter have planned activities for the week, doing each day a specific activity: Sunday, "Church Day", Monday - "Courtesy Day", Tuesday - "Career Day", Wednesday - "Dress-up Day", Thursday - "Appreciation Day", Friday - "Red and White Day". After school on Friday, everyone that has participated in the weeks activities will go to Pizza Hut for refreshments.

Our Chapter also has some joint activities planned with DECA and FFA.

Are you interested in America's future, particularly America's agricultural future? Who will be the leaders? Who will produce the food and who will know how to market the products?

The Vocational Agriculture Program - FFA Program of career education in Agriculture strives to match students skills and potentials with likely opportunities.

These young men and women in FFA will be ready for the future.

Pennington FFA Chapter salutes National Vocational Education Week.

Not even I, with my powers of looking into the future, could see the changes that have come over the basketball teams in the Cumberland District this season. Knowing it would be more evenly balanced than in many previous seasons, it was difficult to peer into the future and see Keokee staging a comeback, after years of frustration.

Coach Skeen, always one to "sing the preseason blues," has finally found his predictions coming true.

Twin Springs! Now, there is one for you. I have now decided that his team will make it to the tournament with a perfect record. How they will fare in the district tourney remains to be seen. There is a good chance that they will fail to get through this ordeal with a clean slate.

The upcoming tournament should be an interesting one. Although my predictions stand at 153 to 66, for the season, I am a most frustrated individual at this time. Hopefully, I will be able to see the overall picture more clearly before the season ends.

Rye Cove Eagles Turn Back Bobcats

This past Friday night the Pennington Bobcats traveled to Rye Cove, and were turned back in defeat at the hands of Jimmy Dishner's Eagles. Pennington went into the game tied with Jonesville for second place in the district, but with the Bobcat loss coupled with Jonesville's win over Flatwoods gave the Bulldogs second place.

Both the Eagles and Bobcats scored 14 points each in the first quarter, but the Eagles had a two point lead at the half 28 26. After Rye Cove built a four point lead heading into the final frame, the Bobcats again made the final quarter their highest of the night as they have mostly all year long. But this time it wasn't enough as they were limited to only 15 points in the last quarter.

Three or four days earlier, the Bobcats had beaten Rye Cove by four points in a game at Pennington. In that game Bobby Ledbetter went out in the third quarter with an injury. Had he been able to play this time around, the game may have been different.

Rye Cove now 8 and 8 on the year and 6 and 5 in the district had a new team leader for this game against the Bobcats. Lane who usually is the scoring leader was held to just two points, but Randall Spears tossed in 18 points and grabbed 9 rebounds to lead the Eagles. He was followed by Jimmy Gilreath with 13 points. It was some big free throws by Gilreath that finally gave the Eagles the win. Mike Bowen aided the win by scoring 12 points. The Eagles will be out to do what nobody else has done yet this Friday, and that is beat the Titans! The game will be at Twin Springs.

Pennington was led by Gary Pendergraft who scored 17 points. Kent Henderson hit 15, and Gary Collier 13 points. The Bobcats had all five starters to score but didn't get a point from their bench. The Bobcats are now 7 and 7 on the year and 7 and 4 in the district. They will be at Jonesville trying to catch the Bulldogs in the district Friday night.

Score By Quarters:
Pennington 14 12 14 15-55
Rye Cove 14 14 16 14-58

Individual Scoring:

Future Of Strip Mining In U.S. Hinges On Decision Of High Court

A ruling the U.S. Supreme Court is expected to hand down late this winter or early spring may determine the future of strip mining in the United States.

The court will rule on the legality of key provisions of the 1977 Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act which two federal district court judges in Indianapolis, Indiana, and Abingdon, Virginia have already held unconstitutional.

Five environmental groups the National Wildlife Federation, the Appalachian Coalition, the Council of Southern Mountains, Save Our Cumberland Mountains, and the Tug Valley Recovery Center have filed a "friend of the court" brief urging the Supreme Court to overturn the lower court decisions.

"It took many years of hearings and debates before Congress passed and the President signed the Surface Mining Act," said Norman Dean, attorney for the National Wildlife Federation. "The Act represents a careful balance between the need for protection of our land and the production of coal."

Dean pointed out that the law was passed because the state governments failed to control surface mining. "Uncontrolled strip mining resulted in unreclaimed lands, water pollution, erosion, floods, and destruction of fish and wildlife habitat. The present challenge to the act could be crippling," he said.

The coal industry has contended that surface mining regulations are burdensome and too expensive. In addition, many coal producing states would prefer to regulate surface mining themselves.

Last January, a federal district court in Virginia ruled unconstitutional a section of the Surface Mining Act requiring that mined land, including steep slopes, be returned to its approximate original contour after it is mined. Five months later the Indiana court invalidated another section of the Act which permits mining on prime farmland only if it can be demonstrated that the land will be just as productive after it is mined as it was in its pre-mined condition.

These two district court decisions "strike at the very heart of the Surface Mining Act and make the achievement of its public purpose impossible," say the environmental groups in their friend-of-the-court brief. "Congress has determined that coal production was to be directed into areas where reclamation was possible and discouraged or prohibited in areas where it wasn't," says the brief. The two district court decisions would "turn this Congressional purpose on its head by rendering the government powerless to halt mining in exactly those most sensitive environments Congress meant to protect."

"We're hoping that a Supreme Court reversal of the lower court decisions will put an end to the reluctance of the coal industry and coal producing states to comply with surface mining regulations," Dean explained. "We can get the coal we need with out destroying the land."

HOCKEY

We recommend that youngsters spend very little time working on the slap shot. Of all the shots used in hockey, it is the least important.

Orr

However, if you are going to use the slap shot, let's try and do it properly

1 Have a firm grip on the stick When you bring your stick down you are hitting a solid surface so the firm grip is necessary

2 The bottom hand is lower on the shaft then with a wrist shot

3 The puck is in front of you

4 Don't lift the stick over your head Keep it as level to the ice as possible.

5 When you hit the puck all your weight should be thrown forward into the shot

Jonesville Senior Citizens

February 14th is Saint ... Day and as we ... sometimes to loved ... which I did, I ... might now meet it would be to send a valentine to our Heavenly Father. This is the one I would like to send. I hope He appreciates it. Our Father Love, whose name is lovely above all other names, may we have You in our heart as You have us in Yours. Help us to find a way of life that helps others to live. As you take no count of our faults, may we not judge others by theirs. Strengthen us against our weaknesses, and keep us from too much pride in our strengths. For only love builds the world You had in mind when You created us, and only love makes life worth living. Help us to love. Amen

We, in our Church families, pray for the needs and concerns of one another. At the present time Jonesville First Baptist Church members are praying for the needs and concerns of the children and youth by thinking in terms of hiring a Youth Director. We know that our prayers will be answered, if not in the way that we think best, in the way our Heavenly Father thinks best.

Not much went on at the Senior Center this past week, due to the inclement weather. The I D Discount Cards Staff, from Mountain Empire Older Citizens, had to cancel their meeting on February 1, due to the weather. They will re-schedule another time to make pictures for senior citizens in Lee County, at Jonesville Senior Center. If all senior citizens will listen to the radio and read the Powell Valley News you will learn when they will be back. We hope all will get a card and use it.

Marilyn Pace and Nancy Jeffrey, Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Wise, Va., made a business visit to the Senior Center, Thursday. Betty Jean Moore, Ada Hounshell, Charles Arney, and Woodie Woodard, were at the Center to attend a meeting, at the same time.

—Vesta Muncey, president of the senior citizens, called a meeting for the purpose of changing the pay phone back to a business phone. The vote carried 5 to 1, with all others abstaining from voting.

My husband Carl and I would like to wish a "Happy Birthday" to our daughter Nadine Baumgardner, February 10. She lives in Fairview Park, a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio. I won't mention her age. It would make us feel older.

We would like to wish "Happy Birthday" to some of our senior citizens that have birthdays this month. Three are past 80. Maude Allen, Feb. 5, Odie Allen, Feb. 20, and Sallie Wolver, Feb. 15. Two others, just a little under 80, are Pearl Wade, Feb. 20, and Ida Carroll, Feb. 26. Feb ruary is the "love month" and we love all of you.

Mrs. Maude Allen was in Pennington Gap, Friday on business.

Mr. Emmitt Hines is a patient in the Appalachian Regional Hospital, Harlan, Ky. Visiting with him on Saturday were Maude and Odie Allen, Maude's daughter, Patty Wallen, and her granddaughter, Lisa Wallen.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Mr. Denzil Boyles, who passed away in the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove, Ill. last week. He was the nephew of Mrs. Sarah Smith.

We would like to welcome Mrs. Darlene Ingle and family to Jonesville. They moved into a house on Wynn Street last week.

I saw Mrs. Lillian Adams and her son Steve while in Pennington, Saturday. I was happy to find her looking so well and glad that she has recovered from an accident she had while in Dayton, Ohio, last November. She had visited her little granddaughter, Brooke Adams, a patient in Lee County Memorial Hospital. Brooke is the daughter of Wardaven and Roger Adams.

—Mrs. Alma Myers is a patient in Holston Valley Community Hospital, Kingsport.

—I visited with Mrs. Ruth Willis, a patient in Lee County Community Hospital, and I'm happy to report that she was able to talk a little with her visitors.

—Remember all of these in your prayers. Others that we would like for you to pray for that are in the local hospital are, Mr. Pearl Clifton, Ethel Roop, Olin Seabolt, Parr Wallen, Golden Copeland, Edna Williams, Porter Greer, Rosa Shirks, Maggie Lundy, Virgie Hartley, Ola Mooney, Beatrice Roop, Curtis Bledsoe, and Tyler Rasnic. And, for all of the others that we do not know. The doctors and nurses, and all the hospital employees, should be remembered in our prayers, too.

—I received a call from Mrs. Edna Edwards of Independence, Va., Sunday. She is the AARP Assistant State Director of Southwestern Virginia. She wanted to tell me about her trip to Washington, D.C. last week, and said she missed seeing me there. I was unable to make the trip. She told of the different legislators she talked with and heard speak. One that impressed her the most was Senator Ted Kennedy, with his talk about the National Health Program. Edna talked to me about the plans for the AARP Workshop to be held in Abingdon and Pulaska, Va. in April. She's hoping these will be the best that we have ever had. Edna is a very enthusiastic, energetic woman, and it is a pleasure to attend meetings with her, and then spend the night with her, talking into the wee hours of the morning. She plans to attend our AARP Chapter soon. We wish she could.

Eight Jonesville senior citizens took a trip to Pennington, Saturday, on the Mountain Empire Older Citizens van, driven by Mr. Claude James.

—I visited in the homes of Mrs. Glessye Humphreys, Mrs. Delia Stapleton, and Mrs. Sallie Wolver, Friday afternoon. Mrs. Stapleton and Mrs. Wolver are on the sick list.

The Cub Scouts were given special recognition, as were their leaders and parents, at Jonesville First Baptist Church, in the Sunday morning services, February 8. Pack No. 384, under the leadership of Mrs. Carlotta Bush, who is the Den Leader Coach and Committee Chairman, had the opening and closing ceremonies. They marched in with the Flags, and lighted candles representing the colors of the Flag. The Pledge of Allegiance to the National Flag was given. The collection plates were passed by Matthew, Mark, and Michael Arney, sons of Laura and Charles Arney, and Michael Bush, son of Carlotta and Tom Bush. The Cub Scouts are sponsored by the Baptist Church.

Byrd Proposes Cap On Federal Spending

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., Ind. Va., has proposed a Constitutional amendment that would cap federal spending and require a balanced budget.

In a Senate speech, Byrd noted that despite legislative efforts to check it, government spending has been growing at a rate of 10 to 17 percent in recent years.

"There is no longer a debate as to whether or not fiscal restraint is needed," Byrd said. "The question before the President and the Congress is how to achieve restraint.

"I believe that we need to establish a firm legal commitment to a balanced budget and a ceiling on federal outlays," Byrd declared.

The proposed amendment would balance the budget and limit federal spending for any fiscal year to 20 percent of the previous year's gross national product.

Those provisions could be set aside only in times of emergency, by a two third vote of the Senate and the House.

Byrd told his colleagues that nothing less than a Constitutional amendment will suffice to bring discipline and control to government spending.

"I sponsored a provision enacted in 1978 which banned deficits in Fiscal Year 1981 and thereafter," he noted. "It simply has been ignored."

In the current year, Byrd continued, federal spending is $83 billion above 1980 and that increase comes on top of an $85 billion increase for 1980 over 1979.

The national debt will pass one trillion dollars next year and the interest on it will cost $106 billion - more than half the cost of national defense, Byrd pointed out.

"There must be a constitutional rein on spending," he added.

Forage Conference

The annual Southwest Virginia Forage conference is set for Thursday, Feb. 26, at the Chilhowie Lions Club.

The morning program, which begins at 9:30, will focus on fencing. William H. Collins, Extension agricultural engineer at Virginia Tech, will describe how to "Build Fences Right." New high tensile steel fencing will be discussed by Bill McClure of the Shenandoah Valley Research Station.

Since fencing costs are a concern of all livestock producers, Southwest Virginia farmers won't want to miss a presentation on "Costs of Different Types of Fencing" by Hugh M. Jones, Abingdon Extension agent.

Following a "dutch treat" steak lunch and a chance to visit displays, the Virginia Forage and Grassland Council will present its Outstanding Forage Producer Award to Martin D. Tate. After receiving the award, the Bland County dairyman will describe his award-winning forage operation.

Folling Tate will be Harland E. White, Extension forage specialist at Tech, who will give an update on "New Forages on the Scene." William E. Chappell, Extensin plant physiologist, will discuss the topic of both old and new herbicides available for brush and pasture weed control.

Because of the recent concern about weed and brush control on pastures, Abingdon Extension specialist, Mike G. Altizer, will address the problem of "Preserving Southwest Virginia Pastures."

All Southwest Virginia farmers are invited to attend the one-day educational conference set to adjourn at 3:30 p.m.

The traditional event is sponsored by the Virginia Forage and Grassland Council in cooperation with the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service. For more information, contact your local Extension office.

Changes In Law Bring Changes In Medicare

If you're nearing 65 and will soon be eligible for Medicare, you should know about recent changes in the law. People can now apply for Medicare at age 65 without also being required to apply for social security benefits.

In the past, people had to apply for social security benefits to get Medicare protection. Now people can have Medicare protection without having to retire.

Also, people who previously applied for social security benefits just to get Medicare hospital insurance protection can now withdraw their benefit application and still keep the Medicare protection.

Under another change, the spouse of a worker can get Mediare hospital insurance protection at age 65 if the worker is at least 62 but does not want to retire. If you want more information about these and other changes in the Medicare program, call or write any social security office.

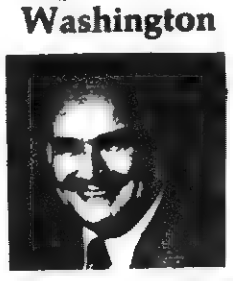
Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington



The Reagan Administration's request for an increase in the ceiling on the National debt does not and will not represent business as usual The dismal condition of our economy and the government commitments he has inherited left no choice in the matter

In the past, I have consistently voted against any increase in the national debt limit However, if the debt limit is not increased by February 18, the Federal government will have no funds to pay obligations already incurred. Serious disruptions in the financial markets could occur

This massive increase in Federal borrowing can be attributed directly to the misguided policies of the past decade which have crippled our economy, fueled budget outlays through entitlement programs and increased interest payments on the national debt. Through no fault of its own, the Reagan Administration must first face this serious problem before it can focus its attention on the real solutions to the critical economic problems we face. I believe he deserves this one time assistence from the Congress in order to give him time to present his proposals for restoring a stable economy.

In mid February, the President will submit to Congress a comprehensive economic program which will include major reductions in Federal spending. As one who has repeatedly called for a balanced Federal budget, I welcome these initiatives on the part of the Administration. At the same time, I reserve the option of selective voting on spending reductions, and the right to make independent judgments on all economic measures in the future

I agree completely, however, that the most important and urgent task before the 97th Congress is to get the Federal budget under firm control, thereby reducting inflation No institution can long prevail when, over a long period of time, it spends more than it earns. The Federal government is no exception, and the sooner we get on with the task, the better for the Nation's citizens I believe the apparatus is in place to begin to improve the management of the government's finances and reduce the cost of financing the public debt

Sunday School Lesson

LIVE YOUR FAITH -- Matthew 16: 13-26

At Caesarea Philippi, Christ asked the disciples whom they heard others say that He was. They replied that some thought He was John the Baptist, reminding them of their obligation to God; others thought that He was Elijah, calling upon them to live righteously; others were of the opinion that He was Jeremiah, advocating a genuine revival; and still others declared that He was one of the prophets. All thought that He was a great and good man, and a wonderful teacher, but none thought of Him as the long-expected Messiah.

Turning to His intimate friends and disciples, Christ asked the pointed and personal question, "Whom say ye that I am?" Rising to the occasion, Peter replied, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." So pleased was our Lord with Peter's confession that He highly commended him, and stated that he had not reached that conclusion through human wisdom, but by divine revelation from the Father.

In announcing His purpose, our Lord said: "Thou art Peter (Petros -- literally, 'a pebble" or 'a little rock'), and upon this rock (Petra -- literally, 'a fixed rock' or 'a ledge rock') I will build my church." The rock upon which Christ promised to build His church is himself, the Son of God. The carrying out of this purpose through the centuries constitutes the clearest possible proof of the day of Christ.

When Christ began to teach the disciples about His approaching sufferings, death, burial, and resurrection, they were shocked and astounded. Peter took Christ aside and privately tried to persuade Him not to pursue such a course, and then expressed the hope that God would not allow such a thing to take place. In response to Peter, Christ administered a solemn and sharp rebuke, letting him know that his suggestion originated with Satan. Nothing was more offensive to Christ than an attempt to keep Him from suffering and dying to obtain salvation for sinners. Christ resented any attempt to keep Him from doing God's will.

Christ made it clear that true discipleship involves three things: self-denial, cross-bearing, and following Him. Self-denial is a disowning of self, the complete setting aside of self-will for full obedience to God's will. Cross-bearing is a real and vital part of discipleship. One cannot be a Christian and not have a cross to bear any more than he can be a man and not have a shadow when he walks in the sunlight. To follow Christ is to think His thoughts, to declare His message, and to do His will. As we follow Christ a joy unspeakable will flood our souls and enrich our lives. Radiating Christian joy will cause others, who do not possess that joy because they have not trusted Christ as their Saviour, to repent and believe in order to obtain this unspeakable blessing.

Two Cooper Coins - "A Gift Of Love"

The United Methodist Women of Morgan Memorial Church held a very impressive "Pledge Service" at their February Meeting on Thursday the 5th.

The Service of Worship, under the direction of Mrs. Oscar W. Smith, was based on the Scripture in Mark 12:41 43, which was read by Miss Carolyn Nelson

In it Jesus had told his disciples that the poor widow's "gift of love", which was only "two copper coins" was a far greater gift than the amount by those who had plenty to spare, for she had given her all the last of her possessions.

With the aid of several "Voices" those of Mrs Snyder Harris, Mrs Charles Emmett, Mrs. James Gibson, Mrs. Van B Grabeel, Mrs. John Hounshell, Jr., and Mrs Henry Campbell brief "once upon a time" stories were shared about the commitment and enthusiasm of groups of dedicated women, who through many years, had reached out in the world to make God's Love visible to all human kind.

It was a story of small beginnings in 1869, but through their commitment to daily prayer and systematic giving, the women's determination to be in mission for God, regardless of the difficulties involved, brought visible and wonderful results

It was related that today, as the United Methodist Women's organization of the United Methodist Church seeks to be in mission, it also makes it possible for others to be in mission as it gives financial and prayerful support to those who serve in various ways and many capacities.

Through its annual pledge of more than 14 million dollars, the Women's Division of the United Methodist Church supports more than 9,000 separate ministries of the National and World Divisions of the Board of Global Ministries and the Programs of the Women's Division.

The Morgan Memorial unit is one of 35,000 local units of the Women's Division of the United Methodist Church which consists of 73 Conferences encompassing 1,500,000 individual women.

Those present presented their pledge cards at the altar and retained two copper coins on their portion of the pledge which read: I pledge my prayers, that I may experience growth and renewal in my relationship to God and to my sisters and brothers; My time, that I may respond to human need through study, action, and reflection; My gifts through United Methodist Women, that Imay share in the global ministries of the church

Wise Indians Route Bobcats

The first time Wise and Pennington met back on January 15th, the Indians won by 20 points on their home floor. Both teams met again this past Thursday night and the Indians again had things their way as they routed the Bobcats by the score of 72-57.

Wise with one of the better ball clubs, out of the Lonesome Pine District soundly beat the Bobcats, as the margin of 15 points indicates, but it must be noted that Jerry Myers' troops are getting better as the season winds down. Pennington has played the last two games without standout Bobby Ledbetter due to an injury. Once they get him back, the Bobcats may surprise a lot of people.

The Bobcats held a 18 14 lead on the Indians after one quarter, and then fell behind by five points at the half at 32 27. Pennington then lost the third quarter 17 9, and the fourth at 23 22. One of these nights the Bobcats are going to put another quarter or two, of those 20 plus point quarters on the board. The fourth quarter being Pennington's best scoring stanza of the year. If and when the Bobcats do put together another big quarter with that usually big fourth quarter, then beware ever who the opponent is!

Wise was led by Chris Johnson with 25 points. Also in double figures scoring for Wise was Brian Kirk 14 points, Barry Crowder with 13 points, and Scott Church with 11

Pennington was led by Gary Pendergraft who scored 20 points. He is averaging 16.11 per outing this year and is one of the Bobcats mainstays. Billy Byington and Gary Collier scored 12 and 10 points respectively

Pennington can look forward to next season when they will probably have Billy Byington's brother up from the junior varsity team. Billy's brother Tim is and has been all season long, an all around team leader He also helped lead the baby Bobcats over Wise prior to the varsity game, by the score of 44 24 The Baby cats are 11 and 2 on the year. Their two losses have been by two points to Jonesville and by five in overtime to Powell Valley. Beware of the Baby cats at tournament time!

The Bobcats now stand 7 and 6 on the year and are 7 and 3 in the district. They have five games remaining on their schedule and all are on the road The Bobcats will be at Jonesville this Friday night It is only seven or eight miles to Jonesville's High School, so lets see the gym packed to capacity to show support for both teams.

Score By Quarters:
Wise 14 18 17 23-72
Pennington 18 9 8 22-57

Individual Scoring:
Wise [72] Johnson 25, Kirk 14, Crowder 13, Church 11, Slemp 3, Herman 2, Stallard 2, Barnette 2

Pennington didn't take the lead until with 6:15 left in the third quarter Gary Pendergraft hit a bucket to tie the score at 32 all, and then with 5:43 remaining Gary Collier hit a jump shot to give the Bobcats their first lead of the game at 34 32. Pennington took a 15 12 lead into the final quarter and ran away from the Crusaders by outscoring them 25 10. Pennington hit 9 of 10 free throws in the final quarter when Dryden was forced to foul to try to get back into the game.

The Bobcats were led by Pendergraft, who scored 21 points. He missed his first five shots of the game, but in the end had eight field goals and 5 of 6 free throws for his total. Gary Collier, Kent Henderson, and Billy Byington also hit double figures, with 15, 12 and 10 points respectively for Pennington. Tod Kirk scored 9 for Pennington He started in place of Bobby Ledbetter who sat out due to an injury Ledbetter received a leg injury in the Rye Cove game, played January 30th Having the injury didn't stop Ledbetter from having interest in the game, as he was seen sitting in the stands cheering his teammates on.

Dryden got a fine performance out of Tony Young who scored 18 points, and also pulled down numerous rebounds, both offensively and defensively Greg Peters scored 12 points in the loss, coming mostly from outside John Vaughn also scored 10 points for the losers

Valentine's Day — From Ancient Roman Toga To The Preppy Look, The Feeling's Still The Same

Is Romance dead?

Far from it. It's alive and well and living in the hearts of everyone who loves and needs to be loved, if Valentine's Day is any indication. In fact, the occasion ranks second only to Christmas as a card-sending holiday.

During this national love-in on February 14, most people would be hard pressed to explain the orgins responsible for their heart-to heart exchange of cards, candy and flowers.

According to Dr. Lee W. Gibbs, acting chairman of the department of religious studies at Cleveland State University, St. Valentine is commemorated primarily in North America and Britian.

"There were at least eight men with the name Valentine, seven of whose religious feast days fall on February 14," said Gibbs. "One of the most credible legends dates back to around 269 A.D., when Valentine, a priest in Rome, defied Emperor Claudius II's belief that single men made better soldiers. The priest, thinking this attitude was unfair, joined several couples in matrimony." Valentine was swiftly sent to prison, where he eventually died. Friends buried his body in a churchyard.

Despite the number of Valentine legends, common themes linking them all involve compassion, martyrdom or the passing of love notes between the bars of prison windows.

In 469 A.D., Pope Gelasius named February 14 as St. Valentine's Day. This new Christian holiday gradually became a time for exchanging love messages, with St. Valentine emerging as the patron saint of courtship and lovers, explained Gibbs.

People in England were probably sending Valentine greetings as early as the 1400's. By around 1800 the first commercial Valentine cards appeared, featuring fine paper, ribbon and lace, and love symbols, such as doves, cupids, flowers and bleeding hearts.

Traditional artwork and sentiments on Valentine cards still remain ever popular, although contemporary adaptations are increasing in acceptance.

Studio and humorous cards, also known as "slams", are ideal for exchanging Valentine messages without undue sentimentality, according to James Semon, assistant vice president of marketing at Cleveland based American Greetings Corp.

"Slam cards are slightly derogatory in a humorous, chiding fashion," said Semon. "Artwork is also more far out." A typical verse might read: A Valentine for my husband... Lots of women marry a guy... and then try to change him, but not me, honey—I love you just the way you are...but don't get any worse! Happy Valentine's Day, honey!

"The first slams were quite horrible," said Carl Goeller, editorial director at American Greetings. "They were directed at wives who didn't take care of their husbands, obesity and other human weaknesses to be exploited."

During World War II, slams became even more intense, with a "get even" tone reflecting the strong patriotism and clear-cut good vs. bad nature of the times. This cynical trend continued throughout the McCarthy era of the early 1950's.

Ironically, during the Viet Nam years, cynical cards had their lowest ebb, according to Goeller. Instead, cards with romantic photographic art and introspective, conversational messages were enthusiastically received. "The increasingly educated Viet Nam generation placed an emphasis on love, not war. Once peace was restored, so was humor."

If Valentine's Day is any barometer of shifting social values, the decade of the '80's looks like a return to old fashioned romance and tradition. The more conservative mood of the country is reflected, for example, in the resurgence of the preppy look in dressing, high school proms and other "square" customs.

What accounts for this shift to the traditional? "Perhaps the country is settling down and changing from a 'me' to 'us' generation," Goeller observed. "Kids today are more realistic and are focusing their attention on recreational pursuits and day to day existence rather than causes. There's also an increase in the number of people in the 20 to 35 year old bracket."

Goeller noted that today's conservative mood is in some ways a return to the Andy Hardy years, when movies were filled with happy days and happy endings. "President Ronald Reagan, for instance, brought a lot of happy endings to movies. Valentine's Day is seen as a way to re enter the traditional social mainstream."

Alberta Braun, an American Greetings editor, added that among adults, Valentine's Day has become more sentimental and has broadened in scope to encompass friends, near and far, in addition to lovers and spouses.

"People find it easier to express themselves with cards and Valentine's Day provides the ideal opportunity to break down the barriers of not showing emotions," she explained. "The holiday is also a symbol of stability and hope in the face of social change."

Semon noted other contemporary trends regarding Valentine's Day. Men are now increasingly willing to "open up" with their feelings, due, in part, to a relaxing of rigid role playing. In addition, cards featuring such popular characters as Ziggy and Holly Hobbie are increasing in popularity because people can relate to them. Ziggy, a comic strip hero, is the "everyperson" for men and women.

No matter how much Valentine's Day is studied, however, Goeller and Braun emphasized that Valentine's Day is simply a plain, old fashioned holiday that will never go out of style, since it's so associated with romance and love. A person is never too jaded to respond to these basic human feelings and needs, both agreed.

School Lunch Room Meals Eligibility Changes Announced

Changes in eligibility standards, based on family size and income have been announced for free and reduced price meals.

Schools must complete the redetermination of eligibility of all applications for free meals by March 2, and it must be implimented by March 16, of this year.

The new family size income scale is effective through September 30, 1981. These new provisions eliminates deducting the "unusual hardships" from the income in determining eligibility. This is replaced by a standard deduction ($80.00) built into the scale for all families.

After determining eligibility under the new scale, parents of children whose eligibility is changed must be notified in writing at least 10 days prior to the effective date of the change ... Parents of children whose eligibility is changed may submit a new application if their family size or income has changed.

Questions concerning these changes may be directed to Lee County school officials.

Overall travel dropped by 0.3 of 1 per cent, the smallest monthly decline since the first decline was recorded in June, 1979. However, it was the 19th straight month that Virginia travel had showed a decline, said J.P. Mills, Jr., the department's traffic and safety engineer.

Married 54 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Millard Edens of the Ben Hur Community observed their 54th wedding anniversary February 4th. Presently all five of their children are living. They have eight grandchildren and five great grandson's. One son in Elwood, Ohio, three daughters in Jonesboro, Indiana, and another son in Gate City, Va.

They received cards and flowers from their children that helped to spice up the event.

The Edens' thank God for seeing them through all these years.

Now For A Little Poetry

When we were married in twenty seven.
We thought we were in our second Heaven.
In nineteen hundred and twenty eight a son was born and that was great.
We said right then there would be no more,
But after that came another four.
We said my goodness we all make seven.
so that was better than a second Heaven.
I thank the Lord for seeing us through,
and I also thank my little wife too.

How comfortable you are at 68 degrees may have more to do with your surroundings than the temperature.

The color and texture of furniture, carpets, draperies, and even painted walls can affect how comfortable a person is at lower temperatures.

For example, a number of studies have shown that people actually feel warmer in rooms painted in warm colors. Even with two rooms, identical in every way except the colors on the walls, the temperature can be kept comfortable at a lower level in the "warmer" colored room.

Another important factor in creating a comfortable home environment is the humidity. The more humidity there is in a house, the easier it is to keep the thermostat at 68 degrees. Humidified air also is healthier as heat dries out air and can result in respiratory problems.

If you can't afford a humidifier, try setting pans of water by heat sources and letting the water evaporate as warmer air passes over the container. House plants are another good way of putting moisture back into a closed house.

While surveying your home for comfort, make sure large furniture items or curtains are not in front of heat outlets.

Want To Have An Old-Fashioned Valentines Day?

Want to have an old-fashioned Valentine's Day? Just whip out your goat skin, according to Radford University foreigh language assistant professor Salle Ann Schlueter-Gill.

According to Gill, the ancient Romans celebrated a festival called Lupercalia every February 15. "It was a fertility rite in which the city's young men would run through the streets wearing goatskins and striking females they encountered with goatskin thongs in the hope that barren women would have children. This particular tradition appears in Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," Gill notes.

Goats were also sacrificed during this festival. "No one knows why," Gill says, "but perhaps they were trying to keep wolves a way from the herds."

During the third century AD a Christian saint named Valentine was martyred and February 14, became his feast day. A number of stories surround this saint," according to Gill. "One is that he was in prison for some time before his martyrdom and that his letters to the outside world became known as 'valentines.' Another story has St. Valentine falling in love with his jailkeeper's daughter and their correspondence being the start of the tradition.

However, Gill points out that neither of these stories can be supported by evidence.

Dr. Grace Edwards, associate professor of English at Radford, notes another old February tradition. "In the middle ages," she says, "there was a belief that on February 14, birds began to mate. The day came to be viewed as a harbinger of spring and a beginning of rebirth."

"It's very interesting," she adds, "that a day named after a Christian saint should be symbolized by the naked infant archer Cupid, a symbol form pagan folklore. The holiday may have had religious significance at one time, but this significance has since died out."

Edwards contends that the holiday probably would have died out if merchants hadn't started selling so many cards and so much candy, and if grade school children hadn't started sending valentines in their classrooms.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

Saturday, February 14th is St. Valentine's Day. Sometimes customs survive for centuries among people who do not known how they originated. The beginning of St. Valentine's Day dates back to the Middle Ages and that was a long time ago. According to history St. Valentine's Day is the name day or feast day of eight Christian Martyrs named Valentine; that is in medieval church, services were held on February fourteenth in memory of their Martyrdom. A spring-time festival held by the Romans happened to fall on the same day. The people made gifts on that day and it has come down from this old festival. In time the gifts were called Valentines.

Come February fourteenth be on the alert for Cupid who joins the hearts of true lovers. (Cupid is a Roman myth, the god of love, son of Venus. A representation of Cupid is a naked, winged child with bow and arrow). This story has also been handed down from prehistoric times. Anyway if you want to believe it, watch out for Cupid, he might shoot one of his little arrows your way.

The young folks enjoy exchanging Valentines in school and the parties. Years ago I enjoyed making valentines with my own personal verse.

Drug Abuse Problem Discussed Here

"Don't Put Your Head In The Sand"

A very frank and open meeting concerning the drug problem in the Pennington Gap area was held at the Pennington High School last Monday evening, with approximately one hundred patrons and students in attendance.

Dr. Kelly Taylor had this to say: "I have been in Pennington Gap, 11 years and nothing has yet been done about it (the drug problem). If all parents in town were upset about drug abuse, we would have the problem under control."

Sheriff Robert Chadwell: "Children think it (the drug problem) is a big joke. So many parents don't want to get involved."

Assistant Pennington High School principal, Jack Rasnic: "I am not ignorant of the alcohol and drug problem. About 50 percent of the young people in Pennington Gap are involved. Don't put your head in the sand. Adults are selling the stuff to the kids." This is not a school problem. It is a county problem.

Much discussion and many questions were considered during the meeting which lasted almost two hours. Just what the outcome of this beginning will be is yet to be determined.

Speaking first on the program, Dr. Taylor pointed out that the big problem with drugs in this immediate area today is accidents. The drugs most commonly used in this area he said, have no long term effects. There is no permanent damage by those used, he said, based on his experience, but suicides, gun shot wounds, knive wounds, and highway accidents are often the end results, he said.

Most such accidents to our young people are drug related, he said. You just don't know what a person will do in that state of mind.

He said that alcohol is the big danger. One step leads to another. Alcohol, a depressant and a tanquilizer, when mixed with other things such as marijuana or sleeping capsules bring about some most bizarre reactions.

He mentioned one 16 year-old, he knew who had died of acute alcoholism.

Dr. Taylor said that parents so often ask the question, "Have I done something wrong?"

Parents don't have a lot of control over their teen age children, he pointed out. But they can and should watch out for symptoms -- out of the ordinary behavior.

Parents should know - who are their (the children's) friends; ask the teacher; know your child's habits: does he come home late from school; does he run with a certain group; parents should know that they (children) don't usually take drugs alone unless they are really hooked: do they come home tired or sleepy; do they come home mad or upset or very talkative?

Dr. Taylor raised this question -- "Have they (the children) been in mamma's valium?" He urged parents to have some knowledge of the commonly abused drugs.

Sleeping pills, for the most part, he said are the only habit forming drugs being abused in this area, he said.

As for heroin -- "We don't have enough money in this immediate area to support this habit. If we did, he said, the users would steal and kill to get enough money to support their habit.

And finally, Dr. Taylor pointed out that we have no facilities to help rehabilitate users in this county.

Sheriff Robert Chadwell pointed to the tragedies that have taken place that have been directly related to alcohol and drugs

Sheriff Chadwell displayed paraphernalia used in the abuse of marijuana that has been confiscated here in Lee County, explaining just how it is used.

He said that the production of marijuana here in Lee County is on the increase. It is grown in practically every area of the county, he said. As an example, he pointed out that, last year, it was learned that plants were grown directly across the North Fork, from Pennington High School.

He urged those who have knowledge of any form of drug abuse to notify his office.

Apparently waging a constant battle to keep drugs out of Pennington High School, Assistant Principal Jack Rasnic

School Aptitude, Achievement Tests Bring Improvement

For the third straight year, fourth-grade students in Virginia's public schools scored above the national average in all subjects included on standardized aptitude and achievement tests administered last fall by the Department of Education, Dr. S. John Davis, superintendent of public instruction, announced today.

The chart at the end of this article gives the results of the Lee County tests.

Gains were also evident among eighth grade students, who pulled up their scores in every subject and exceeded the national average in mathematics

Dr. Davis said these gains represent the continuation of an upward trend over the past seven years and an improvement, since last year, in aptitude scores and achievement scores in reading, language arts, and mathematics.

He pointed out, however, that "achievement test results are only one indication of how well the public schools are performing both at the state and local levels. There are many other methods of assisting and evaluating instructions in the public schools."

As in previous years, scores for eleventh-grade students remained stable, with a modest gain evident in social studies.

Dr. Davis said that extending fourth and eighth grade gains into the upper grades continues to be a major objective in public education.

Since achievement tests measure cumulative experience, eighth-grade gains indicate these students were more advanced as fourth graders than were the eighth graders who preceded them, according to the department's testing service which prepares and analyzes test data.

"Because of this cumulative effect," said supervisor of test utilization Donald S. Sale, "we can look for gains at the high school level several years from now, when present eighth graders move into the eleventh grade."

Dr. Davis said such predictions are "heartening," and added that "the continued achievement in elementary grades and present gains in intermediate grades are cause for pride in public school personnel and public school performance."

"Stricter promotion standards, now observed statewide in all grades, have been cited as a significant influence on improved test scores. There is also "tangential evidence," according to the testing service, that such measures as state-supported kindergarten programs and reduced class size are contributing to better performance.

Approximately 226,880 public school students in grades 4, 8, and 11--95 percent of the students enrolled in those grades took the tests which, required by state law, were administered between October 15 and November

School Board Agenda Full

(Editor's Note: This second article includes the remainder of business and action on the agenda of the February 10 meeting of the Lee County School Board.)

Prior to Superintendent Bob McCoy's regular report to School Board members, including new members Mrs. Willie Richardson and Terry Estep a representative of HELP (HELP EDUCATION LEE PRIORITIES) Mrs. Shirleen Edens appeared to the Board to consider changing its meeting time to the evening hours so that working people might have more opportunity to attend and be better informed of the school system.

TVA has designed a do-it yourself solar water heater the TVA Sunbox and will hold a workshop in Pennington Gap, Thursday, February 26, for consumers who wish to learn how to build them and save energy.

The Sunbox was developed at the TVA Solar Test Facility in Chattanooga. It is a simple water heater that can be built with new materials at a cost of about $450 and for considerably less if second hand materials are used.

The Sunbox is simply a box that holds a dark metal [illegible]

Cold Facts About Snow Removal

Where would we be without the local highway department crews in the wintertime?

Stuck in a snowbank, probably!

If you're one of those folks who thinks that the snow and ice on our streets and roads just magically melts away, you'd better listen up.

Snow removal in Lee County, as in many other counties, is a well-planned and executed operation combining manpower, equipment and know-how to do a job as efficiently, quickly and safely as possible.

According to J. P. Hughes, assistant resident engineer, snow removal planning actually starts back in October long before the first snowfall. "That's when we usually make a test run to see that all equipment works, outline each man's duties and designate specific routes for clearing."

Highway employees are shown films on snow removal procedures such as how to plow roads, set and use the spreaders, etc. "Some of the long time employees have seen the films so often, they're tired of them," Hughes chuckled.

The equipment inventory in Lee County, which is divided into four area headquarters in Rose Hill, Pennington and two in Jonesville, includes 17 dump trucks (all but two can be fitted with chemical spreaders), four pick-up trucks with radios for communications coordination, four front-end loaders which stay at the stockpiles to load the dump trucks, and four motor graders which generally are used only during heavy snows to grade the roads.

Hughes said that in the event of real heavy, continuous snows the highway department would then call on private heavy equipment owners to bolster their defenses.

The local highway team stays on the alert and always prepared for falling weather, keeping a man on duty round the-clock during the winter to monitor official weather reports.

A handy dandy weather monitor hooked up to the Tri-City Weather Service gives current and extended forecasts at the flip of a switch, Hughes demonstrated. Consequently appropriate personnel can be quickly summoned to work when the weather situation demands.

When the first flakes begin to fall, spreaders are loaded with a mixture of abrasives (crushed stone) and salt for immediate application. The salt, Hughes explained, helps the snow to melt and the abrasives give the motorist traction.

Traffic enhances the action of the chemical mix as do temperatures of 32 degrees. "The lower the temperature, the less effective the melting process. When the temperature drops to zero, we get in trouble because the chemical mix works very slowly and many times our stone will freeze in the spreaders due to the moisture contest in the rock," Hughes noted.

Once the snow has reached about two inches, we start to plow, unless of course the snow has already stopped, he continued.

In Lee County, about 60 persons on the day and night shifts are involved in snow removal. Each driver has a specific route to clear and his orders are to only work in that area.

"That's why many people might not understand if they see a highway truck with its blade up and not spreading any chemicals. He's not goofing off, he's simply on his way or headed back from his

Hearing Dates Set On Reassessment

Lee County property owners will soon know just what the "fair market value" of their property is, based on the recent reassessment.

Notices will be mailed out during the coming two weeks which will provide this information. The NEWS erroniously stated in the previous edition that this information could be obtained by calling the assessors office. This was incorrect.

The notice to be sent to all property owners will give the following information: the assessed market value of land and buildings; the district in which it is located; a description of the property and the dates on which the property owner may make an appointment to come in for a hearing concerning the evaluation of his property.

Notices will be mailed to property owners in the Rose Hill, White Shoals and Jonesville districts this coming Friday, February 20. The residents of these districts, Rose Hill, White Shoals and Jonesville, may call the Assessors office for an appointment for a hearing which would be held during the week of March 9.

Notices will be mailed on February 27, to property owners in the incorporated towns of St. Charles, Jonesville and Pennington Gap, as well as the Rocky Station and Yokum Station districts. Residents of these districts may call the assessors office for an appointment for a hearing during the week of March 16.

For an appointment with the assessor one may call 346-2461 or write to the Lee County Assessor, P.O. Box 525, Jonesville, Va. 24263. This same phone number and address may be used to contact the Equalization Board or the Assessor hearing.

Advantages Of Being 'Good' Egg

Or How To Make The Grade

The familiar phrase of "being a good egg" has taken on special meaning for several Lee County 4-H'ers and local Extension homemakers.

The multi purpose room of Old Dominion Power in Pennington was the scene Monday of an egg grading workshop sponsored by the Lee County Extension Service.

Some 25 participants including senior 4-Hers from Lee and Wise Counties and Extension leaders from Lee County got off to a nutritious and tasty start as each cooked an omelette for lunch

After lunch the real work began as Joan Hager Extension specialist in poultry science gave a concentrated explanation of how to [illegible] good eggs from [illegible] so good based on [illegible] exterior [illegible] are broken out [illegible] is why the egg is [illegible] open and [illegible] is used for [illegible]

Among the exterior qualities that mean the difference between a Grade A egg and a Grade B are shell shape, texture, soundness of shell and shell cleanliness.

Eggs with ridges, rough areas, thin spots or ones that are unusual in shape go into the lower grade classifications. Ms Hager continued because they are unappealing and possibly will not withstand normal handling without being broken.

A top quality egg will be of good even texture and free from ridges. It will have a sound shell with no cracks and no stains or foreign material on the shell.

15. These norm-referenced tests are independent of tests of the state's Basic Learning Skills and Graduation Competency Programs.

Achievement tests include assessments of reading, language arts, mathematics, social studies, and science.

State results, ranked in terms of national percentiles, show the relationship of the average scores of Virginia students to those of a large national sample of students at the same grade levels. The 50th percentile (or national norm) is that point above which half of the students in the national group scored and below which the other half scored.

Since national norms used for state testing are those established in 1971, they do not reflect any changes that may have occurred since that time in national achievement patterns.

Fourth graders last fall ranked as follows on achievement tests: reading, 63rd percentile; language arts, 61st; mathematics (total, 59th; social studies, 60th, and science, 59th. The first three scores represent a two point gain over last year's performance and a 12 to 14-point gain in each subject over the past seven years.

Eighth graders showed gains over the previous year of from two to five percentile points in all subjects on the achievement tests. In mathematics (total score) they moved from the 49th to the 53rd percentile judgers will have to understand is grading eggs after they've been broken out. Top quality eggs or Grade AA are typified with thick white surrounding the yolk and a minimum amount of thin white. The yolk will be round and upstanding. A lesser graded egg, such as one of Grade C quality, will have no thick white and a large amount of thin white, while the yolk is flat and enlarged.

Egg Grading

Youngsters were also advised to be on the look out for blood spots when candling eggs which would automatically move the egg into a lesser grade.

Among some of the more interesting facts presented at the workshop:

Eggs are very porous and therefore easily absorb odors of whatever they are placed next to. Therefore, it is better to leave your eggs in the carton when you refrigerate them to avoid any unpleasant odor absorption.

There is no difference in the nutirition value between a white egg and a brown egg. Shell color is determined by the breed of hen.

Fresh eggs can be kept under refrigeration in their cartons with the large end up for approximately five weeks with insignificant grade quality loss. Refrigerated, hard-cooked eggs in the shell can be kept at least that long also. The fresh egg only loses moisture and carbon dioxide with age, not nutrient value. Taste-wise the egg may become bland or may absorb refrigerator odors.

Prayer Service

February 22

A special prayer service for all churches of Lee County has been planned for Sunday afternoon, February 22 at 2:30 p.m. to be held at Victory Freewill Church, located three miles east of Jonesville, Highway 58.

All who will are invited to come and share in an experience of worship and christian fellowship through congregational singing, testimony and prayer.

This is a continuation, beginning at the camp ground at Jonesville, on the 200th year, due to the winter month weve moved into the local churches. Please come, maybe you would like to invite us into your church for the next meeting.

specific area of work. Without this definite approach, snow removal would be a haphazard process."

Roads within the county fall into priority zones, the ones ranking the highest or being the most travelled are obviously the ones which necessitate immediate action. The state highway department has a prescribed set of guidelines for categorizing roads, which each residency adapts to its local situation.

Snow removal is no cheap operation with $267,000 allocated for snow removal of primary and secondary roads in Lee County this year.

To date, Hughes said, $135,000 has been spent for labor, materials and equipment.

"Labor is the biggest single expense as any hours worked other than the 40-hour week pay time-and a-half. And since it usually snows at night or on the weekends, you're talking about a lot of overtime," he said.

It takes a considerable amount of salt and abrasives to cover the 106 miles of primary roads in Lee County and the 530 miles of secondary routes.

Salt costs about $39 a ton and thus far about 500 tons have been used, Hughes said. Stone has a price-tag of $5 a ton.

"About the two biggest controlling factors on how well we do in snow removal, despite all the men and equipment," Hughes said, "is temperature and sunshine."

If conditions are icy, such as is the case of freezing rain or sleet, it makes it that much harder for our equipment to get rolling and it's virtually impossible to scrape ice off, he explained.

Hughes also said that several people are critical of the snow plow efforts because they say the plow fills up private driveways as they pass by. "Unfortunately this cannot be helped," the highway engineer said, "but what good is a cleared driveway if there is no cleared high way to drive on. And it's hard to clear the highways without throwing snow in somebody's driveway."

School Board

woods High School students to Jonesville High.

Mrs. Edens, who is on the HELP committee, said that such a proposal would call on the giving of both schools, in that busing little ones from Jonesville Elementary would be just as much of a hardship as Flatwoods losing its identity as a high school. "It would be to the advantage of both in the long run," she added.

Supt. McCoy reported that elementary and secondary attendance was down three percent from December figures, primarily due to weather and the flu.

He also said that nine snow days have been used as of Feb. 10, leaving six snow days on the calendar for the remainder of the winter. (Schools were then closed Thursday and Friday, Feb. 12 and 13, using two more snow days.)

McCoy also told Board members it seems certain that Lee County will receive $320,000 more in Basic State Aid, raising pupil cost figures from $1,075 to $1,184, "but not enough to offset inflation's toll, he added

The administrator next proposed that the Board consider changing its current blank check policy of reimbursement for inservice training.

Under present guidelines, the School Board reimburses teachers for an unlimited number of courses for renewal of certificates, perhaps sometimes paying for courses taken towards a Master's degree in the process.

He suggested that perhaps the Board should consider limiting the number of courses or hours it will repay.

He also explained that the reason the Board does not pay for courses in advance or at the time of registration, as requested in teacher recommendations, is the fact that some persons may start and then drop out for some reason leaving the county with the expense.

In other business, the School Board:

Authorized repairs to the Stickleyville roof by Quality Roofing for $22,000 and $1,000 to Hayes Plumbing and Heating as partial payment of a boiler at Dryden School.

Approved low bid on four school buses at $17,600 each, from Blue Bird and Thomas, respectively.

Approved James R. Rogers and Margaret Wilder as substitute teachers.

Board member Charlie James was not present at the meeting.

stated flatly that, "Pennington High School has no drug problem at this time."

They may "smoke a joint on the way to school or after leaving school but not in school," he said.

We often catch them at the front door, he said, or notice the symptoms later in the day. Then, we call their parents to come to the school. We don't know just how the parents handle the problem.

The said that known pushers have been "discouraged" from attending Pennington High School. We have the authority and the right to search students lockers and the person of the student and we do if we deem it necessary, he said.

Rasnic declared that, "This is not a school problem. It is a county problem," he said. "Society expects the school to be a law enforcement agency. We are not," he said.

The big problem children are in the elementary schools today, he said. Our biggest problems in high schools are with the eighth and ninth graders. After they get to be juniors and seniors they know that they can't get by with it (drug abuse) here.

One St. Charles Elementary School teacher stated that she knew of two "drug pushers," who attended school there. "But, what can we do about it," she asked.

Known places where drug abusers gather here in Pennington Gap, were mentioned and discussed. No plan of action to put such places under surveillance were discussed at this time.

Rasnic concluded -- "Don't put your head in the sand. There are adults who are selling it (drugs) to the children right here in Pennington Gap, every day."

Another such meeting is being planned for the near future that will involve the Narcotics Division of the Virginia State Police.

Solar Farm Research

The sun may shine a bit brighter for Virginia farmers in the future with the recent announcement of a grant awarded the Old Dominion for solar research on farms

Virginia was selected as one of nine states to participate in on farm demonstrations using solar heat for drying crops and grains

According to Andrew J Lambert, Extension specialist in agricultural engineering at Virginia Tech, the Department of Energy awarded $110,000 to the state for use with the solar projects. The money will be allocated over a three year period

The solar additions will be used to dry grain, hay, tobacco and peanuts on 10 selected Virginia farms as demonstration sites

Once the selection process has been completed, Extension specialists in the departments of agricultural engineering and agricultural economics at Tech will work with the individual farmers to design facilities and study the economic feasibility of each project.

Lambert said, "Our goal is to get multiple use of the solar collectors whenever possible. In some instances, they will be used to heat livestock facilities as well as dry crops."

A portion of the grant money will be used to pay one-half of the costs of the solar addition with the farmer picking up any additional costs. Remaining funds will go toward the purchase and installation of equipment and monitoring test results

Lambert estimated that between $1,000 $3,500 will be spent per collector for the average drying facility. The drying systems will include trailers, bins and portable collector systems with an estimated average annual usage of 60 days

"This grant money will allow us to try techniques used in research and see how adaptable they are to our situation here in Virginia," state Lambert We will be able to get a better economic handle on the values of solar energy and its place on Virginia farms

The Tech agricultural engineer said that it was already known that tobacco producers could realize a nine to 15 percent energy savings when curing [illegible] cured tobacco by solar energy

There also is the potential to save one third of the regular costs of drying peanuts and grains when harnessing the sun's power said Lambert

The demonstration facilities are expected to be in operation by this fall and will be used for educational purposes by the Cooperative Extension Service on farms and field day programs

Presbyterian W.O.C. Hold Meeting

Mrs. Tom B. Fugate was hostess to the Women of the Church (W.O.C.) of Mt. Carmel Presbyterian, on Tuesday afternoon, February 10th at her home in Ewing. Mrs. Charles Emmett, president, brought a devotional message from Isaiah 12:1-6 on the topic: God is My Salvation, followed by a circle of prayer.

The Bible Study centered on God's Judgment, and God's Love for His People, Israel. Mrs. Lawrence Fugate shared thoughts concerning the Judgment of Israel in the 6th Century, B.C., followed with thoughts by Mrs. Emma Campbell of Babylon, the Conqueror, who did not escape God's Judgment.

The Cup of Suffering Passes was explained by Mrs. Tom B. Fugate, and thoughts concerning God's Steady Will were shared by the leader.

Miss Florence Rayless gave thoughts on the lesson which reflected the perspective of persons as viewed by the Third World.

The study emphasized that history has repeatedly shown that the Community of Believers as well as the World Community live under God's Judgment.

Also, the constant fall of Democratic nations into the Socialistic Camp could be a warning to God's People to turn away from past glory, and to start searching seriously for the possibility of a new future - for solutions that God may reveal to them which will benefit all human kind.

After the study, Mrs. Fugate served refreshments to all present.

Wage - Hour Suit Filed To Recover Back Wages

U.S. Department of Labor has filed a civil action in federal court against Keeter's Food Shop, Inc., together with Clyde W. Keeter, Jr., and Fred Leonard, individually and as corporate officers, to recover back wages allegedly owed to employees of the corporation.

Keeter's Food Shop, Inc., with places of business located at 655 Gate City Highway and Commonwealth & Euclid Aves., Bristol, Va., is engaged in retail food sales.

The complaint, filed January 12, 1981 in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Virginia, alleges the defendents have violated the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) since May 13, 1978.

The Labor Department is seeking to have the defendents permanently enjoined from future violations of the FLSA and the restoration of the allegedly unpaid wages plus interest.

Civil action resulted from investigations conducted by the Charleston, W. Va. area office under the supervision of Eldon F. Spurlock, area director.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

Looking over the historical calendar February 16, will be Washington's holiday, and on February 22, every year the Nation honors the birthday of a great man, George Washington, the first president of the United States who was born in the year of 1732

He served his country well and made his famous Farewell address on September 17, 1796. He wanted to spend his last years at home in quiet and peace of private life

George Washington died on December 14, 1799, at Mount Vernon where he was buried.

After Washington's death, Henry Lee, in a speech before Congress, uttered these famous words: George Washington was "First in war, first in peace; and first in the hearts of his countrymen"

Also in history on February 21, 1916, the battle of Verdum, the longest and bloodiest of World War I, began in France. More than a million soldiers died in the fighting

Another date in history, it was on February 11, 1808, hard coal was first used as a fuel in Wilkes Barre, Pennsylvania.

We have only to look about us and see the importance of coal in our present day living. Not only as a fuel but also the many other products which are derived from coal. The employment in coal mines is the livelihood for many people

Also in our present day wood is an important fuel and has thousands of other uses, but our woodlands and timber are fast disappearing as they are cut down every day It takes many years to grow a tree and seedlings should be planted to take the place of trees which are cut down.

The timber land with large trees located near Keokee is presently being cleared of trees, the wood is being chipped and loaded into large trucks hauled away to be manufactured into paper and other uses. Soon the woodland a short distance from the Divide Ridge will be gone as much timber has been cut the past few weeks.

"Old Man Winter" was on the rampage Wednesday afternoon, February 11, as snow was flung by the wind in a blizzard like fashion to an accumulation of two or three inches, and the temperature dropped to ten degrees below zero at night in the Keokee area. However, by Friday the sun came out and the weather was a bit warmer but the snow was still on the ground. We hope that warmer days will be here soon.

Now back to Keokee and the news of the week.

—Keokee Combined School was closed last Thursday and Friday due to snow and cold weather.

—Church services were held last week end at the Oak Grove Primitive Baptist Church in Keokee with Elder Roy Flanary delivering the sermons. Several folks from out of town attended

The next meeting will be held at 1:00 p.m., the second Tuesday in March and a demonstration of lap quilting will be the program for that day.

Mrs. John Joyce is president of the Keokee Club.

UNFADING SCENES

(Hampton Osborne)

The hills and trees against the skies
Are welcome scenes unto my eyes.
I see them now, though far away,
As years ago I saw each day;
But distance doth a bit me rob
And dims my view of Blue Hound Knob.

I loved to roam the mountain side
And to the trees my thoughts confide;
I walked along its rugged slope
And gained a strong reviving hope --
A place of which I was so fond
Was that dear blessed Old Mountain Pond.

The dear old church upon the hill;
I love it now, and always will;
'Tis growing dearer every day.
For there it was I found the way.
I'll find no place, though much I search
As dear to me as Big Door Church.

Upon a hill, beside a brook,
Where first I learned to read a book;
O happy hours which there I spent;
As day by day to school I went;
I humbly bow, and thus salute
The passing of The Institute.

Dedicated to my many friends on Blackwater.

Farm Storage Structure Loans Offered By ASCS

The Lee County ASCS Office has money available for loaning farmers to purchase the structures they need for the on-farm storage of their grain crops, according to Clay Jones, Member of the Lee County ASC Committee. Loans are available on cribs, bins, silo-type structures and drying equipment.

"The loans can be set-up to be repaid over a eight year period or less." said Jones. The current interest rate is an attractive 12.5 percent. Payments can be made annually. Loans can only be made on new equipment.

The lending program to finance grain storage, handling and drying equipment has proven to be a popular program among U.S. farmers. The program was begun in 1949 but was never more active than in 1977, 1978 and 1979. 29 percent of the total loans in the history of the program were made in those three years, representing 62 percent of the total money loaned and 40 percent of the total capacity.

The program is a self-help type program in that farmers repay the entire principal amount of the loan, plus interest at the rate charged by the U.S. Treasury. Farmers have proven to be outstanding risks and have repaid the loans with very few defaults occurring throughout the history of the program.

Loans can be made for up to 85 percent of the cost of the structure and equipment. Any Lee County farmers interested in more information concerning the program should contact the County ASCS Office in Jonesville, Phone 346-1531.

Like peanut butter dosidos, chocolate thin mints and their newest, the all-natural granola cookie. And, they're all great cookies for a great cause.

Worms In The Kitchen? --- Well, Why Not?

The idea of motivating people to put a box of worms in their kitchens may not seem particularly appealing, but a Virginia Tech behavioral psychologist and his students are trying to do just that.

However, the research being conducted by professor Scott Geller involves a serious effort to determine how human behavior can be influenced. This, and most of Geller's other research, has focused on changing behaviors related to national energy conservation efforts.

According to Geller, the process of using earthworms to turn garbage into compost, called vermicomposting, not only has been around for years, but it is a highly energy-efficient process. "It is one that has no environmental drawbacks," he explained, only environmental benefits."

Geller initially got involved with vermicomposting and related human behaviors through Mary Appelhof of Kalamazoo, Mich, who has been researching the process for some years. She received a $26,000 grant to continue this research from the National Science Foundation, and Geller is a consultant on that grant.

Geller's research is directed at learning what strategies are most effective in altering peoples' behaviors on a large scale. In other words, given the principles of behavioral psychology, how can we, Geller asks, motivate people to set up a worm bin in their homes that would effectively dispose of garbage with considerable energy savings.

Geller pointed out that a tremendous amount of waste is involved in using some eight gallons of water to flush a pound of garbage down the sink disposal unit. Furthermore, the compost obtained from a worm bin would provide essential nutrients for house plants and gardens. Geller emphasized that a community wide vermicomposting program would make a significant contribution to energy conservation and environmental protection.

Although more research is contemplated, Geller said that essentially a worm bin is a simple plywood box about 3 by 3 by 1 foot with holes in the bottom for ventilation. Garden soil containing native earthworms is placed in the bottom. A bedding of shredded carboard, newspapers, or peat moss is added to the top several inches of the soil. The garbage is worked into its bedding and the compost harvested every few months.

The earthworms can be separated from the compost, Geller said, by shining a light on the dumped contents of the box. The worms move away from the light, leaving the compost generally free of worms.

Contrary to what one might think, there is little or no odor associated with a worm bin, Geller said, as long as an aerobic environment is maintained; that is, there must be enough air for the worms and soil bacteria to effectively decompose the garbage.

Geller indicated that many cost effective energy conservation strategies, such as vermicomposting, requires only some simple behavior changes.

The goal of the behavioral psychologist," he said, "is to find ways of effecting these changes. Change behaviors first, then attitudes, and perhaps social norms or even entire value systems may change also."

Geller's biggest problem is not selling the idea of vermicomposting -- worms with insatiable appetites silently and odorlessly converting garbage into rich compost. It happens every day in everyone's back yard.

What Geller has to do is convince people that such a process should be brought into the house - perhaps even right into the kitchen.

Report From Richmond

By Orby L. Cantrell and Ford C. Quillen

In the busiest week of this year's General Assembly session, Ford and Orby and the other legislators worked straight through the weekend, trying to complete their heavy workload before the scheduled February 21 adjournment. Some of the matters considered last week are as follows:

State Could Lose $894 Million In Food Tax The House of Delegates approved a bill which would remove 2 cents from the current 4 cent state sales tax on food purchased for home use. If this bill passes the Senate, the state will lose a projected $894 million in revenues over the next six years. This loss could result in serious reductions in funds to localities, cutbacks in education services, and the loss of salary increases to state employees.

In areas of the state like ours that cannot afford to lose this revenue, local real estate taxes would likely be increased to compensate for the loss, so the taxpayers would not come out ahead.

The House also passed a bill that would altogether remove the sales tax on non prescription drugs. Of the $100 million that the state would lose over the next 10 years, half of it, or $50 million, would be taken from direct aid to localities.

If both of these bills pass, it could mean a bookkeeping nightmare for the owner of a drug store or small grocery store. Each customer's purchases will be subject to three separate taxes. For instance, paper towels at 4 cents, aspirin at 2 cents,, and bread with no tax. The store manager will have to keep track of each category and account to the state for the three separate taxes. The administrative cost of this record keeping would then be passed on to the customers, who are supposed to be saving money from the reductions in the taxes.

NATIONAL GUARD In recognition of the significant contributions that the Virginia National Guard makes to the security of the commonwealth, Ford and Orby have sponsored a bill to grant members of the guard to reduction in the cost of their specially designed license plates. This bill has passed the house and is now before the senate.

LOCAL TOBACCO TAX The house finance committee again this year failed to pass Ford's local tobacco tax. The tax, which would have imposed a tax of 2 cents per pack on cigarettes, was designed to raise money for the school systems in Scott and Lee Counties.

The measure lost on a tie vote, 9-9, after one expected supporter of the bill left the meeting immediately before the vote. Had the bill passed, it would have been the first tobacco tax approved by this committee since 1966.

SECONDARY ROADS The House of Delegates unanimously passed Orby and Ford's bill to reduce the highway department's rigid requirement that all roads admitted to the State highway system be forty feet wide. Ford and Orby's bill, which is now under consideration in the Senate, will allow for certain other, narrower roads to be constructed maintained, and improved by the State.

DIVORCE Ford's bill reducing the waiting period for an uncontested divorce passed the House of Delegates. The Bill provides that a couple who have no children, who mutually agree to a divorce, and who are legally separated, will have to wait only six months instead of a year for their divorce to be granted. The Senate is now considering this bill.

CLINCH RIVER RE-CHANNELING The House of Delegates unanimously approved Orby and Ford's bill to grant the Wise County Redevelopment and Housing Authority part of the land being reclaimed by the rechanneling of the Clinch River. The bill, which is now before the Senate, authorizes the Governor to give the redevelopment and housing authority the land along about a mile of the riverbed, adjacent to the proposed St. Paul by pass.

INCREASED SPEED LIMITS The roads and internal navigation committee, of which Orby is chairman, Barely passed (7-6) a bill that would increase the speed limit of interstate and four lane divided highways from 55 to 65 miles per hour. Even if this bill were to pass both houses of the legislature, it could not become law unless congress repealed the federal statute establishing 55 miles per hour as the maximum speed limit in all states.

Jonesville Senior Citizens

—Thought for the day Nothing is as important as the present time. Let us take full advantage of each moment as it comes to us. Each is a precious gift from the Almighty, given to us to use in our search for the kingdom of God. Let us not let our thoughts dwell in the past, for this is stagnation

—Rev. Kenneth S. Clendaniel, Pastor of Jonesville First Baptist Church, was the guest minister, at the Senior Citizens Center, Monday. He made a very interesting talk about "Hands," and the part they take in our everyday lives. He ended his talk by reading a poem by B.T. Barney, on hands and feet. There was singing and prayer, followed by a covered dish luncheon. Florence and Marvin James, formally of Edinboro, Pa. and now living in the Oceonita area, and Glessye Humphreys of Jonesville, joined in the activities. We were happy to have them with us.

—The monthly business meeting was held at the Center, Monday, with the president, Mrs. Vesta Muncey, calling the meeting to order. Several items of business were discussed, and Mrs. Muncey appointed two committees to attend to certain matters. Senior citizens on one committee were Lorene Terry, Maude Allen, Grace Davis, Golden Lipps, and Willie Sergent. Those on the other committee were Gaynelle Baumgardner, Grace Davis, and Pearl Ross. Gaynelle presented a check for $104.32 to the president, made for a project she had worked on. Powell Valley Chapter No. 13, Order of the Eastern Star, held their meeting Monday night at the Masonic Temple in Pennington Gap. Mary Ruth Willis, Worthy Matron, and Bascom Slemp, Worthy Patron, presided in the East. Florence and Marvin James from Edinboro Chapter No. 359, Edinboro, Pa., who recently moved to Lee County attended the Chapter meeting. Other visitors were Ruth Reasor, Ruby Palmer, Dottie Simmons, and Georgia and Paul Coughlin from Big Stone Gap Chapter No. 157. Dottie Simmons is the Worthy Matron and Ruby Palmer is the Associate Matron of Chapter 157. Refreshments were served to the members and visitors by Janie Woodward and Joyce Harber. Everyone enjoyed the fellowship of being together.

Mr. Coy Lawson is a patient in Lee County Community Hospital. He is the uncle of Mary Ruth and Bradley Willis.

—Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Kate Livesay were Debbie Livesay and Randy Wyatt from Wise, Va. Other guests during the afternoon were Mrs. Mae Durham and daughter Judy, Big Stone Gap, and Mrs. Helen Crumley, Jonesville.

It was good to see the picture of Mrs. Dora Collier in last week's Powell Valley News. She is a resident of Carter Hall Nursing Home and planning on taking part in the Rock 'n Roll Jamboree, Sunday 15. I've always called her "Aunt Dora", as she is like family to me. She is the sister of a late aunt of mine, Mrs. Allie Holmes Duncan, on my mother's side of the family, Mrs. Lillie Carroll. And a sister of a late uncle, Mr. Floyd Holmes, on my father's side, the late John B. Carroll. Her son, J.D. Collier, and family, live in Dayton, Ohio.

Vehicle Inspections

The Department of State Police announced today that it had revised motor vehicle inspection procedures to exclude Saturdays and Sundays from the seven-day validity period of rejection stickers.

A spokesman for the Department noted that previously a motorist, whose vehicle was rejected, was given seven calendar days to have defective items repaired or replaced and the vehicle reinspected. However, the Department has become aware that motorists may face some difficulty in having repairs made on weekends.

Each vehicle inspection will continue to be a complete inspection and will include a check of all applicable items, except that a reinspection of a rejected vehicle by the same station during the seven-day validity of the rejection sticker need include only a check of the items previously found defective. Such reinspection will not constitute a complete inspection and no inspection fee will be charged.

The validity period of a rejection sticker is seven (7) days excluding Saturdays, Sundays and the actual day of the initial inspection.

Silver polish is said to take crayon marks off linoleum or vinyl tile.

Interest on checking and the strings attached.

In banking circles, it's almost revolutionary.

All that hard-earned money in your checking account actually working for you. Collecting interest just like a savings account.

Terrific, right? Absolutely. But behind the silver lining there are just a few pint-sized clouds. Minimum balance. Average balance.

In other words, you can't treat your balance like a seesaw. Or sign checks like there's no tomorrow.

Now, keeping track of it all doesn't take an Einstein, but it does take someone pretty smart. A Full Service Bank.® The folks there invented modern checking, so you can count on getting good advice. Advice that can help you squeeze the most out of every cent you've got.

Advice that's free, incidentally. No you-know-whats attached.

4-H Livestock Judging

These are among 17 4-H'ers who recently participated in a local 4-H livestock judging school. Utilizing snow days as an opportune time for workshop training, 4-H extension agents drill youngsters on the finer points of judging sheep, cattle and swine. From this group, a junior and senior livestock judging team will be chosen to represent Lee County at the April District Livestock Judging Contest in Abingdon. Two workshops have already been held with a third yet to be scheduled.

ACP Sign-Up Date Extended

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, has announced that the 1981 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) sign-up has been extended and will now run through February 27. "Farmers with conservation problems on their land are urged to participate," said Myers.

Farmers who are signing up for a lime and fertilizer practice are required to provide a soil sample on the day their application is filed.

The purpose of the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) is to offer landowners financial assistance in order that they may carry out needed conservation practices on their land.

Research indicates Virginia's average annual loss of topsoil is 6.6 tons per acre. The greatest single pollutant of our rivers and lakes, by volume, is sediment. Soil erosion each year puts four billion tons of sediment into the rivers and lakes of the United States.

Lee County farmers are encouraged to do their part in conserving soil and water by participating in the ACP.

Have you ever gotten in a baking mood or got the urge to prepare a special dish only to find when you go to get out the ingredients, you don t have exactly what the recipe calls for?

Maybe some of the following suggestions will be of help to you when you need to substitute ingredients.

How Do I Substitute?

When substituting fresh herbs for dry, remember that 1 teaspoon of dry is equal to 2 teaspoons fresh.

One cup of honey equals 1¼ cups of sugar plus ¼ cup liquid.

One cup plain flour plus 1½ teaspoons leavening and ½ teaspoon salt equals 1 cup self rising flour.

For 1 ounce unsweetened chocolate, substitute 3 tablespoons cocoa plus 1 tablespoon butter or fat.

How Do I Add Spices?

Add whole spices at the beginning of cooking so that the heat and moisture allows them to release their flavors. Ground spices may be added near the end of cooking because they give up their flavors quickly.

Fats are excellent carriers of flavor. In preparing baked good, try creaming spices with shortening. When mixing salad dressings, combine with oil and set aside for a few minutes.

Powdered mustard and dehydrated onions should be combined with equal amounts of water and let stand for 10 minutes.

Whole spices stay fresh longer than ground spices.

TW Rescue Unit Gets Instruction

It was hurry, hurry, hurry last Sunday, at Thomas Walker High School as members of the recently formed Rescue Squad unit to serve that area received intensive training. Instructors for this "Crash Course" were provided by the Pennington Gap unit of the Lee County Rescue Squad.

Clarence Peters Sr.

Sunday, February 15, 1981 was a Big Day in Lee County, as the Thomas Walker Unit of the Lee County Rescue Squad completed initial training enabling the unit to operate and make emergency calls now, on their own without the assistance of the Pennington Gap Unit. This means an ambulance will arrive in just a matter of minutes instead of waiting over 30 minutes for a Pennington Unit.

Thirty people received their certification in Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care. Twenty-eight received certification in C.P.R. (Cardio Pulmonary Resucitation).

The Lee County Rescue Squad now has double the volunteers and ambulances to serve the emergency needs of the residents of Lee County

Clarence Peters Sr., 2nd Lt. of the Pennington Gap unit was the instructor for the First Aid to the group and Clarence "Rusty" Peters Jr. was the C.P.R. instructor, with the following Squad members from Pennington as aides, Lucile Peters, Bonita Peters, 1st Lt. Clarence Goins and Chester Stapleton.

The Thomas Walker Unit will continue their training on March 22 and March 29 with a Vehicle extrication class.

The Thomas Walker unit can be contacted for emergency calls by calling the Sheriffs office. They are available 24 hours a day.

Carter Hall Nets $1,100 For Heart Fund Drive

The Peters Brothers, "Bluegrass Specialists," entertained the Capacity Crowd at Carter Hall last Sunday. Many other entertainers were also on hand.

In addition to the entertainment, those in attendance were given the opportunity to have their blood pressure checked.

An unusually large crowd turned out last Sunday at Carter Hall in Dryden, to help the residents with their Annual "Rock and Roll" event for the Heart Fund Drive.

The day was a big success. Over $1,100 has already been received with many pledges yet to be received.

The residents of Carter Hall, the employees of Carter Hall and many amateur and professional entertainers along with the support of the public have combined their efforts to make this a most popular method of raising funds for the Heart Fund Drive.

Federal Tax Break For Forest Land owners

Landmark forestry legislation signed into law in October, 1980 by President Carter has been hailed by State Forester Wallace F. Custard as "one of the best things that has happened for forestry in many years."

Custard said the legislation, passed through Congress as part of H.R. 4310, is now known as Public Law 96-451 (P.L. 451). The important feature is that it provides tax incentives for reforestation of privately owned timberland.

"The law is a real bonanza for tree growers, and it's going to provide a tremendous boost to the forest economy of this state in years to come if landowners will just take advantage of it!", exclaimed Custard. He said the law provides landowners a flat ten percent tax credit for an annual expenditure of up to $10,000 for tree planting and related forestry work. In addition it allows the tree growers to take a tax deduction on his gross income for reforestation costs (up to the annual $10,000 limit) in equal amounts over a seven year period.

"We've got nearly two million acres of privately owned timberland in Virginia needing some degree of reforestation and related improvement work to make it ideally productive," said Custard. "The owners of this land are now in a position to recover a good portion of their costs for such forestry work.

"One of the really great aspects of this legislation," he continued, "is the fact that a landowner can claim $10,000 annually for expenditures made during the year as long as he continues to plant trees."

Any landowner who has incurred expenses in planting trees for commercial purposes on an acre or more of land during the taxable year could be eligible for a tax credit and should contact a tax consultant. The local Division of Forestry representative, County Extension Agent, or a Consulting Forester may also be able to provide assistance," Custard concluded.

Safety Weekend, February 20-22

Automobile crashes are the number one killer of children in Virginia, ahead of all types of accidents and diseases. Their high center of gravity and delicate bone structure make them extremely vulnerable in a sudden stop or crash. Still, only an estimated seven percent of young children ride properly buckled up.

In a cooperative effort to combat this growing statewide problem, hundreds of service, religious and civic groups are taking part in Virginia's first Safety Weekend, February 20-22.

The annual event will remind Virginians how they can prevent needless highway fatalities and injuries. Sponsored by the Virginia Department of Transportation Safety (VDTS), the 1981 theme is "Safety belts keep your family together" with an emphasis on using child restraints.

Over 1,600 children, ages four and under, were injured on Virginia highways in 1979. Fatalities for this age represented more than 26 percent of all fatalities for children 14 and under.

"A government approved child restraint is a must for drivers carrying small children weighing 40 pounds or less," said VDTS Director John T. Hanna. "Properly secured in a restraint, the chances of a child surviving an automobile crash increase by 70-90 percent.

In a 30 mph crash, a 30-pound child becomes a 600-pound moving object and risks serious injury or death, especially when riding in the front seat on an adult's lap. An unbelted 100-pound adult becomes a 3,000-pound force, enough to crush the child against the dashboard.

"Riding protected in child restraints will prevent fatalities and injuries, but they are only effective when properly installed according to manufacturers' instructions," Hanna said.

Prices for the infant carrier, shield, car seat and harness range between $20-50 at most auto dealerships, departments and juvenile specialty stores. Make sure they meet federal standards. Look on the label.

The infant carrier is the only restraint approved for babies up to 12 months old. VDTS advises making the first ride a safe one by carrying the baby home from the hospital in it.

Restraints recommended for children between ages one and four are the conventional car seat, protective shield and the safety harness.

Older children weighing over 40 pounds can be restrained by an adult lap belt, adjusted firmly across the child's chest and shoulder, not across the neck, face or head.

When shopping for a child restraint system, keep in mind that the "best restraint is one which your child is most comfortable in, can be installed correctly and you are willing to use every time you travel," Hanna added.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The 97th Congress is marking time, awaiting President Reagan's proposals for the coming year. In the meantime, we are busy with committee assignments, organization, and planning.

I serve as Ranking Minority Member of the House Committee on Agriculture, an important assignment since all Americans are dependent upon the food, fiber and forest products grown by our farmers. The Committee is composed of twenty four Democrats and nineteen Republicans, roughly proportionate to the Party membership in the full House of Representatives. Since the Democrats remain in the majority in the House, the Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture is a Democrat, while I serve as "leader" of the minority Republicans. In that capacity, I work with the Chairman to select and schedule legislation for assignment to one of eight subcommittees, or for final consideration by the full Committee.

Nineteen eighty-one holds promise of being one of far reaching activity in behalf of agriculture. The Committee's first obligation is to work on the budget for the Department of Agriculture, which must be submitted by March 15. The Omnibus Farm Bill expires this year and work already has begun in the various subcommittees to update and improve this legislation. There will be other important issues within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Agriculture, such as the food stamp program and the grain embargo, and each must be thoroughly reviewed.

I feel optimistic that the next few years will produce a realignment of functions within the Department of Agriculture. The 1980's can, and should, be a period of prosperity and abundance for farmers, if we get off to the right start under the new Administration.

First, we must get the Nation's economy under control. Farmers have been especially hard hit by inflation and high interest rates. Second, agricultural exports must be expanded. Farm income is heavily dependent on foreign sales. At the same time, overseas trade adds to the value and stability of the U.S. dollar and reduces our balance of payments. Third, there must be a concerted effort by USDA to reduce the cost of farm production by encouraging research and development in such areas as equipment, pesticides, seed and feed, conservation, and veterinary medicine. Fourth, we must revitalize our soil and water conservation programs to enable us to meet the demands of increased production. Fifth, we must establish a sensible food safety policy, firmly based on sound scientific principles. And sixth, we must restore to the Department of Agriculture its rightful role . . . to support the production of food, fiber, and forest products to meet the ever increasing needs of the Nation and the world. This list is not all inclusive, but it does contain, in my opinion, priorities in policy direction. I look forward to pursuing these goals legislatively in the new Congress.

Virginians Uneasy About Financial Future

Virginia consumers expect the nation's business to pick up in 1981 but feel pessimistic about their own, personal financial future. In January's monthly survey of Virginia consumer sentiment, 44 percent of the families questioned - up from 35 percent at the end of 1980 - called for a stronger economy over the coming year. Yet only 32 percent, far fewer than December's 46 percent, see better times ahead for themselves.

According to Dr. Max Mosner, publisher of the Virginia Survey, continued high interest rates and unfettered inflation explain this contrast in consumer attitudes. Most people feel that even the gains from a more active economy can not cut into the unstopped erosion of purchasing power caused by rising prices. With the cost of consumer borrowing not falling, and the fear of higher rates and perhaps more credit controls, Virginia families think that there is little chance of improving their life styles this year.

Thus, while the index of consumer confidence eked out a small gain to 129.0 - from last month's 110.4 - buying intentions fell significantly to 41.0, off from December's reading of 68.9. (A score of 100 means as many people expect to buy as not to buy, or, that an equal number expect improvement as decline.)

Buying intentions for cars, homes and major appliances plunged in January. Only 11 percent, down from last month's 35 percent, expect to buy a car over the next 12 months. Fifty three percent think now is a bad time to buy major appliances or furniture.

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded.

Westmoreland, Other Coal Producers Consider Independent Coal Shipping Facility

Armco Inc., Ashland Coal, Inc., Utah International, Inc., and Westmoreland Coal Company today confirmed they are considering construction of a coal shipping facility at Newport News, Virginia. The facility, to serve both export and domestic markets, would be constructed adjacent to Pier 14 on property currently owned by The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

A spokesman for the group said extensive engineering studies will be required to determine the estimated cost, projected capacity and feasibility of the project.

A.T. Massey Coal Company is planning to construct a similar facility on land adjacent to that under consideration by the four firms. The spokesman said the companies have opened "very preliminary" discussions with Massey to consider combining the two projects.

Basketball Predictions

Like the Father of Our Country, I, Stone Face Sam, cannot tell a lie.

Twin Springs is headed for the district championship, both season and tournament. Seldom does a team accumulate such a season record The Titans are to be congratulated!

But, Titans, beware. The regional tournament will be another ball game, if you'll pardon the pun. Here the competition will be rough and the Titans may tumble. We hope not. It w uld be a pleasure to see them go all the way to the state tournament

This would be, it seems, an appropriate time and place to remind the basketball fans of the Cumberland District of my record of predictions for this, one of the most unusual seasons ever recorded! In the vernacular, if I may, 179-72 ain't all that bad!

Titans Romp Over Bobcats

Who says the Titans aren't for real?' After last Tuesday's romp over Pennington, it would be fitting to say the Bobcats think Twin Springs is for real! The Titans romped over the Bobcats by a score of 79 49

The Titans scored at will all night long in raising their record to 16 0 over all They stand 13-0 in the district Twin Springs has now beaten Pennington soundly twice, so it would lead some to think, can anyone beat the Titans? After all, the Bobcats stand third in the district and have been knocked off twice by big point margins, while Thomas Walker who stands seventh in the eight team district has also lost twice to the Titans but not as bad as the Bobcats in either game. The Pioneers did manage to go two overtimes with the Titans before falling by only two points

In this win over the Bobcats the Titans shot 50% from the field and connected on 9 of 16 free throws for 56.4%. The Titans were led by Kevin Short who scored 24 points. Sammy Parks, Craig Short, and Tony Rudder rounded out the double digit scoring by hitting 11, 11, and 10 points respectively.

Pennington falls to 7-8 overall and 7 5 in the district play. They were led by Gary Pendergraft, who was the only Bobcat to score in double figures with 13. The Bobcats only got 33 points from their starters while the bench came through with 16 points

Pennington shot 34% from the field and made 12 of 26 free throws for 46 4%

There was a total of 40 fouls called in the game, with 25 going against the Titans and the Bobcats guilty of 15.

The baby Bobcats also lost to the Titans, by 11 points at 34 35. This was only the baby cats third loss. Only their second in the district, but it was their biggest loss, point wise.

Flatwoods Eagles Top Thomas Walker

In a real slow down type of game played this past Friday night fans saw the Flatwoods Eagles topping the Pioneers 34-29.

The reason Flatwoods slowed the tempo of the game was because John Trent, a starter didn't play -- the flu bug.

John Trent's replacement was Lawrence Greer. He scored two points in the win. Leading the winning charge was Jeff Seabolt who scored 15 points. Darrell Vanhuss was next with 8 tallies. The Eagles, who had lost to the Pioneers by 18 points earlier in the season, held Thomas Walker to two points in the first quarter. But only scored three themselves. Both teams scored only four points each in the third stanza. All the low point quarters were caused by the slow down game.

The Pioneers had a new point leader for this game for a change. He was Jim Miracle who scored 12 points. Bob Bryant scored 8 points, while Johnny Edds was held to 7 points. This was the first time that Edds has been held under double figures all year.

Flatwoods is now 12 and 7 for the year. The Eagles are 7 and 7 in the district. The Pioneers are 4 and 12 overall, and 2 and 10 in the district. But beware of Ronald Skeens troops next season as he will have all his starters back for one more year, and possibly for the kind of season that the Pioneers usually have. And that isn't usually a losing season.

Despite the Pioneers record, the area teams and fans had better not take Thomas Walker lightly in the upcoming tournament because they are very capable of knocking off a lot of teams. And have one of the best coaches; if not the best, by a winning percentage in Southwest Virginia, to guide them.

Twin Springs Wins 17th Straight Defeats Rye Cove

This past Friday night saw Jerry Fields Titans complete their district record for the season by defeating the Rye Cove Eagles 71-65. The Titans are 14 and 0 in the district, and 17 0 overall.

Twin Springs who had an 18 point lead heading into the last quarter, gave up 33 points to the Eagles in the final stanza

The Titans were led by Kevin Short who had 21 points. Kevin also pulled down 28 rebounds. Mike Penley chalked up 15 points for the winners, while Sammy Parks and Tony Rudder added 12 and 10 points respectively.

Rye Cove now 8 and 10 overall, and 6-7 in the district was led by Roy Lane and Jimmy Gilreath with 15 points each. Mike Bowen and Randy Hunter scored 14 and 10 points respectively.

All the area fans will most certainly be pulling for the Titans in the regionals, (in which they have already earned a spot) plus one other representative from the Cumberland district, so lets all get behind the Titans by showing support and attending the regionals which will be upcoming shortly after the district tournament. The regionals will be held at Thomas Walker High School. They have a gym with a seating capacity of 3,000 so all fans should be able to get a seat.

Flatwoods Eagles Rip Keokee

Flatwoods put Keokee back in the cellar of the Cumberland District Tuesday night by ripping the Mountaineers 54-43.

Keokee, with its win over Thomas Walker on February 6th, had come out of the cellar, but quickly went back, with their loss to Flatwoods, coupled with Thomas Walkers win over Rye Cove.

The Eagles had a 13-8 lead at the first rest stop. Max Chances' troops then scored 10 second quarter points while holding Keokee to just four points Flatwoods then built a 42 26 lead heading to the final quarter, in which Keokee took by a 17-15 margin. But the 16 point deficit was too much for the Mountaineers to overcome.

Flatwoods with the win betters its record to 11 7 in overall competition while they are 6-7 in the district. They were led by John Trent with 18 points, with Jeff Seabolt and Darrell Vanhuss added 14 points each.

Keokee, with the loss falls to 2-12 overall, while they stand 1-9 in the district. Roger Morris' club was led by Mickey Hubbard who scored 17 points. Jeff Bowman was the only other Mountaineer in double figures with 10 points.

Keokee's junior varsity team won by beating the Eagles 28-26.

T.W. Pioneers Upset Pennington

The Pioneers faced the Pennington Bobcats this past Monday night, in a game that Ronald Skeens' almost had to win to stay above Keokee in the district standings, and to help keep his team out of facing top ranked Twin Springs in the opening round of the upcoming district tournament. The Pioneers jumped out to a 14-6 first quarter lead, but saw the Bobcats claw their way into a 28-28 halftime score by putting 22 points on the scoreboard in the second quarter while the Pioneers matched their first quarter score of 14 points.

Thomas Walker went to the final quarter with a one point lead, and finally subdued the Bobcats with a 26-18 fourth quarter advantage. In the final quarter the Bobcats were called for two technical fouls. One on Billy Byington for faking a charge, and the other called on the Bobcats coach Jerry Myers. The Pioneers shot 65% from the charity strip for the game on 13 of 20. Twelve of the twenty free throws, came in the final quarter. Thomas Walker shot 40% from the field, and out rebounded the Bobcats 40 to 35. They were led in scoring by Bobby Bryant who scored 19 points and hauled down 8 rebounds. Johnny Edds and Riley Littrell added 15 points and 8 rebounds each. Alden Payne also had 8 rebounds to go along with 9 points.

Pennington was led by Kent Henderson's 14 points. Bobby Ledbetter, Billy Byington, and Gary Collier added 12 points each in defeat. The Bobcats shot 50% from the free throw circle, but only shot four free throws, making two. They hit from the field at a 39% clip.

Pennington fell to 7 and 7 in the district and 7 and 10 overall with the loss. The Bobcats will close out their regular season schedule with a non district game against the Powell Valley Vikings this Friday night at Big Stone Gap.

Thomas Walker, with the win raises their district record to 3 and 10, while they are 5 and 12 overall. The Pioneers can clinch the seventh spot in the district tournament by beating Keokee tomorrow night, providing Jonesville can whip the Mountaineers tonight.

Keokee Mountaineers Stop Rye Cove

The Keokee Mountaineers played Rye Cove's Eagles on Monday night of this week, needing a win to stay in contention for the seventh spot in the district tournament. They got the win by beating the Eagles 57-54 on the Eagles home floor.

Keokee took a 12 6 first quarter lead and then had a five point bulge at half time at 20 15. The Mountaineers lead was cut to three points at the end of three quarters, but in the last quarter, Keokee held on for the win by Kip Phillips who drew several fouls from close range. Phillips in his best effort of the year finished with 24 points. He hit six crucial free throws in the last quarter. Mickey Hubbard and Jeff Bowen added 15 and 10 points respectively to the win.

Rye Cove was led by Randall Spears' 17 points. Mike Bowen chipped in with 13 points, while Roy Lane was held to eight points The Eagles are 6 and 8 in the district and 8 and 11 overall.

Keokee upped their record to 2 9 in the district and 3 and 12 overall. The Mountaineers can tie for sixth spot in the tournament by winning their last three games But it will be tough on Keokee as they will have to face Jonesville tonight, Thomas Walker tomorrow night, and Dryden Friday night. Since the Mountaineers have to play three straight games, Roger Morris sure must be relieved of some pressure by knowing all three games will be played at Keokee. But then again, the Mountaineers haven't won a game at home all year. Now is the time!

Berea Students Study Energy Problems

Remember the good old days when you had to get out of bed at 5 a m just to line up at the pumps in hopes of buying a few gallons of gasoline for the family car? What about last month when you opened the mail box and found that enormous heating bill?

Most of us probably would agree that with today's growing energy problems and the endless quest for tomorrow's answers, new sources of fuel in the United States and the means to develop these sources without destroying the land should be of interest to us all.

That's what a group of Berea College students thought, and along with Thomas C. Mans, a political science instructor at the college, decided to scrutinize the situation first hand during the short term session which is offered each winter as part of the college's 4 1 4 semester system

Brenda Vandeventer, daughter of Mr and Mrs John L. Vandeventer of Jonesville, was one of 11 participants enrolled in the class entitled "Mining and Manufacturing in Appalachia", which explored Kentucky mines and manufacturing centers in the north eastern part of the state, as well as similar industries throughout West Virginia, Tennessee and Virginia. Brenda is a graduate of Powell Valley High School, and is a junior business management major at Berea

The course focused on the social, economic and political influences which large corporations might have on the Appalachia region. Among the issues examined were the poor working conditions which sometime exist in various industries, the great expense incurred in mining, and what increased coal production might mean to the nation both as a move toward autonomy from foreign oil as well as its possible adverse effects on the environment

Burley Tobacco Marketing Quota Increase Announced

The national marketing quotas for burley, and Virginia fire-cured and sun-cured tobaccos were set today by Secretary of Agriculture, John Block.

"The 661-million pound burley quota is 7½ percent above the 1980 quota, "Block said. "When adjustments for over and undermarketings are considered, effective farm quotas for 1981 burley are expected to total 860 million pounds, about 12 percent more than last year," he said.

Burley tobacco is grown primarily in Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Ohio and Indiana.

"Allotments for the other minor kinds of Virginia tobaccos are essentially the same as the 1980 allotments," he said.

The 1981 acreage allotments are as follows:

KIND	1980	1981
Virginia fire-cured (type 21)	9,729	9,576
Virginia sun-cured (type 37	1,377	1,335

Block said allotments will be reduced for some farms on which the tobacco acreage history in recent years has been less than 75 percent of the farm's allotment." Reductions are provided for in current legislation and bring farm allotments more in line with actual planting," Block said.

Notices showing the 1981 allotments for individual farms will be mailed soon to farm operators by local county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees.

-How To Reduce Firewood Costs

If you cut split, and deliver your own firewood, it may be costing you considerably more than if you get a little help, according to TVA forestry officials

Many Valley residents are doing all the work themselves, but this requires time a chainsaw, pickup truck/trailer, and an available supply of wood. The actual cost is about $55 per cord (4 by 4 by 8 feet) for chainsaw / truck operations alone, assuming a 30-mile haul, no accidents, and no charge for labor.

That means, says Dennis Curtin of TVA's Forestry / Biomass Program, that Valley residents would have to pay $160-$220 to heat a well insulated, 1500 square foot house with seasoned hardwood during the average winter.

To reduce the cost to $30-$40 per cord, residents may be able to get a professional logger or pulpwood producer to deliver logs unfit for lumber production to their home, where the wood can be split more conveniently and with no need for a truck. This, says Curtin, might enable the resident to heat the identical house for $100-$150

To use this alternative, residents must have an unloading and storage area of approximately 20 by 40 feet for three to six cords of wood, depending on the size of the delivery Since trucks of the size required to haul logs can damage lawns and driveways, such an area should be suitably located

In a recent TVA survey, most sawmill operators contacted indicated a willingness to assist residential fuelwood users in locating a logger or pulpwood producer who would deliver wood Both the Tennessee Division of Forestry and the TVA district offices can help in locating sawmills

Recycled Wool Defined

New words have been added to the fiber content labels on apparel made from wool

Because of new textile legislation the phrase 'Recycled Wool' will be used instead of reprocessed or "reused."

Recycled wool is wool that has been reclaimed from scraps of knitted, woven or felted fabric or from wool products. These products may or may not be used by the consumer, said Beatrice Kalka, Virginia Tech Extension specialist in clothing and textiles.

Virgin wool or new wool has never been processed in any way before being manufactured into the finished product

Because quality can vary within the woolen fiber classifications listed on the label, it is important to look at the quality of the fabric used in a woolen product.

"God quality virgin wools are strong and resilient," said the faculty member in Tech's College of Home Economics, "however, a fabric made from a good quality recycled wool can be more desirable than one of poor quality virgin wool

Recycled wools sometimes are blended with new wools to improve the quality of the end product she said

Lynn Koontz, president of the Virginia Future Farmers of America organization visited Lee County, last week in his official capacity. He is shown here as he spoke to members of the Pennington Gap School FHA Chapter.

He is a graduate of Turner-Ashby High School, located near Harrisonburg. Having held numerous chapter, federation and state offices, and achieved excellence in various FHA contests and programs, he was elected president of the State FFA organization and will be honored by the national FFA organization during the current year.

Young Koontz was reared on a dairy farm, where he has assisted with the feeding and management of a 100 dairy cow operation while participating in farming some 300 acres.

His primary message to FHA members is that of participation. He urged them to participate in chapter, federation, state and national competition and programs, which is the best means of measuring one's accomplishments.

The Future Farmers of America organization, which originated in the State of Virginia, is designed to provide experience and training for youth who are interested in making a career of farming or related agricultural vocations.

Emick For Lt. Governor

Today I announce my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

In spite of the fact that I'm not a wealthy man, a circumstance that is increasingly the determining factor in the selection of candidates, I'm willing to buck that trend and enter this race.

Having great resources enough private means is not a bad thing in itself but neither is it the only way we can or should choose public officials. No man is entitled to high office just because he can afford the race. Nor should the Commonwealth overlook, ignore or bypass or be deprived of the talents and abilities of citizens of modest means simply because it costs so much to be a candidate for statewide office.

Furthermore, the Democrats need to win some elections. We need strong, forceful, unafraid candidates who will speak out with strength yet who recognize and have experienced the value and need to work through compromise for the good of our state.

We need proven candidates, candidates who have received impressive vote totals in all areas of population from rural roads to inner city precincts and especially in the bedroom communities that have a higher voter turn out.

I've done this and have the record to prove it from my races all successful for the state Senate and House of Delegates. The 22nd Senatorial District and the 10th House District are cross sections of cities, suburbs, towns and rural countryside. Winning in these districts gives me the confidence that I can do well in like districts all across Virginia.

You've seen and heard other announcements for political office made days and weeks and months ago. Frankly, it's my fear that elections never end in Virginia and for that reason I have intentionally delayed my announcement until now, a few weeks before the mass meetings when delegates will be elected for the state convention in May.

As citizens prepare for these mass meetings I ask that the responsibilities of the Lieutenant Governor be considered when choosing a candidate; the most notable function is to preside over the Senate .. Obviously one who has served in the Senate already knows how to do this. Another responsibility is to be prepared and capable of taking over as Governor should the need arise. Obviously one who has served in the House of Delegates and the Senate and is thoroughly familiar with the Virginia government would be well prepared for such an emergency.

It takes more than just confidence, ego, and encouragement from supporters to put oneself on the line for nomination for political office. It requires a willingness to work hard with sacrifices .. a willingness to work hard with rewards. But foremost, it means a willingness to take a chance in order to serve. It is with that in mind that I offer my candidacy for the nomination of the Democratic Party for Lieutenant Governor today.

Sunday School Lesson

LOVE AND FORGIVE

While Christ talked of His forthcoming betrayal, death and resurrection, the disciples were preoccupied with selfish thoughts. They were especially concerned about which of them would get the place of preeminence in the kingdom of the Messiah in this world.

A Lesson On Greatness – Matthew 18: 1-6

In reply to the question of the disciples, "Who is the greatest of the kingdom of heaven?", Christ simply "called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them," and used it as an object lesson. By this method Christ taught that a great person is one who has the characteristics of a little child -- dependence, teachableness, trustfulness and humility. The great man is the one who recognizes himself utterly dependent upon God in every moment, circumstance, trial and opportunity of life. If any would be great, he must humble himself as the little child. Speaking of "these little ones" as those who "believe in me," or childlike believers, Christ taught that if one enticed one of them to sin he thereby committed a grevious offense against God.

A Lesson On Attempts At Reconciliation Matthew 18: 15-20

Christ here gives specific instructions about the right procedure in dealing with misunderstandings, quarrels and clashes between church members. If one is wronged by a fellow Christian, the one who has been injured is not to retaliate by treating the offender in the same injurious manner. Neither is the offender to be overlooked or ignored by the injured party. The one who has been wronged is to go to the erring one, "tell him his fault between thee and him alone," try to resolve the estrangement and to effect a reconciliation.

If the offender shall take the private reproof kindly, acknowledge his wrong-doing, declare his regret for it and request forgiveness, the offended will thereby rescue him from the error of his way and effect a restoration of fellowship.

If this method fails, the offended should return to the offender with one or two fair-minded Christian witnesses to hear what is said by both parties and to use their influence to effect a reconciliation. Should the effort to win the wrongdoer to confession, repentance and restoration fail, the matter is to be reported to the church, and thereafter he is to be regarded "as a heathen man and a publican" until he acknowledges his sin, repents and seeks restoration.

A Lesson On Forgiveness Matthew 18: 21-22

Peter, who so frequently needed to be forgiven by the Lord, was familiar with the rabbinical limit of the third offense, after which the obligation to forgive ceased, considered himself magnanimous and very generous in suggesting that he forgive his brother, who sinned against him, seven times, and asked Christ if that number were not sufficient.

Christ informed Peter that there is no limit to the forgiveness which Christians are to exercise as long as repentance is genuine. Love demands that they forgive freely and fully. Forgiveness is to be boundless and measureless to the one who confesses his sin and truly asks for pardon.

Love Is God

Ed Note: These thoughts were composed by Jo Anne Cooper, a junior at Jonesville High School.

Love is a song, which everyone should sing along Love is the music, but it can turn into a terrible trick People are torn apart by love in so many ways, it's no wonder we don't have a heart left these days

Life is so mysterious, it keeps us wondering minute by minute, until it drives us up the wall. We dream of love like a piece of Granite and wonder Is it really worth it all?"

We build our hopes high, like a tower in the sky, suddenly we wake to find, we are headed for a big fall, being crushed as if we were a little doll There are many problems in life we must face, for one example, being prejudice of the human race

There has been fighting and wars in this world for as long as we can remember, being hurt by our own brother and sister, in God's world we are all one big family, we are his children and that should make us happy

We never think of God, only in time of need, it is caused consciously by our own selfish greed We should never ignore God what so ever, if there is only one person who will always love us, it's God, forever and ever

Lee County's Own 'Ironsides'

Charles Bledsoe – A Man On The Move

By Diane Herndon

There's a familiar expression that goes "If life hands you lemons, like lemonade."

Bledsoe has been in a wheelchair just about all of his 32 years. Raised in the Blackwater community he vaguely remembers crawling around in the floor when he was small and sitting in a regular chair while "my aunt stuffed soup beans at me."

Bledsoe was born with a relatively rare muscle disease which retarded development of his body's muscle tissues. Despite repeated medical testing and research, doctors have yet been unable to find the cause or a cure for the disease

He got his first wheelchair when he was five or six and recalls that it was the first time he felt 'normal' "I could go places others went by myself without asking for help I remember just rolling back and forth through the house feeling free as a bird let out of a cage

When it came time for Charles to go to school, the local school board arranged for accredited homebound teachers to guide him in his studies. "Schools were not accessible to the handicapped at that time and there was no means of transportation to accomodate wheelchairs such as the specially equipped vans of today. In fact, I doubt anyone in Blackwater had ever heard of the word accessibility at that time," Bledsoe said

Even though he missed being with fellow classmates in a classroom situation, young Bledsoe worked hard to prove that he was just as good or better than other students

"Everything I did I wrote down my homework, my thoughts, I sort of kept a day to day life log."

After graduating from Blackwater High School, he contacted the Virginia Department of Vocational Rehabilitation (now the Department of Rehabilitation Services) and began approximately two years of study and therapy, concentrating primarily on business and human relations

Completing this phase of his life, he returned home and before long tackled his next challenge opening a store in Blackwater

His uncle helped him build the rough structure, fittingly named Ironsides Self Service. (Ironsides is his CB handle.)

The shelves and the counters were rough planks supported by cinderblocks and I took my last $50 to stock groceries he recalled

He continued to operate the store successfully until October 1980 when he assumed his present occupation as chief administrator of Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia

And it is in this capacity that Bledsoe truly seems to have found his niche. Now he is concentrating his time and energies on that subject he loves and knows about best helping disabled persons to make a better life for themselves

Bledsoe has some strong feelings about being disabled and meeting the challenges of everyday living

Why me why am I destined to be in a wheelchair all my life" I used to ask myself that question over and over But as I grew older and became more accepted in the community I realized that it was God's plan for me to be in this wheelchair to better understand and feel for the handicapped in our community

You really can't know what a person is going through until you step in their shoes

An out spoken advocate of the self help concept, Bledsoe quickly points out that the person with a disability must first accept that disability and then make the best of that particular situation Life is what YOU make it he stressed and the person who is disabled should not let that handicap smother productive fulfilling existence

Every individual should be able to pause at the end of the day and say yes I have accomplished something today

But the burden of accomplishment does not only on the disabled person, he continued. Able bodied people have got to change their attitudes about handicapped persons

Many people still can't get past the gimpy stage and find that someone in a wheelchair is something to gawk at There there are those who isolate reality issues that if a person is in a wheelchair chances are he's got mental problems also Some well meaning people want to help a handicapped person but are too embarrassed to ask what to do Don't be afraid to help We need to put our backs to our values and our actions he said

No matter how hard he tries to be normal, there are certain obstacles that must always be faced

Transportation is a big one Neither Charles nor

U.N. Proclaims 1981 Year Of Disabled

In a continuing effort to gain public recognition and support, Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia reminds citizens of Lee, Scott, and Wise Counties and the City of Norton that the United Nations has proclaimed 1981 as the International Year of Disabled Persons

A special council has been established whose mission is to promote full participation in life by American citizens with physical and mental disabilities

Approximately 35 million disabled Americans have needs yet to be met and potentials yet to be tapped, estimated Charles Bledsoe, local president of Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia, and it is the aim of this Council to foster the partnerships of Americans from all walks of life in furthering such goals as

Expanded educational opportunity

Improved access to housing buildings and transportation.

Greater opportunity for employment

Greater participation in recreational, social and cultural activities

Reduction in incidence of disability through accident and disease prevention

Former President Jimmy Carter in a June 22 1979, statement said "We must seize the opportunity afforded by the observance of this International Year to increase public recognition of what remains to be done before handicapped persons are permitted full participation in the life of their communities."

We need to erase residual prejudices, discriminatory action and eliminate, where possible, the re

Forester Warns Against Dangers Of Repeated Burning Of Land

It's that time of year again the time when Southwest Virginia forest wardens are continually on the alert for field fires that have gotten out of control and mushroom into forest fires

Many of the fires that get out of control during this season of the year are started by the traditional burning off of brush or broom sedge

It's a bad habit some folks in Lee County can't seem to break particularly since repeated burning year after year leaves the soil exposed to heavy spring rains resulting in harmful erosion

Lee County Forest Warden Harold Jerrell says the annual burning is a real problem, particularly in sections of Blackwater where farmers continue to practice this out dated technique, trying to rid the soil of plume grass, broom sedge and the like

By burning off the plume grass, the land is left naked and in actuality the burning process prepares a more attractive seed bed for the plant allowing it to come back thicker than ever

Jerrell said that his department is currently working with the soil conservation office and the extension service utilizing several demonstration plots to illustrate how to rebuild a soil eroded area by tree planting or sowing grass

For the Lee County gardner who thinks spring burning off is the only way because that's the way his daddy did things, Jerrell advised a change in thinking

By turning under the soil to be worked (without burning), the decaying vegetation will build the humus as well as provide a better means of holding moisture Lime by changing the PH content of the soil, will also help to kill unwanted brush and weeds," he said

Virginia state law forbids open air burning from March 1 through May 15 until after 4 p.m. and all fires must be extinguished by 12 midnight

Although many citizens might think this inconvenient, it's actually for their own protection as this period of the day usually is considered safest with the wind more calm, the temperature cooler and the humidity higher

According to statistics, last year Lee County had the unfortunate distinction of being the Virginia county with the most forest fires 48 to be exact. Nelson and Wise Counties were the closest with 30 each

A breakdown of causes of these fires shows 17 percent a result of equipment use, 15 percent from burning debris, 10 percent miscellaneous, railroads 10 percent children six percent, hunters two percent, and Intentional 40 percent

About half the fires were set on PURPOSE arson which is a serious offense

The Lee County Forestry Warden further pointed out that these 48 fires must all be investigated to determine the causes and to take action to recover suppression costs either voluntarily or through the courts

Last year $30,000 was collected by the Virginia Division of Forestry from fire suppression or fire law violators, a 44 percent ratio Lee County made a stronger showing collecting on 63 percent of all fires

The local forester noted that catching the arson type firebug is no easy task

"In many cases," he explained, "the type of person who will purposely set fire to a building or land will usually have some sort of mental problem, perhaps looking for personal glory because many times, the same individual will be the first one to report the fire."

Jerrell said that the best way Lee County can reduce fires is for its citizens to accept the commitment of reporting any information about suspected arson to the sheriff's department or the Virginia Division of Forestry. "We must all pitch in and help."

Again he stressed the danger of burning off and advised if this out dated method must still be used some important rules to follow are Always have help; do not try to burn an area alone. Two can fight a fire that's gotten out of hand much more effectively than one

Set the fire against the wind and on top of the ridge where applicable rather than at the bottom where it can quickly race upward out of control

Don't be fooled by rainy weather It's not the earth that burns, it's the dead grass, leaves, etc and it doesn't take much sun or wind to dry a leaf Jerrell recalled a fire that burned 35 acres in the Stone Creek area a few years back that started three or four hours after heavy rains and flooding

Be sure to disk or plow a fire line around the area to be burned

Jerrell said to be extra careful about fire and fescue this time of year as fescue is extremely flammable and a hard fire to put out

He also cautioned home owners about where they deposit ashes as fires can easily erupt when hot ashes are dumped in the wrong place

The local division of forestry stands ready during this approaching fire season utilizing flying surveillance, manpower at the Hunter Gap Fire Tower and help from local volunteer fire deaprtments and local forstry warden crews

his wife of less than a year. Ada, can drive due to their respective disabilities. Ada has a handicapping visual impairment, yet does an exceptional job as teacher of the multi handicapped at Flatwoods

To get to their jobs, to church, to the grocery store or anywhere, the couple is dependent on a hired driver for their van with its special lift. Transportation, Bledsoe admits, is one of the biggest stumbling blocks for all handicapped persons "so many have no way to get out of their surroundings

Other barriers to the disabled are physical as well as those of attitudes Many buildings can't be entered in a wheelchair, many people don't know how to relate to handicapped people

As president of Handicaps Unlimited of Southwest Virginia Bledsoe is striving to change all this

"I want people to forget the political and religious divisions and join together to help one another Ten voices can be heard much louder than only one."

Speaking for the handicapped, we don't want your pity We want to be independent and the opportunity to prove that we can do the job

An employer might have to make some slight building improvements (they're tax deductible) but in the long run the disabled person usually proves to be more reliable and punctual than his "normal" counterpart

Burley Tobacco Farmer Profile

The typical burley tobacco farmer producers only a few acres of tobacco and relies heavily on off farm income, according to a United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) study of 65 Kentucky and Tennessee counties in the heart of the burley tobacco belt

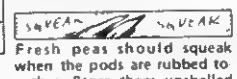
The farms in the study averaged 86 acres of land but only 2.4 acres of tobacco More than two thirds of the growers produced 2 or fewer acres of tobacco largely because of quotas restrictions

An average of 23 acres per farm was planted to other crops, primarily hay and corn, and two out of three farmers also produced some livestock

The typically small acreages limited farm earnings, so it wasn't surprising that almost 70 percent of the farm house holds reported that one or more family members held outside jobs About 55 percent of the operators and 26 percent of their spouses worked off the farm

In part because of the small acreages, harvest mechanization has not progressed in burley tobacco as it has in flu cured Without substantial quota consolidation to enlarge acreages the investment per acre required for mechanization has made manual labor more cost efficient

However labor costs have been rising rapidly 30 percent from 976 to 1979 so changes over the next decade may be greater than during the last three, the study says



Fresh peas should squeak when the pods are rubbed together Store them unshelled in your refrigerator

"Sparky" is 96 years of age and has been a loyal supporter of the Lonesome Pine Arts and Crafts Association since its organization. She is one of the hostesses at the June Tolliver House where she demonstrated quilting in the early years of the Craft House. Although not as active, she is still there for special occasions, and during the drama season you will find her in the Fox Room in the early evening hours about once a week.

"Sparky" still pieces quilts but hand sewn aprons are her specialty for the craft festival.

There will be a large variety of ceramics such as vases, spice jars, cookie jars, pitchers, birds, animals, and numerous novelties beautifully glazed and decorated by Mrs. Ronald L. (Betty) James of Big Stone Gap and Mrs Shelby (Norma) Payne of Derby.

Anyone interested in participating in this year's Arts and Crafts Festival should contact Mrs Jack McClanahan. Staging Chairman P.O. Box 285, Big Stone Gap, Va. 24219 Telephone 703 523 0846

Close scrutiny is exercised over ALL ADVERTISING (Classified or Display) accepted for publication in this newspaper.

We never knowingly publish advertisements that are untruthful or fraudulent – and detrimental to the best interest of our readers. All advertisements are accepted for publication on the promise that they are factual, that products advertised are properly described at the advertised price and will be willingly sold to the customer at the price and conditions in the advertisement.

If any reader ever encounters anything other than faithful compliance with these conditions we would appreciate your calling or writing the Powell Valley News: Phone 546-1210.

Classified ads placed by persons who do not have a regular account with the Powell Valley News must be paid for in advance. This policy is effective January 1, 1976, due to the fact that the expense of collecting such ads is prohibitive.

Burley Quotas Increased

The basic quotas for burley tobacco farms will be increased in 1981 by 7.5 percent according to ASCS Director Carlos M. Ingram. The decision was recently announced by the United States Department of Agriculture. The decision is related to the short burley crops produced during the past two years. In 1979 the burley crop was reduced due to blue mold and excessive moisture damage. In 1980 drought reduced crop yields.

Lee County tobacco producers will be mailed their 1981 quota notices on March 16. Once the notices received, producers will then be able to lease quota either to or from their farms. Burley regulations prohibit farmers from leasing quotas both to and away from the farm during the same crop year except in the event of a natural disaster.

The County ASCS Office provides bulletin board space upon which producers may post quota for lease. Farmers are encouraged to take advantage of this service.

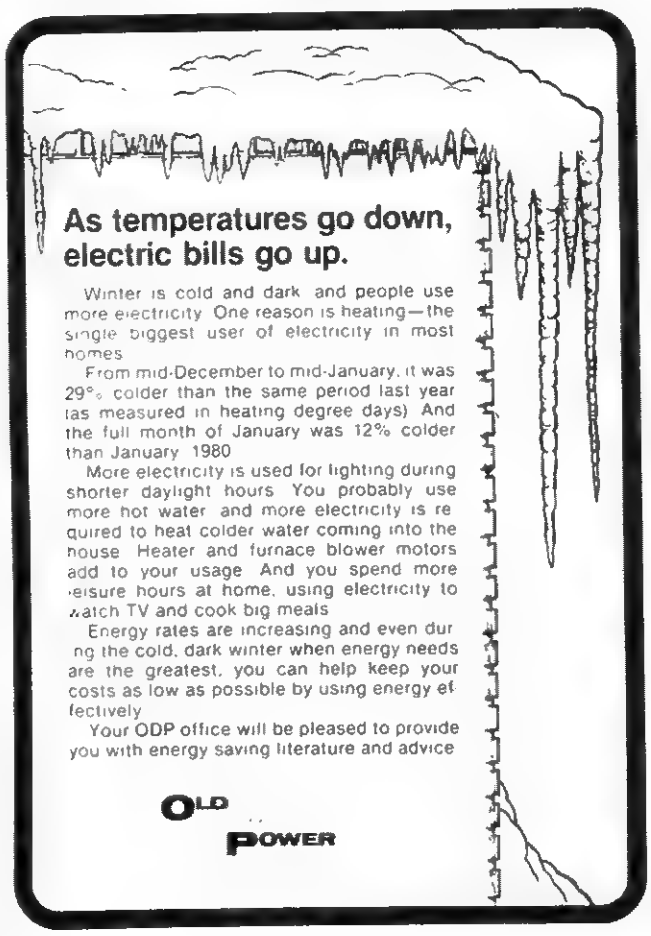
Wildlife Week Observance

The annual observance of National Wildlife Week will take place during the week of March 15-21, 1981 using a central theme of "We Care About Oceans." The selection of this theme reflects the concern about protecting and managing, wisely, the rich marine resources which are spread over two-thirds of the planet earth. Contrary to what are now out dated beliefs, that the oceans are just huge containers filled with salty water, current assessments of the oceans rate them as incomparable biological factories. Oceans supply some ten percent of man's protein needs and are vast storehouses and minerals and a potential source of fantastic amounts of energy.

Governor John N. Dalton in recognition of the upcoming event has signed a Certificate of Recognition in which he states, "By virtue of the authority vested by the Constitution in the Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia, there is hereby officially recognized, NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK 1981. The oceans cover more than two-thirds of the earth, providing food, water and oxygen for mankind and for an extensive variety of wildlife, a dependency that continues to grow with the world's population. Reminding us that the marine environment is in delicate balance, easily upset by pollution and other manmade disturbances, the National Wildlife Federation has set aside the period March 15-21 as National Wildlife Week, with the theme "We Care About Oceans" and I call the message it suggests to the attention of all Virginians."



As temperatures go down, electric bills go up.
Winter is cold and dark and people use more electricity. One reason is heating—the single biggest user of electricity in most homes.
From mid-December to mid-January, it was 29% colder than the same period last year (as measured in heating degree days). And the full month of January was 12% colder than January 1980.
More electricity is used for lighting during shorter daylight hours. You probably use more hot water and more electricity is required to heat colder water coming into the house. Heater and furnace blower motors add to your usage. And you spend more leisure hours at home, using electricity to watch TV and cook big meals.
Energy rates are increasing and even during the cold, dark winter when energy needs are the greatest, you can help keep your costs as low as possible by using energy effectively.
Your ODP office will be pleased to provide you with energy saving literature and advice.

Rose Hill Homemakers Club News

Mrs. Harris Gives Poetry Program at Rose Hill Homemakers Club

"Poetry", a program combining the old and the new, was successfully presented by Mrs. Snyder Harris to an appreciative group on Friday, February 13th

The occasion was the regular meeting of the Rose Hill Homemakers Club which was held in the Fellowship Hall of Morley Memorial United Methodist Church, Ewing, Va. with Mrs. Mary Fugate and Mrs. Ocie McMellan, co-hostesses.

President, Mrs. Marilyn Davis welcomed the members present, and conducted necessary business after the group pledged allegiance to the flag of the U.S.A., and recited the Virginia Homemakers' Creed in unison.

Miss Florence Bayless conducted an inspiring Devotional period using some of the lovely poems of Helen Steiner Rice from her book The Vineyard of the Lord. She also gave glimpses into the life of Mrs. Rice who sees herself as an instrument in God's hands and if her poems inspire others she wants them to honor God rather than herself.

Two poems read by Miss Bayless were, Teach Us to Live and My Outlook on Life.

Mrs. Tom B. Fugate shared with the group an incident of meeting Mrs. Rice at a Restaurant in the South while on vacation and the charming personality of the poetess.

Mrs. Harris based her program upon Poems of Friendship, Love, and Patriotism in keeping with Valentine's Day and the birthdays of Presidents Washington and Lincoln. She chose several selections from The Best Loved Poems of the American People, with appropriate comments, and also poems from the works of Jane Merchant, who has keen insight into the life of today, and is also a native of Knoxville, Tn.

Mrs. Harris also rendered the reading of specific poems by Mrs. Marilyn Davis, Mrs. Viola Fugate, Mrs. Mollie Gray, and Mrs. Henrietta Stone, and directed the singing of Katherine Lee Bates love song, America, the Beautiful, with a brief comment concerning the composition of the poem.

Mrs. Harris spoke of the importance of memorizing good poetry, and concluded three poems, Mrs. Maud Mrs. Fugate and Mrs. Gradner on their wonderful ability to recall poems stored in their minds from childhood. She closed the program by calling on Mrs. Fugate to recite Edgar A. Guest's poem, "It Takes a Heap O' Livin' in a House To Make It Home", and by request of Mrs. Emmett she also recited, "Myself" - (I have to Live with Myself and so, I Want to be fit for Myself to Know).

Other members present not already mentioned, who braved the wintry day to attend were Mrs. Verna Grabeel, Miss Mary Stickley, and Mrs. Selma Shackleferd, making a total of twelve to whom the hostesses, Mrs. Mary Fugate and Mrs. McMellan, served delightful refreshments, using the Valentine motif.

Annual Call To Prayer And Self Denial Observed At Morgan Memorial Church

The Morgan Memorial United Methodist Women held one of its most important observances - the Call to Prayer and Self Denial on Sunday evening, February 15th at the church in Rose Hill.

The informative and inspiring Service of Worship, under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Gibson, was entitled, "Of Such is the Kingdom of Heaven", and the opening prayer was offered by Mrs. Ada Osborne.

The focus of the service was Children, of whom Jesus said, "Let them come to me", and attention was called to the needs and qualities of children today.

Some of the child like qualities suggested as necessary for those who would receive and enter into the Kingdom of God were love, dependence, trust, a sense of wonder, sharing, giving and forgiving.

The most basic needs of children presented were love and affection, adequate nutrition, health care, safety and protection, guidance, and freedom of expression.

On the need for protection, findings were shown that of the number of parents, adults who abuse children that 90% of them today were deprived of love in their own childhood, which shows that children must not only be protected for their own sake, but also for the sake of the generation which follows.

The responsibilities of parents and adults noted today were: to properly instruct their children from infancy, to nurture them in their Christian faith, to support them emotionally, and to discipline them through love and example toward becoming responsible citizens.

The United Methodist Women of Morgan Memorial Church are among the 1 million women who observe this day in all 50 states and who share in monetary offering to be used for specific National and World Division Mission Projects and Training Programs.

Some that will receive support through the Call to Prayer and Self Denial offering are centers for abused and neglected children and their parents, day care centers, early detection and prevention of developmental retardation among children, and equipment and teaching materials for children in refugee centers.

Several of those present assisted Mrs. Gibson in her presentation and others entered into general discussion. They were: Mr. and Mrs. John Hounshell, Mr. and Mrs. John Seale, Mr. and Mrs. Snyder Harris, Rev. James M. Wright, Mrs. Henry Campbell, Mrs. James Gibson, Mrs. Robert Charles Smith, Mrs. Hoye Osborne, Mrs. C.M. Lawson, Mrs. Jerry Hounshell, Mrs. Van B. Grabeel, Mrs. Oscar Smith, and Mrs. Robert Gibson, Jr.

The meeting closed with silent and audible prayers, ending with prayer by the leader.

Overnight guests of the Dave Emmett's last week were Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Havery and Mr. and Mrs. Louie DePetro of Marquette, Mich. The DePetro's are relatives of Mrs. Dave Emmett. The Havery's were en route to Arizona and the DePetro's were enroute to Florida.

On February 6th, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emmett were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Emmett to celebrate Dave's birthday.

Mrs. David Boshear, Don and Lisa Boshear, accompanied by Mrs. Harvey Lee, were caught in a snow storm last week on their return home from Hazel Green, Ky. and spent the night in a motel due to icy roads.

Guests of the Paul Poulstons last week end were their daughter, Paulette (Mrs. Charles Yates) and daughter, Mitzi Yates from Cleveland, Va.

There's An Answer!

By Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

Wants Him To Hurt

Q. I had both arms and hands in a cast from a swimming accident when I found out my husband was having an affair. I would still be in the dark if he hadn't had a car wreck late at night with his lady friend. I'm so bitter and vengeful. I have attacked my husband on five different occasions. I want to claw his eyes out. I want him to hurt like I do. For two months I stayed locked in the house with the lights off and curtains pulled. I cried day and night. My 8 year-old son helped me, he's great. I probably would have killed myself. I just know I can never forgive or forget.

A. You will never get anywhere being bitter or vengeful, and locking yourself up in the house can lead to mental imbalance. Moreover, you are doing your young son a great injustice to enlist his help and sympathy.

If you really want to be happy you will have to give up your misery and become a joyful, loving person. Hard experiences can either make or break us. It is up to you whether you want to be miserable and embittered or, a far better choice, become the mature, attractive woman God made you to be.

We are sending you our booklet Thought Conditioners which has helped others overcome bad thoughts. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Is Witchcraft Wrong?

Q. I have a book about witchcraft. Before I read and use this book containing spells I would like to know that it would be alright with our Lord. I am a believer in Jesus Christ. How would He feel about witchcraft?

A. If you can read about witchcraft in a scholarly fashion just as you would read of any strange phenomenon it won't hurt you as a Christian believer. But be careful not to fall for it. As a Christian you are in Truth, and true followers of Jesus Christ are always mentally sound, never dabblers in strange doctrines. Nor do they need "spells" for they have God's power within them.

Bad Example

Q. We lost our lovely 28 year old daughter about a year ago, very suddenly. She was the mother of two sweet little girls. Her husband promised to care for them, but to this day, almost a year later, they have not been in Sunday school or church except the weekends they visit us. He also has a "live in" arrangement with a divorcee. We love our granddaughters so much and feel this situation is such a bad example. We have tried reasoning with the father. What steps can we take? If we keep quiet and stay out complete, giving it all to God, are we failing?

A. You are facing a tricky situation. If you push too hard your son-in-law will back away completely and you'll lose whatever influence you now have. If you retreat altogether the little girls will miss out on loving guidance from their grandparents. If you can strike a middle point where you still have influence on your grandchildren and a rapport with their father you have the chance to instill your Christian values into their family life. Do this and then commit the whole situation to God in prayer.

"Tasting Party"

The Lee County Vocational School's Occupational Food Service Class celebrated National Education week with a "tasting" party for the teachers. Five different appetizers were served and evaluated. The food service class offers the students experiences with food preparation, service and preservation. Special emphasis, this semester, will be laboratory experience as a waitress and hostess. The class is opened to high school students and post graduates who desire occupations in any aspect of food service. Work experience is gained through laboratory classes and on the job training. Post graduates may study a specific food service job such as a baker or meat cook.

To my wife, Dottie on our 7th wedding anniversary.

I wish that I could tell you
Just How much you mean to me,
For you are all the cherished things
A wife ought to be —
I'm thankful for the Happy Hours
I've known because of you,
Your love, your sweet and thoughtful ways,
Your understanding, too —
And at this very special time
This message comes to say
I wish you every Happiness
And love you more each day.

The best time to think about your health is before you get sick. Good health is not just a matter of luck or fate; you can do something about it - although you may have to make some changes in the way you live.

According to the final data recently released by the National Center for Health Statistics, in 1978 this country again reached the lowest age adjusted death rate and the lowest infant mortality rate ever recorded.

The life expectancy figure was also a record high of 73.3 years in 1978.

The 15 leading causes of death stayed in the same place in their rank from 1977 to 1978. The first five causes of death diseases of the heart, cancer, stroke, accidents, and influenza and pneumonia account for 76 percent of all deaths with the first ranked cause, heart disease, accounting for 37.8 percent of all deaths.

The largest recorded decrease in any kind of death was in suicide which fell seven percent below what it was in 1977. As the ninth ranked cause of death in this country, suicide had a rate of 12.5 victims per 100,000 persons in 1978. Despite this one year drop, suicide rates were 10 percent over what they were 10 years ago.

Cancer

Cancer, which account for about 20 percent of all deaths, increased by 0.6 percent. The increase of cancer in the respiratory system was relatively large, a 3.2 percent jump. In white females, deaths from lung cancer jumped 7.7 percent in one year.

Another death cause which saw an increase in 1978 was accidents, a fact due to the rising number of motor vehicle deaths.

The infant mortality rate that is the rate of death of children less than one year of age fell by 2.2 percent from 1977-1978, down to 13.8 deaths per 1,000 live births, the lowest recorded level in the United States.

Arson In The Springtime

Arson is an ugly word and it should be used most carefully.

Webster defines arson as "the malicious burning of any building, agricultural produce, ship, etc., belonging to another, or one's own property, with the intent to defraud an insurance office.

So, perhaps, we are not talking about arson in the true sense of the word.

We are talking about the uncontrollable urge some people have to burn something in the springtime.

Why do we just have to go out and rake up a bunch of leaves, grass or just anything in order to start a fire?

Is it because we have seen our parents do the same thing over and over as spring rolls around?

Is it supposed to be an easy way to get rid of unwanted trash around the garden and yard?

Do those who burn actually believe that they are helping the situation by burning?

Few people who enjoy the sight of fire and smoke in the spring time are even willing to listen to the reasons as to why they should not burn but here are a few:

Any time organic matter such as weeds, grass, plants, etc. are burned, we damage the soil.

When we burn such material, we lose this much humus that could help to put organic matter and plant food back into the soil.

When we burn over an area of any size, the plant food and organic matter, including valuable bacteria are all lost.

When we burn, we risk the loss of property and even life.

Even with the burning law going into effect as of March 1, the burning will continue.

Perhaps the "before 4:00 p.m." portion will be complied with. But the smell and sight of smoke and the sound of the fire alarm will be there to remind us that there are so many people in the county who may like to see things "nice and neat."

These same people don't seem to realize that a pile of dried grass, leaves and weeds mixed with some commercial fertilizer, sprinkled down with water once and a while will produce compost, a valuable soil building material.

For a change, may we suggest that the people of the county think more in terms of soil building this year and less about smoke and fire.

Let's have less arson in the springtime!

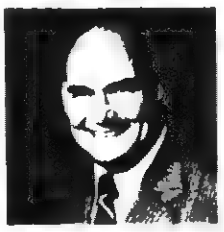
Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington



President Reagan last week proposed a sweeping plan for tax and spending cuts to pull the United States out of the "worst economic mess" since the Great Depression. The President described his program as painful, but fair and essential to curb inflation and spur economic recovery.

Many Americans have expressed concern about big government, its effect on the economy, and its intrusion in our daily lives. Now some are expressing shock at the possibility of losing Federal dollars and services that they have grown accustomed to

A $50 billion budget cut sounds tremendous, and we tend to think of it wholly in terms of radical reductions or elimination of our favorite programs. But when we consider it in terms of the total Federal budget, it looks somewhat different. Without the proposed reductions, the 1982 budget would be $737 billion. The President has asked only that we spend 5.6 percent less. Even if all these cuts are made, the 1982 budget will, in fact be larger than the current budget. He is simply attempting to control the growth of government - not to bring it to a grinding halt.

No one likes to be instrumental in denying benefits or services or assistance to those who cannot help themselves. That is not our purpose or intent and it will not happen. But the fact remains that many Federal programs have long outlived their usefulness, some have grown far beyond their original intent, and others are filled with abuse, fraud and waste. To let the runaway growth of government spending and taxation go on as it has been, is to invite certain disaster.

I do not agree with every particular of the President's plan, and therefore reserve the right to vote my conscience on specific recommendations. But, generally, I believe he has proposed a solid program that we can live with, without undue hardship on the truly needy in our society

Congress has been asked to set an example of sacrifice for the people There will be no salary increases for Members of Congress, Cabinet Members, Judges, or top-level Federal employees. This is appropriate, for we cannot ask others to tighten their belts if we are unwilling to lead the way As a matter of fact, the Congress could reduce its own budget by as much as ten percent without impeding the work or operation of the legislative branch

We have an opportunity, as a Nation, to rally behind a leader who has the courage to take the painful steps necessary to set our house in order after years of neglect He deserves the support of the Congress and the American people

RELATIONSHIPS IN THE KINGDOM
Matthew 19: 1-15

The relationships of Christians with one another are determined by their intimacy of fellowship with God their Father, Christ their Saviour and Lord, and the Holy Spirit their Comforter and Guide. If their relationships with the Deity are what they should be, those which they have with their fellow Christians will be correct also.

Upon the completion of His effective teaching ministry in friendly Galilee, Christ crossed the Jordan River into Judea. There, great crowds followed Him and closely observed His healing ministry.

Striving to trick Christ into making statements they might use against Him, the Pharisees asked, "Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife for every cause? Their query was the outcome of two views held by the Jews. One group, following the teaching of Hillel, endorsed divorce upon almost any pretext. Others, following the teaching of Shammai, contended that divorce was not permissible except in the case of adultery. By their question, the Pharisees were trying to get Christ to take sides with one group or the other. Knowing that the important thing is not what men think or say, but what God says, Our Lord appealed to the Scriptures (Genesis 2: 18 24)

The true foundation of a happy home is found in the God-ordained married relationship of one man and one woman. A true marriage, therefore, is one in which God has a vital part, uniting a man and a woman in such a bond that two become one flesh, not joined by some formula of man, but by the act of God. "What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." The relationship is to be as long as life lasts. Some flaunt their contempt for the standard of marriage established by God and held sacred by society for centuries, but they cannot change God's inexorable law. Never forget that marriage is subject to God's law rather than to man's law or whims.

Shocked by Christ's high ideal, the disciples concluded that His standard was too high for their generation. They suggested that, since Christ had declared fornication was the only cause for dissolving a marriage, it would be better not to marry at all. Christ reminded them that God never intended for all to live in celibacy. He acknowledged that there are three classes who can observe the celibate life: those who are born "eunuchs" and are therefore incapable of the marriage relationship, those who have been made eunuchs by wicked men, and those who voluntarily forego marriage in order to serve the Lord with undivided interests.

Christ did not allow the disciples to condemn those who chose celibacy, nor did He allow them to condemn who did not live the celibate life. Marriage is optional. If one decides to marry, he should not do so hurriedly and with the idea that he can break the marriage relationship any time he pleases. Serve the Lord faithfully in your role, whether single or married.

When the disciples rebuked those who brought the children to Christ, our Lord censured them for their attitude, and let it be known that He was pleased because of their having been brought to Him. He loved children and delighted to bless and encourage them in every way possible, in spite of anything that critics might say or do.

Middlesboro Routes Thomas Walker

In a game played on Tuesday night of last week, saw Middlesboro, Kentucky route the Pioneers for the second time this season. The first time when they played, Middlesboro ripped the Pioneers apart and won by 46 points. But this time wasn't as bad as Thomas Walker lost, but only by 17 points at 59-42.

Thomas Walker played the first quarter as if things might be a lot closer than the final outcome, but finally found out they were just completely outmanned.

The Pioneers held a 8-7 first quarter lead, but quickly fell behind at 29-21 at the halfway mark. They trailed by 10 heading to the last quarter where they were outscored 17 10.

Middlesboro, who is a double A ball club and ranked in the top ten in Kentucky, was led in scoring by Scott Sharp who scored 19 points. Mark Lester was the only other Middlesboro player in double figures with 15 points, but they had seven other players to score. The Kentucky team shot 45% from the field, and hit 5 of 13 free throws for 38.6%. They won the rebound battle by a 34-27 margin.

The Pioneers who are now 5 and 13 overall, were led by Bob Bryant who had a game high of 22 points, and 9 rebounds. Riley Littrell added 9 points in the loss. Johnny Edds, the Pioneers leading scorer was held to 9 points also.

Thomas Walker shot 44% from the field and made 8 of 12 free throws for 66.8%.

T.W. Pioneers Hold Off Keokee

The Pioneers went to Keokee on Thursday of last week, needing to win to keep alive their chances of not finishing in the cellar. Going into the game, Roger Morris' club was on a two game winning streak, fighting themselves to stay out of the cellar. They had beaten Rye Cove and Jonesville earlier in the week, and fell to Thomas Walker by one point at 48-47. Playing three or four games in a row probably had some effect on Keokee, but still they gave a gallant effort against the Pioneers.

Ronald Skeens troops took a 16 15 lead at the first rest stop, and then stretched it to nine at 30 21 at halftime. The Mountaineers outscored the Pioneers 12-9 in the third period to trim the deficit to six, and then took the last quarter at 14 9, but fell one point short.

Thomas Walker by winning raised their record to 6 and 13 overall, and 4 10 in the district. This game closed out the regular season for the Pioneers. They were led in scoring by Johnny Edds who tossed in 16 points to lead four Pioneers in double figures. Bob Bryant added 12 points, while Alden Payne and Riley Littrell rounded out all the Pioneers scoring by adding 10 points each.

Keokee fell to 3-10 in the district and 4-13 overall. They were led by Jeff Bowman with 20 points. Kip Phillips was next with 17 points. Mickey Hubbard, the Mountaineers leading scorer was limited to just six points.

Three of Keokee's four wins this year has come on the road. Their one win at home was against the Jonesville Bulldogs. The Mountaineers have beaten Rye Cove twice this year, and also beat the Pioneers once, on Thomas Walkers floor

Now that the Titans have a 18-0 record to take to the district tournament and the regionals, it will be interesting to see if they can keep it up. One thing is for sure, and the Titans know it, they better not give up 80 points to just anybody, because out there somewhere is going to be five other teams after them in the regionals. Two from the Lonesome Pine, two from the Black Diamond, and one more from the Cumberland District. And that one from the Cumberland may just get you before the regionals. Go get em' Titans, but beware!

Max Chances' Flatwoods Eagles have advanced to the semi finals of the Cumberland district tournament with a close 46 45 win over the Rye Cove Eagles The game was played this past Monday night, and by winning sends Flatwoods against Twin Springs tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m.

The winning Eagles took a 8 6 first quarter lead, but with 0-54 seconds left in the quarter, John Trent picked up his third foul and was replaced by Bryan Denson Trent sat out from that point until he returned to start the fourth quarter Flatwoods managed to outscore Rye Cove in the second period behind Jeff Seabolt who scored eight points in the stanza to give the winners a three point lead at halftime. Seabolt got a couple of long range shots in the second quarter as he began to pick up the scoring with Trent on the bench

Rye Cove came out in the third quarter and got even as they outscored Flatwoods 8 5, heading to the final quarter. In the third quarter, Scott Bowen scored 6 of the eight points, while Seabolt scored four of Flatwoods five.

In the last quarter Flatwoods outscored Rye Cove 14 13, again with Jeff Seabolt doing the damage as he got nine of his teams fourteen points. He got five of his nine, the quarter, on 5 of 7 free throws. Flatwoods hit 8 of 16 from the free throw circle in the last quarter.

With Flatwoods leading 45-43, and Rye Cove possessing the ball, they turned it over to Flatwoods, Darrell Vanhuss was fouled by Rye Cove. Vanhuss missed the front end of a 1 and 1, but got the rebound and was fouled with six seconds to go. This time he hit the front end of the 1 and 1 to up Flatwoods lead to 46 43. He missed the second shot, which was rebounded by Rye Cove, who threw a pass to Roy Lane down court. Lane put up a shot and connected as the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Rye Cove might have been on the winning side instead of the losing one, had their coach Jimmy Dishner not been hit with two technicals. With about two minutes to go, a Rye Cove player was called for walking, and Jimmy Dishner questioned the call, and was hit with a technical. He then continued to complain and was hit with a second technical. Jeff Seabolt went to the charity stripe and connected on three of four shots as the result of the technical fouls

Seabolt led Flatwoods in scoring with 25 points Lawrence Greer was next with six points. Vanhuss, who hit the free throw to seal the win, had five points in the game. The winners were 12 of 28 at the free throw circle for 42%

Rye Cove, which closed out their season with the loss, was led by Roy Lane who scored 18 points in defeat. Scott Bowen added 10 points, while Mike Bowen had eight points. Rye Cove hit 5 of 7 free throws for 71.3%. The Eagles finish the season with a overall record of eight wins and thirteen losses.

Twin Springs Rolls On Dumps Keokee

In the opening game of the district tournament being held at Flatwoods High School, saw the Titans of Twin Springs chalk up win number 19 in a row, against no losses.

Keokee, which drew the task of trying to stop Twin Springs in the tournament opener, started out fairly quick, as the Mountaineers took a 4 0 lead to start the game. The Titans then got a basket to cut the lead to 4 2. Keokee then went up 5 2 on a free throw by Mickey Hubbard. But then Twin Springs scored two straight buckets to take a 6 5 lead The Mountaineers then regained the lead at 7 6 on a basket by Hubbard, but from then on it was all Twin Springs as they reaked off eight straight unanswered points to take a 14 7 first quarter lead

Twin Springs took the second quarter by a 14 13 margin, behind Kevin Short who scored nine points in the period. The Titans then really busted the game open with a 18 8 third quarter advantage. The Titans then padded the margin of victory by taking the fourth quarter by a 19-11 score.

Twin Springs was led by Kevin Short's 24 points, Sammy Parks had 11 points, while Tony Rudder and Craig Short had 10 points each. Mike Penley added 8 points. Randy Laney had two points which rounded out all of the Titans 65 points. Twin Springs hit 19 of 25 free throws for 76%.

Powell Valley Vikings Ramble By Pennington

This past Friday's game between the Vikings and Bobcats closed out the season for both teams. But the Vikings closed theirs out on a winning note! They rambled by the Bobcats 98 62, to end the season just like they started it. Powell Valley had beaten the Bobcats in the season opened for both teams, but not this bad.

Powell Valley in raising their record to 12 and 6 for the year was led by Troy Chandler with 28 points Followed by Louis Collier with 26 points, and George Cox chipping in with 21 points

The Vikings pulled out to a seventeen point lead at the first rest stop at 26 9, but by halftime the Vikings had a commanding 59 27 lead. The halftime score of 59 points is a final point total for a lot of teams, but it was to be this time as the Vikings kept pouring it on with a 20 16 advantage in the third stanza, and then a 21 19 fourth quarter

Winter Warning: WATCH THE WIND!

When it's cold, the combination of temperature and wind takes on more importance than ever. Meteorologists of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), a Department of Commerce agency, call the combined effect on the body the wind chill factor.

It's not so much the temperature as the wind chill factor which makes you feel cold.

As a result of the wind chill factor, a 20 mile per hour wind combined with a temperature of 20 degrees Fahrenheit can have the same bitter cold effect on you as a temperature of minus 10 degrees Fahrenheit when the wind is calm. For example, a minus 10 degree "F" reading with a 21 mile per hour wind results in a bitter wind chill equivalent of minus 54 degrees F.

During periods of low temperature, you feel cold because of the heat loss your body suffers. That heat loss increases as the wind becomes stronger, which causes you to feel even colder. Meteorologists from NOAA's National Weather Service warn that you should take special precautions to avoid frostbite on cold, windy days

Lee County Follow Through Gets National Recognition

Lee County Follow Through has recently been nationally recognized as an exemplary early childhood education program. Only 19 other Follow Through Projects in the nation have been so honored since 1968.

Mr. Sam Cecil, Director, appeared in Washington, D.C. before a special panel of experts selected by the National Institute of Education. He presented evidence of program effectiveness form the Lee County Follow Through Program. The panel reviewed children's achievement scores for tests given from 1978 to 1980. They concluded that educational gains in mathematics made by Follow Through children during these two school years far exceeded those expected

The full importance of this professional endorsement will be realized in Virginia and the nation when other schools have had an opportunity to learn about the specifics of this exemplary program for grades 1-3. The program started 12 years ago as an experiment in early childhood education at the University of Georgia. It has been developed into a proven educational model in Lee County classrooms by teachers, administrators, teaching assistants, parents and Follow Through staff.

There are five schools involved in the program. Rose Hill, Jonesville, Keokee, Pennington, and Dryden At the present time we have 36 teachers, 43 aides, and provide services for over 900 children.

The Lee County Follow Through Program is designed to meet the needs of low income children in grades 1 through 3. Follow Through meets all the needs of children, instructional, physical, social and psychological. Provisions are made for a comprehensive program which includes academic instruction, health, nutrition, social services, psychological needs, staff development and involvement of parents and community

EMS Council Awards Transportation Grants

Four area rescue squads were awarded grants totaling $40,000 for transportation equipment by the Southwest Virginia Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Council, Inc., at the Board of Directors meeting, February 18.

Dickenson County Rescue Squad, McClure River Unit; Clintwood Rescue Squad (Dickenson County); Wise County Rescue Squad, Pound Unit; and Galax Grayson Ambulance Service will each receive $10,000 toward the purchase of an ambulance which will meet all of the most current state and federal regulations.

All pre hospital agencies were asked to complete grant applications in November, which were evaluated according to need by the EMS Council's Transportation and Executive Committees prior to presentation to the Board of Directors.

In December, the Southwest Virginia EMS Council awarded $58,000 in EMS communications equipment monies to eighteen rescue squads and five hospitals in southwest Virginia.

These grants are only a small part of the development of a comprehensive Emergency Medical Services System in southwest Virginia In order to provide similar awards for regional emergency medical care providers and to maintain Council operations, the staff is currently developing an application for continued 1981-82 Department of Health and Human Services funding.

The Board of Directors also voted unanimously to renew the EMS Council's Memorandum of Agreement with the Southwest Virginia Health Systems Agency, Inc. The addition of two Board members: Roger Hudson, Virginia Association of Volunteer Rescue Squads, District 7; and Jeffrey Ketron, Scott County, was also announced at the meeting.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

The rain came last week and melted the snow and brought warmer weather. It is really nice after the cold and freezing temperature. Also the rain was welcome as it helped to fill the water springs and they are flowing again. There had been a water shortage in some springs in the area due to lack of rain.

I heard a bird chirruping from his perch on a limb high in a tree and had the feeling that spring time will soon be here. Already the foliage of some of the early Easter flowers are peeping above the ground. So, I will not complain about the weather because we know that spring will here here in a few short weeks before we are thinking about it. Then winter will bow out as we get ready for a new season.

Time is speeding by and it's time to write the news of the week again.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Baker and daughter, Katherine and son, David of Louisiana, also Mr. and Mrs. Russell Baker and daughter, Patricia of Fla. were dinner guests Sunday, February 15th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray H. Palmer. While they were here Ray accompanied them up on the mountain to see the scenery and make pictures of the ice and snow scenes, which were beautiful at that time.

Reassessment Brings Crisis Of Anguish

Would you object to a tax rate of less than a dollar, based on the recently assessed value of your property? According to some county officials there is a good possibility that the levy will be within this range. So, before you become too emotional over the assessment of your property, consider the entire question, including the need for a firm stand on tax collections by the Board of Supervisors.

By George A. Lee

According to the recent ly completed reassessment of Lee County real estate, the total value now stands at $375.7 million!

The previous assess ment set the value of all real estate in the county at $99.7 million.

What made the big dif ference? Why does the assessor say that your property is worth so much more today than just a couple of years ago?

The answer is simple. This assessment was sup posed to have been made on the basis of a fair market price for your property

Regardless of just what this assessment has accomplished, it has made a topic of conversation that will not soon cease

One of the big com plaints concerning pre vious assessments was that they were not made on an equal basis. Some pieces of property were assessed at a figure much lower than others con sidered to be of near equal value

Has this inequity been eliminated with this assessment"

Some tax payers believe not

Others have raised the question as to just how the assessment was made. It was stated at one meeting of the Lee County Board of Supervisors that every piece of property was being viewed by the assessor. Many people question this as being a fact, citing what they term unreasonable assessments on certain pieces of property.

It stands to reason that with all of the parcels of land in Lee County that some corrections will need to be made. This is why dates for hearings with the assessor have been an nounced. For an appoint ment with the assessor one may call 346 2641 or write to the Lee County Assessor, P.O Box 525, Jonesville, Va. 24263. This same phone number may be used to contact the Equalization Board

Before you become too concerned over the value placed on your property you should probably com pare the assessed value of your property with that of other pieces of property of a comparable value. This may be done by making an appointment with the assessors office, which is located in the basement of the Jail building The en trance is on the east end, on street level. This was, at one time, the office of the County Executive Sec retary

The phone number listed above is apparently busy most of the time. It is very difficult to get an answer, according to many who have attempted to call for an appointment.

Perhaps a trip in person to the office would be the best way to secure the desired information

The assessment books must be completed by March 31. But this is not the final date for changes, where justified, to be made in the assessments

An appointment to see the assessor may be made for the Rose Hill, White Shoals and Jonesville dis tricts for the week of March 9

For the incorporated towns of St Charles, Jonesville, and Pennington Gap, as well as the Rocky Station and Yokum Station districts the week of March

This steep, narrow fire escape leading to the second floor of one of the buildings at Jonesville Elementary is a source of much discontent among parents of youngsters at the school. Parents fear for the safety of their children, especially in this building, in the event of a fire at Jonesville Elementary. The fire escape has no protection from the elements, a factor which, in wintertime, could present a heightened hazardous situation.

HELP Plans To Incorporate

After two hours of thrashing out priorities and problems, a group of concerned Jonesville parents who want to HELP (Help Education Lee Priorities) voted to incorporate their organiza tion so they can "get tough with the boys who are playing politics," as one outspoken parent put it.

Apparently tired of being given the cold shoulder by local school and county officials, these parents, 15 strong at the March 2 meeting, say they are ready to stand up and be counted if that's what it takes to get action.

What do they want? Ultimately, a new elemen tary school in Jonesville, but in the meantime, they want the Jonesville Ele mentary students moved out of a building they deem nothing but a firetrap.

Their main concern ap pears to be with the two-s tory building at Jonesville Elementary which was built in 1911. The building has old wooden floors, soaked with oil, a common cleaning practice in earlier days to keep down dust. Now the floors are covered with carpet or waxed, but one strike of a match and the whole place would go like a tinderbox, seemed to be the consensus of feeling at the meeting.

Fears of blocked exits and a steep, narrow fire escape further add to parents' worries over the safety of their children

Plans of constructing several ramps from the second story to the ground across the back alley were discussed to insure a more rapid vacation of the build ing

Other reasons for want ing their children out of Jonesville Elementary overcrowded classrooms, less than desirable teach ing conditions, poor rest room facilities, etc

One teacher, in atten dance, talked of frustration from the sheer number of students in several of her classroom sections. Lack of functioning water foun tains in the gymnasium area and problems with heat maintenance were also pointed out all as contributing to a not so desirable environment for elementary school children.

Tired of the stop gap measures used to keep Lee County schools operating, these HELP members see organization as the key to action and will request that attorney Les Bailey draw up articles of incorporation immediately so that they can then take legal sanc tions if necessary

Currently, the group is proposing that Flatwoods School be modified to the extent necessary to house both Jonesville Elemen tary and Flatwoods Ele mentary students and Flatwoods High School students would be moved to Jonesville High

Contingent upon this plan would also be a time table for construction of a new elementary facility

Members of HELP say they're also tired of being put off when asking ques tions about the school board budget The sug gestion for a public hearing on the school board budget was made so that Lee County citizens could know exactly line for line how the money is being spent

Parents in attendance at the meeting were given a copy of parents rights with regard to having a child in the public schools They were encouraged to visit their child's class room, to eat lunch with them and to request to see their child's permanent record

"I hope Democrats all over Southwest Virginia will take advantage of the opportunity to meet them, and will attend the Scott County banquet,' said Mc Clelland

The burglary took place last Tuesday night February 24, about 9 p m when Mr and Mrs Clyde Massengill of Route 2, Ewing were robbed of approximately $700

Lee County Special In vestigator Charles Jane way suspects the chain of events leading to the rob bery actually began the night before when three male subjects came to the Massengill home and asked to use the phone on the premise that their vehicle was disabled and they needed to call for help

Massengill, 80, agreed and told Janeway it sound ed as if everything was as it should be They were real polite and nothing seemed out of the ordi nary, he told Janeway

The next night, Feb ruary 24 two female teen agers came to the Massen gill home which is right off U S 58 and asked to use the phone on the pre text that their car was out of gas

About the time one of the girls picked up the phone three male subjects forced entry into the home, their faces distorted by nylon hose They were carrying a shotgun

The three tied Massen gill up on the floor and pilfered his wallet for cash They left a gold watch he was wearing His wife was forced at gunpoint to sur render the contents of her purse and then she too was tied up in a sitting position in a rocking chair

The way said the burg lary took no more that 20 minutes and at no point did the victims hear any recognizable names mad

Beware Of Vacation Offer Fraud

By Glen H. Mitchell
Extension Specialist, Consumer Education
Virginia Tech
College of Home Economics

This is the time of year that a regular fraud surfaces again in an attempt to get consumers to spend their money foolishly - free vacations.

About six companies are contacting Virginia consumers about a "free vacation" in sunny Florida or fun packed Las Vegas. Operators often refer to the abundance of hotel space in these resorts during a recession and hence this special offer.

Many of the inquiries are by mail, but some are by telephone.

At the start of the fraud the victim is flattered and made to feel important. Feeling fortunate about being chosen, the victim can be easily talked into the next step in the fraud: paying a service charge of $25 to $50 for handling costs.

The inducements of free rooms, discounted meals and cut rate recreational costs are often included. Another come on may be coupons exchangeable for several hundred dollars in chips or other entertainment.

Virginians are asked to be particularly wary of unknown companies soliciting them. Ask for local references, check with the local Better Business Bureau or the Virginia Office of Consumer Affairs. The Office of Consumer Affairs has a toll free telephone number, 1-800 552-9963.

Reassessment

16, is designated for hearings before the assessor.

But it should be kept in mind that the assessor does not have the final say. Yet it would be well to see him before appearing before the Equalization Board.

The Equalization Board will have the final say on any changes to be made and they will be hearing appeals from April 27 to May 22. Of course appointments will be required and they may be made at the office of the assessor.

Based on the figures made available, the entire tax situation may well be better than in previous years. Instead of taxes levied on $99.7 million there will be taxes levied on $375.7 million worth of real estate.

If all taxes, real estate and personal could be collected, and that is a big IF, it has been stated that the tax rate could be about 50 cents instead of the $2.03 levied last year. This might be IF the county could get by on the same amount of money budgeted last year.

The levy figure said to be the most likely is under one dollar. Possibly as low as 80 cents to 90 cents. The levy is, of course yet to be set and it will be based on the needs of the county as seen by the board of supervisors.

One of the problems that the board of supervisors, both past and present have been unwilling to face up to is that of collecting both real estate and personal property taxes in a fair and equal manner. A county attorney had, until the end of December, been devoting most of his time to collecting delinquent taxes.

According to figures available to the public, the resignation of the County Attorney the first of this year brought a sharp drop in the payment of delinquent taxes. Some members of the board of supervisors feel that a county attorney on a permanent basis is vital. Vital not only from the standpoint of collecting taxes but of providing legal advice on the many problems facing the board. Other members of the board of supervisors declare that a county attorney on a permanent basis is a waste of the tax payers money. Nonetheless, because of apparent dissention among board members concerning the county attorney, he resigned as of the end of 1980.

A proposed Wheel Tax, designed primarily to assure the collection of personal property taxes, which is the only taxes that may be collected from those who own no real estate was discarded in the face of extremely strong opposition by a segement of the population.

There is little doubt that the question of tax collection both real estate and personal, will continue to be a controversial question to which some board of supervisors must eventually face up to in a firm and decisive manner.

Hopefully, this, the third assessment within the past four years, will be brought to a conclusion that will put taxation in Lee County on a fair basis.

Taxes are vital to the welfare of the county. Most of the tax payers accept this fact. The big objection concerns the inequity of assessments in past years.

HELP

ed their concern over the recent poor showing by Lee County on standardized test scores -- with Lee County students generally scoring lower than the state average.

As one parent, put it, "It's time to pull the upset kid routine. It's time for some relief. We will sue if we have to."

Superintendent Bob McCoy was reported to have been invited to attend the meeting on March 2, but due to a previous commitment could not attend. He did, in fact, meet with the executive committee of the HELP group on February 2.

It will be recalled that not too long ago a county-side effort was made by the school board to secure support for a school-facilities improvement program for the county. This effort did not gain the necessary support to convince the Board of Supervisors that tax payers were willing to foot the bill for such improvements. Of course, the consolidation aspects of the plan were opposed by many.

Burglary

tioned which would possibly give a clue to the identity of the bandits.

However, Lee County police officials have several good leads on one of the suspected vehicles involved, with several local citizens having seen a '63 or '65 Chevrolet pickup, greenish blue, in the area.

Janeway said he is reasonably sure that the two females were used the second night to gain entry into the house and throw off any suspicions on the part of the Massengills.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

Nearly all Federal programs may expect to share fairly in the reduction of Federal expenditures But the proposal to abolish the Appalachian Regional Commission causes deep and widespread concern.

The Appalachian Regional Commission was created in 1965 to aid in the economic development of an isolated and depressed area extending through Southwestern Virginia Evidence of its success can be seen all over the Ninth Congressional District

Working with the cooperation of Federal, State and local governments, ARC has been a leader in the construction of highways and secondary roads, opening the region to commercial development and improving the transportation and distribution of local products and services With the Commission's help, community colleges and vocational schools have been greatly expanded, providing opportunities to local students and reversing the trend toward outmigration that was prevalent a few years ago

Among the many other good things planned or funded by the Appalachian Regional Commission are water and sewer line improvements and facilities, libraries, recreational sites, flood control projects, energy programs both development and conservation , housing construction and assistance, not to mention hospitals, clinics and medical services in remote areas

The Appalachian Regional Development Program is one of the few Federal programs that is a proven success with a clear record of benefit for dollars spent It has helped change Appalachia from a region of dependency and despair to a region of growth and hope. As a result, the area is contributing more to the Nation. Yet the work is not complete, the region's economy remains fragile Present authorization levels would fund the Appalachian Regional Commission and its programs through September, 1983 I will propose that the Commission be left intact at least until that date Although spending reductions may be appropriate in view of the current economic situation, abolition of the Commission is premature. Sufficient time should be allowed to permit completion of on going projects It is conceivable, that with enough lead time and preparation, state and local governments could absorb the funding commitments of the Commission in the future. But I am convinced that a precipitous cancellation of the Commission's activities in Southwestern Virginia would be disastrous.

Sunday School Lesson

GOD'S GENEROSITY
Matthew 20: 1-16

Christ's Parable of the Laborers in the Vineyard teaches that God's grace and generosity are available to all who will accept them.

Requests for Laborers -- Matthew 20: 1-7

Time having arrived for the harvesting of the ripe grapes, the owner of the vineyard found it necessary to go to the market place very early in the morning, where it was customary for laborers to gather to wait employment. The laborers entered into an oral contract with their employer and proceeded to the vineyard and went to work.

At nine o'clock in the morning the employer entered the marketplace again, found other laborers who were willing and anxious to be employed and assured them that he would pay them the proper amount, so they went to work and performed their duties satisfactorily. At twelve and three o'clock he hired additional men and assured them that he would do the right thing by them. At five o'clock he observed that others were standing in the marketplace idle, so he told them to enter his vineyard and get busy. They did so without any stipulation as to the amount of their remuneration, trusting that matter entirely to their employer's sense of justice.

Remuneration of the Laborers -- Matthew 20: 8-12

When quitting time came, which was the time for all day laborers to receive their wages, the employer instructed his steward to call in all of the workmen from the vineyard and to pay them. Doubtless those who came to work late were surprised, delighted and grateful when they received a full day's wages.

Those who had labored all day expected to receive a bonus, but they were paid the amount upon which they had agreed; therefore, they had not been cheated. They complained to their employer that he had discriminated against them in paying the latecomers an equal amount. They did not contend that they had not received payment according to their agreement. Their grumbling was the outgrowth of jealousy and envy.

Rebuke of the Laborers -- Matthew 20: 13-16

The employer selected one of the grumbling laborers, took him aside, and quietly rebuked him and his fellow-laborers for their attitude. He reminded them that they did not have any right to complain because they had received the exact amount of remuneration for which they had agreed to work. If he, the owner of the vineyard, has chosen to pay the others a like amount, it was certainly not any business of the murmurers. He had a perfect right to be as gracious and generous as he pleased in the distribution of his own money So, having acted within his rights, he closed the case and dismissed the complainers.

In this parable, the owner of the vineyard represents God, the vineyard represents the kingdom, and the laborers represent Christians. Our Lord needs laborers in His vineyard today and there is much work to be done for Him. His work should be done in a manner that is pleasing to Him. It is both our privilege and duty, as Christians, to labor in the vineyard of our Lord. Our work for Him will not be measured solely by the amount done, nor by the skill with which we do it, but by the motive which prompts us to do it, and the spirit in which we do it. Let us be grateful for the opportunity of working in His vineyard, and let us do the very best job that we can possibly do, and leave the matter of rewards entirely with Him who will never make a mistake, but will always do the gracious and generous thing by each of us.

Pennington Bobcats Hold Off Crusaders

On Tuesday night of last week, in district tournament action, saw the Pennington Bobcats hold off the Dryden Crusaders 54-52.

The Bobcats were hot in the first quarter as they were hitting just about from anywhere they put shots up from Pennington led by as many as fourteen points in the first quarter, before Dryden could get untracked. Jerry Myers forces held a 24-14 lead after one quarter. The Bobcats then outscored Dryden 12-8 in the second quarter to enjoy a 36-22 advantage at the half.

After halftime, both teams came out in the third quarter and couldn't get the ball to go down. Both teams put in eight points each in the third quarter, to let the Bobcats hold their 14 point bulge heading into the final quarter. In the final quarter, it looked as though the Bobcats would completely blow the big lead, as they began putting up shots from long range instead of trying to work the ball in closer. The Crusaders quickly outscored the Bobcats 9-0 in one stretch to cut the lead to five points, before the Bobcats took a timeout.

With a little over two minutes left in the game, Gary Pendergraft began to control the ball, and penetrating through the Crusader defense for a couple of wide open layups. Then as time started to runout, the Crusaders were forced to foul.

The Bobcats went to the charity stripe several times in the last minute of the game and converted enough to hold off the comeback by Dryden.

During the fourth quarter, with 1:58 showing on the clock, Randy Anders went for a rebound for Dryden, and when he came down, got his foot stepped on. He went down on the floor in front of the scorers table, where members of the reacue squad worked on his leg for three or four minutes. They put the ice pack to Randy's leg and took him from the court on a stretcher, and to the hospital. X rays were taken, and it was determined that his leg was broken. In the game, Anders scored ten points, with most of them coming during Drydens valiant effort to wipe out the Bobcats 14 point lead. Had not Randy received the broken leg, the game might have been different as he was a key man in the comeback effort. Anders is a junior, and since this game eliminated Dryden, all Crusader fans can all be happy to know Randy will be back next year. At the hospital, Anders was laying on the stretcher, just outside the emergency room, waiting for the doctors to put a cast on his leg, and was wanting to know how the game wound up. He was told what the final score was, and also the score with about 23 seconds left to go, with Pendergraft at the charity stripe.

Leading the Bobcats in scoring, was Pendergraft and Bobby Ledbetter with 18 points each.

Gary Collier had seven points, while Kent Henderson and Billy Byington scored six and five points respectively to round out the winning score. The win gives Pennington a 8-11 record on the year.

Dryden was paced Tony Young with 15 points and Greg Peters with 14, followed by Anders with 10 points. Dryden finished their season at 6 14.

Twin Springs Takes Flatwoods In Triple Overtime

In probably the most exciting game of the district tournament, the Titans finally subdued Flatwoods in three overtimes last Thursday night, 62-57.

The Titans took only an 8-6 lead after the first quarter and stretched it to five at 22-17 at halftime. The Eagles outpointed Twin Springs 16-13 in the third quarter and then sent the game to overtime with a 12-10 fourth quarter advantage.

Twin Springs had the ball with some nineteen seconds to go in regulation time, for the last shot. But the Eagles kept sagging two and three men on Short, so Gary Wolf was forced to take a 35 footer which missed the mark.

Flatwoods and Twin Springs managed only four points each in the first overtime. In the second overtime, the score was tied at 55 all. Darrell Vanhuss missed a shot at the buzzer that could have upset the Titans. The Titans took the third overtime by a 7-2 margin for the win.

There was a total of 53 fouls called in the game, with 31 on the Titans and 22 on the Eagles. Each team lost three starters via the foul route.

Twin Springs now 20-0 on the year was led by Kevin Sort with 25 points. Tony Rodder was the only other Titan in double figures with 10 points.

The Titans hit 26 of 35 free throws for 74%. They only outscored Flatwoods by one bucket from the field.

Flatwoods closed out their season with the loss. They finish at 14-8 overall. They were led by John Trent who scored 25 points. Trent hit 11 of 12 free throws. He was also the man that gave Flatwoods their first lead of the game, at 45-43 in regulation. Trent got the Eagles first lead by connecting on two free throws. Jeff Seabolt had 12 points in the loss. The Eagles hit 23 of 38 free throws for 60%.

Twin Springs, already assured a birth in the regionals will have a lot of fans at Thomas Walker (site of regionals) pulling for them. The Titans will know all the district teams that have been eliminated will also be pulling for the Titans to go all the way to the state tournament, and win it! So get tougher Titans!

At 7:00 on February 19, parents, teachers, and interested citizens met in the library at Dryden Combined School. Over 40 interested persons were in attendance to consider forming an organization to improve communication and involvement with the school.

Everyone had opportunity to state his primary concern on an unsigned card. These were tabulated and reviewed by a volunteer committee that met the following Monday. The major concerns in order of frequency were: Lack of a lunchroom for the school, the condition of the girls bathroom in the high school, and school bus safety.

The structure of the group is yet to be decided. Use of committees to pro vide leadership was sug gested, as this would dis tribute the leadership re sponsibilities more evenly throughout the group.

Jonesville Senior Citizens News

—Rev. Charles (Chuck) Cress, pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy, was the guest minister at the Senior Center, Monday. His message was about the Cross. Again, we enjoyed his being with us at the Center. He never knew his great-great-grandmother; I did. Charles is the son of Mary Helen and Rev. William F. Cress of Jonesville; the grandson of Mrs. Johnnie Cress of Jonesville, and the late Melvin Cress; the great-grandson of the late Alice and William A. Cress of Ben Hur; and the great-great-grandson of Martha Elizabeth Morris, the one I knew in my younger years. We were neighbors of the Cress'ed from my earliest childhood. There's still a lot of them around.

Rev. Cress stayed for the covered dish luncheon which followed, and for some good old talking. He's right at home with the older people. He's a very fine yound minister, and a good singer. We like him.

—There was a good group of people at the Prayer Service at Victory Freewill Baptist Church last Sunday. Everyone reported a wonderful outpouring of the Spirit. A lot of good singing from Sandy and Jerry Carter and a quartette from St. Charles.

—Sympathy is extended to the family of Mr. Tom Estep of Bristol. His mother is Mrs. Cassie Estep, a resident of Carter Hall Nursing Home.

—Roy Rutledge visited his aunt and uncle, Maude and Odie Allen last week.

—Mrs. Jerushia Burchett visited her daughter, Mrs. Georgia Roy, and her niece, Mrs. Jo Ann Muncey Cheek, Tuesday, in Ewing.

—Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Quinley and Mrs. Sallie Woliver visited Mrs. Woliver's sister, Mrs. Carson Vannoy, at the Tazewell Nursing Home, Sunday.

—Alice and Drexel Livesay and son Randy visited their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Kate Livesay, Sunday, and were dinner guests. Mrs. Livesay, received a phone call from her son, Eugene, and his wife Nelda Livsay, Enterprise, Ala.

—Mr. Lon Crumley and Mrs. Edna Williams passed away in Lee County Community Hospital, Tuesday. Sympathy is extended to their families.

—Mary and Loran Bledsoe, Orleans, Indiana, were in town for the funeral of Mary's sister, Mrs. Edna Williams.

—Sympathy is extended to the family of Mr. Fred Thompson of Dayton. He was the brother of Mrs. Texia Parsons and Mrs Mable Carter of Pennington Gap.

—Mrs. Lillie Carroll and Gaynelle Baumgardner made a business trip to Harlan, Ky. Tuesday.

Mrs. Golden Gilley and Gaynelle Baumgardner were in Big Stone Gap, Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Gilley's sister, Mrs. Mae Dixon. They took her to Norton where she was admitted to Norton Community Hospital. On returning to Big Stone Mrs. Gilley and Mrs. Baumgardner visited with Mrs. Gilley's niece, Gladys and Bill Bennett.

—Mrs. Cora Howard has returned to her home after spending a few days in Lee County Hospital.

—The old "flu bug" is still traveling around getting people in it's clutches. There's one called Bancock that nibbles away at your body making you feel very uncomfortable. Then, there are the different viruses that make an invasion upon you one way or another. We are always fighting them, the enemy, and wonder which one we are fighting. These bugs have a sneaky way of creeping in and trying to find a place to live. Get after them as soon as possible. They're scary, when they come around and make people feel just terrible. They sneak upon you and have you in their jaws before you know it. Watch out.

—Mr. Lonnie Mason is a patient in the Pineville Hospital.

—James Middleton is a patient in Lee County Hospital. Our prayers are with these and all others that are ill in hospitals and homes.

—Mrs. Maude (Hines) Allen visited Mrs. Linda Fisher, Monday, and had a lot of fun babysitting with her three children. Maude is at home with children or senior citizens. They all love her.

—Faye and Frank Oxford visited his sister, Mrs. Maude Allen, and Mr. Odie Allen one day last week. Other visitors were Mr. Allen's sister, Mrs. Margaret Rutledge, and his niece, Mrs. Ora Jean Johnston.

Maude and Odie Allen were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hansel Rogers one day last week.

—Mr. Levi (Buddy) Burchett and mother, Mrs. Jerushia Burchett motored to Corbin, Ky. Sunday, to visit his children, Larry, Garry, and Linda Gail Burchett.

—Mrs. Jerushia Burchett and daughter Linda Fee made a business trip to Pennington Thursday.

Something for today — I clipped this from a magazine a few years ago and thought some of you folks would enjoy reading it.

True, we are called Senior Citizens -
A name which we proudly wear
Though some heads are balder than others
Or have silver locks in their hair.

There are some of us stooped and feeble,
And some need a crutch or a cane,
But our minds are active and growing,
And we love all our friends just the same.

Eyes may have dimmed with the ages,
And our voices weak and unsteady;
Yet our spirits are gay and exciting,
And for fun and good times we are ready.

Our wrinkles are badges of merit
For the good we did every day.
They're emblems of helpful service
To those we've loved on the way.

Let no one tell you you're ancient,
Worn-out, washed-up, or over-the-hill;
Ther old gray mare may not be so lively,
But there's plenty of kick in her still.

So here's to the gracious seniors —
May their lives be filled with content;
And joy, peace, consideration, and pleasure
For the years of service we've spent.

March 8 14 Is National Employ The Older Worker Week

Governor John N. Dalton has joined the Virginia Employment Commission (VEC) and other state agencies in recognizing March 8 14 as National Employ the Older Worker Week (NEOWW)

A Certificate of Recognition, signed by Governor Dalton, urges all Virginia employers to give special consideration to the skills and qualifications of older workers

Sponsored by the VEC, NEOWW recognizes the experience, wisdon and stability older persons bring to their work.

Nearly one third of all Virginians are "older workers" (those who are more than 45 years of age). This year, more than 1.6 million residents are over 45, VEC Manpower Research Division statistical projections indicate. Of these, statistics show that 1,038,445 are between the ages of 45 and 65, and 531,074 are 65 or older

The VEC maintains several year round "older worker" programs in an effort to tap this large, and often underused, employment pool, Robin Fouch of VEC Applicant Development section said

Older workers have access to all VEC job services, including job referral, counseling and testing, Ms. Fouch said. Each VEC local office has a specialist to work with local employers and VEC office staff to promote job development, referral and placement for older workers.

Dr. Bays Speaks To Head Start Policy Council

The monthly meeting of the Head Start Policy Council was held March 2, 1981 at the American Legion building in Jonesville.

New registrations were discussed and approved. The 1981 82 program proposal was discussed in detail and was passed. The next step is for it to be presented to the Lenowisco Corp. in Duffield

Special guest was Dr Roger Bays of Big Stone Gap. He talked on the importance of floride in the water system. He talked of a state program which would fund the water system for a floridater and the funds to train someone to run this machine plus a five year supply of floride. The question was raised about area water systems and why, since a floridater system was installed, it has not been repaired in five years. It was stated that if you are interested in helping to get floride in your area to contact your local PTO to see what you can do.

The next meeting will be April 9, 1981 at 10 a.m. The Consolidated Management Review team from Philadelphia will be present from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, it was announced

Powell Valley News
Pennington Gap, Va.

Letter to the Editor.

As a former resident of Lee County, I receive the Powell Valley News each week. I read the recent article about a dog named "Zip Code" Someone cared enough to write a poem about "Zip Code", and I care enough to write this letter and to let you know the following

The article about "Zip Code" (Editor's Note) stated that the Dog Warden had to do his "duty". It also stated that Lee County cannot afford an animal shelter, which I do not doubt; however, Lee County and the Dog Warden especially should know that under law, Code of Virginia Section 29-213.19, the animal warden has the responsibility of holding an unlicensed dog for five days prior to disposing of it by any of the several alternatives offered in the law

Even though Lee County cannot afford an animal shelter, it is still required by law to hold animals for five days. The residents of Lee County should demand that something be done!

As a paper serving Lee County and its residents, I think this letter should be printed so that the residents can be aware of this law protecting animals

Thank you,
Mary O. Ruehrmund

A Miner's Wife

Of course all you miners know
The hardships of a miners life
But I want to tell you something
About a miners wife.

She's up at 3' in the morning
The start of a busy day
Is cooking her husbands breakfast
And sending him on his way -

She starts him out with a smile and a kiss
Saying good-bye at the door
Wondering as she is doing this
Shall I see him alive anymore?

As he goes out the door he asks me
What do we need today?
I know I need'nt ask for much
Out of a coal loader's pay.

I'm sitting here writing by lamplight my husband has long been gone to his work in the mines and it still is two hours 'til the breaking of dawn.

We live far out in the country
Over an hours drive from work
And even if I so wished it
My duties I could'nt shirk.

There's a hundred and one things I must do
Small things, which a man doesn't know
As well as cooking, washing and ironing
Scrubbing and learning to sew.

Trying to help make a living
It takes two on the job, we all know
And sometimes, scrimping and saving
It still seems we can't make a go.

With four small children to feed and clothe
Two of them going to school
It's no easy task, and we don't have money enough, as a rule.

But the saving and scrimping are nothing
Compared to the awful fright
That haunts me from early morning
'Til my husband is safe home at night

His life he risks it daily
That we may live, ever so plain
And only we wives realize the relief
Of seeing them safe home again.

Oh Lord! Protect our miners is the prayer of this miner's wife
You see, I've been the wife of a miner
For almost half of my life!

To Cecil,
With Appreciation And Love —
Mrs. Corbett (Alma) Huff

Forest Ablaze

By: Harold Jerrell
Va. Division of Forestry

Most people have not forgotten the polluted skies this past fall fire season created by smoke from forest fires. Ashes fell from the sky for several days and the smell in the air was evidence that huge forest fires were raging out of control. In Lee County we were fortunate that less than 150 acres were destroyed by fire. In just a few counties of Kentucky, more than 96,000 acres were destroyed by fire. So what – we may ask, the fires are now out and we do not have a problem – but nothing could be farther from the truth. Spring fire season will be upon us in about one month. Actually the fires have not stopped as they normally do after Thanksgiving. The lack of snow and rain could very well turn our spring fire season into just what Kentucky experienced this fall.

This year, consider turning under the grass and weeds on your garden instead of burning them. In the long run, the humas created by this decaying matter will improve your soil. Brush that is to be burned should be done while there is snow on the ground.

The long range forecast seems to indicate we may experience a dry spring. Cooperation from the general public will be needed if we are to avoid a possible disastrous situation. Also the 4:00 P.M. Burning Law becomes effective March 1 leaving only a few weeks to complete burning during the day. Use extreme caution while burning and report fires immediately to your local sheriff's department.

1981 Feed Grain Program Requires No Set Aside

According to Lee County ASCS Director CHarles M. Ingram, the 1981 ASCS Feed Grain and Wheat Programs do not require farmers to set aside any land or restrict their acreages. "Farmers may obtain full program benefits and plant as many acres of grain crops as they like under the 1981 program," said Ingram.

"However increased plantings this year will not serve as a basis for increasing a farm's normal crop acreage (NCA) allotment in future years," added Ingram.

By filing a timely and accurate acreage report of their planted acreage, Lee County farmers will be able to obtain the following benefits: (1) Prevented planting protection; (2) Disater benefits; (3) Target price protection) and (4) Commodity loans.

Farmers who file timely and accurate acreage reports of their grain crops will obtain insurance protection on their wheat, barley, corn and sorghum crops in the event they sustain a 40 percent or greater loss to their crop according to their ASCS established yield.

Acreage reports on the fall seeded crops of wheat, barley, rye, and oats must be filed by June 1. Corn and grain sorghum reports must be filed by June 30. Oats are considered a fall seeded crop under the Feed Grain Program.

Additional details of the program will be announced in the near future.

Lee County Heart Fund Chairperson, Ann Seabolt, standing is shown with Dora Collier and Andrew Burchette, who were crowned King and Queen of the "Rock and Roll" fund raising event held recently at Carter Hall. Carter Hall Corner February Activities

Activities for February included our weekly church services conducted by Pastors Harry Bacon and Monty Mullins and the singers from the Apostolic Church of Appalachia Other features during the month included the residents birthday party. Our eldest resident, Manuel Coffman, celebrated his 100th birthday February 20. To help him celebrate, Bill Humphreys provided a helicoptor to take Mr. Coffman for a flight over his beloved Lee County. The helicoptor took off and landed on the grounds at Carter Hall. Mr. Coffman, a lifetime resident of Lee County, recognized many areas and saw places that he hadn't seen for twenty five years. "It was a real pleasure for me," he stated

The biggest feature during the month was the Rock n Roll Jamboree "We appreciate the support from the community," says Activity Director, Carol Cox Our lobby and hallways were packed with participants. We wish to thank all who helped make the Jamboree a success We had a great time and are pleased that over $1300 was raised for the Heart Fund

Mrs Cox announces, that in appreciation for the community support, we plan to hold Heart Awareness Programs here at the nursing home. Plans are being formulated for an April program that will give information on preventing heart disease Films, lectures and a question and answer period will be included

During 1978, deaths due to cardiovascular disease, accounted for 51.9% of total deaths in Lee County. We would like to see the percentage greatly reduced.

An Adoptive Grandparent Program has recently begun at Carter Hall. We would appreciate hearing from others who whould like to become involved in sharing their time and talents to enrich the lives of the residents at Carter Hall.
